Nixon Visits Saigon; Calls For Hanoi, Cong To Act On Offers

Sees Thieu, Then Visits U.S. Troops

SAIGON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon visited Saigon five and one-half hours today and warned Hanoi and the Viet Cong that "we have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace . . . It is time for the other side to respond.

Nixon's visit took him from a glittering palace reception in Saigon to a U.S. infantry base outside the city where he told the soldiers Vietnam may become one of America's finest hours and that "I only hope we can bring the war to an end worthy of your sacrifice."

American officials said later Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu were not particularly discouraged about the prospects for peace but that they seemed to show a slightly harder attitude toward North Vietnam.

TROOP MOVES

They said North Vietnam appeared to be withdrawing troops into Cambodia and Laos instead of North Vietnam and that the Paris peace talks could get off dead center only if Hanoi halted this practice, since it raised the question of good faith.

The officials said this represented no new Allied policy requirement and that during the last half of August Nixon would make another decision concerning American troop withdrawal beyond the 25,000 he has promised to pull out by the end of August.

The assessments and the Nixon statement showed that the United States felt it had made the most generous peace proposals possible and it was now time for Hanoi to react with some of its own. These decisions were made at a lengthy Nixon-Thieu conference at the presidential palace.

VISITS BASE

Afterwards Nixon traveled by helicopter and jeep under heavy escort to a U.S. First Infantry base 10 miles from Saigon to talk with American soldiers.

"...Out here in this dreary, difficult war, I think history will record that this may have been one of America's finest hours, because we took a difficult task and we succeeded," Nixon told the troops.

President, GIs Exchange Light Banter

DI AN, Vietnam (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon mixed serious talk of the war with good humored banter about baseball and football as he moved among the troops of the U.S. First Infantry Division today.

The President, played up to his reputation as a sports fan during much of his visit to the division's headquarters, located in red, muddy, scrub-covered flatlands 10 miles north of Saigon.

To a young man from Dallas, Tex., he said: "You got a good football team. Think they can take the Packers this year? You know they lost their quarterback."

He asked a young rifleman from Chicago if he was a fan of the Cubs or the White Sox.

"I'm a Yankee fan, sir," the young soldier answered.

"That World Series is going to be tough for the Yankees," said the President. "They're not the best team, but they're moving along. Got a lot of speed . . . Stick with the Yankees. Our daughter is a Yankee fan."

As the President walked among the GIs crowding around him to shake his hand, he grew reflective.

He turned to a group of newsmen and said: "You look at these men, their determination, their leadership and you heard them talking quietly about their

District Attorney Says Proof Of Request Missing, Raps Sausalito Council Act

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said today his office would not prosecute the Sausalito City Council for meeting secretly to select a new member, but remarked that it was a "helluva way to do business."

"We're absolutely against secret meetings," Bales said. "I think it's a helluva way to do business — meeting over cocktails or in somebody's house."

LETTER LACKING

Bales said an investigation by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas and investigator John Kingston disclosed that, in the absence of proof of a letter from the Independent-Journal requesting notice of closed meetings, there was no violation of the Ralph M. Brown Act, the state laws regulating private meetings of public bodies.

The act requires that public groups provide 24 hours notice of private meetings to news media which request it. The Independent-Journal made written request to Sausalito in 1967, but city officials told Thomas and Kingston that they could not find the letter.

JULY 3 SESSION

The council met — unannounced — at the home of Mayor Earl N. Dunphy of July 3 (not July 7 as previously reported in the Independent-Journal) to screen candidates for the council seat vacated by the resignation of George C. Hoffman. On July 16,, in regular session, the council named college teacher Wyman Hicks as Hoffman's replacement by a 4-0 vote.

Thomas said he and Kingston questioned members of the council about the July 3 meeting.

"All persons interviewed felt at no time did they believe they were violating the Brown Act and that they had no intention of violating the Brown Act," Thomas said.

Such violation is a misdemeanor.

However, Thomas added, "All

Apollo Crew Taking Key Blood Tests

Blood for the tests was taken from moonmen Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. before they sat down to breakfast in their elaborate quarantined quarters. Blood was also taken from Dr. William Carpentier and engineer John Hirasaki, the astronauts' companions in quarantine.

TV PARLEY

The astronauts then started a day-long closed-circuit television debriefing before an audience of space officials. Plans called for a thorough review of the moon mission.

Armstrong and Aldrin watched pictures of Mars sent to earth by the Mariner spacecraft Tuesday night, but made no comment.

They watched the Mariner pictures on television, interrupting the screening in their quarters of the movie "Romeo and Juliet," a modern, adults-only version of the Shakespeare classic.

COLLINS ABSENT

A spokesman said they returned to the movie just after seeing the television report on Mariner.

Collins stayed in his room during the evening and didn't see the movie or television, the spokesman said.

Wholesale Price Rise Tapering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The climb in wholesale prices slowed dramatically this month, rising only one-tenth of 1 per cent and offering at least some distant hope of a slowdown in soaring living costs, the government said today.

"You have to be careful about placing too much significance in one month's figures, but it does seem to be fairly significant," said Asst. Commissioner Arnold Chase of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Most hopeful note for most Americans was a drop of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in

Reagan Tax Plan, Auto Ban Unlikely

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposal for a 10 per cent income tax cut next year is the only tax rebate bill likely to clear the Assembly this session, Speaker Robert T. Monagan said today.

The Republican leader's comment at his weekly news conference appeared to doom chances of passage for a rival tax cut plan of 20 per cent which also was passed by the Senate with Reagan's bill.

Minutes later the Assembly voted to consider only 25 bills now pending on the floor.

Monagan, noting Senate approval of both bills, remarked "we'll rescue them . . . and only pass one" out of committee.

Reagan's measure would provide a one-time-only $82 million reduction for income taxpayers next year, while the Democratic plan would provide about $109 million.

Monagan also predicted today the lower house will kill efforts to ban the internal combustion engine in all vehicles sold beginning in 1975.

"I don't think at this stage we're arbitrarily ready to say at some future date that all automobiles must be off the streets," Monagan said.

The Senate-passed bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, has been referred to the Assembly Transportation Committee. Asked to assess its chances of getting out of committee, Monagan said: "I don't know, but I wouldn't think so."

Nixon Appeals From Asia To Extend Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon has reached from half-way around the world in an attempt at pressuring the Senate into extending the income surtax, in danger of dying at midnight tomorrow.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said last night he had been in communication with Nixon in Thailand. The President "is deeply concerned by the inability of the Senate to act and the injury this threatens to every citizen," Agnew said.

"He intends to discuss these

Flames Destroy Novato House

Fire wrecked a Novato home today, killing a pet dog and cat.

The home of Wallace C. Forsythe of 482 Via Herbosa was engulfed in flame when firemen arrived shortly after 11 a.m. None of the residents was home. Neighbors saved a car in the driveway and one in the garage.

Shortly after noon, a grass fire erupted on San Rafael Hill near Chula Vista Drive. Billows of brownish smoke were visible for miles.

JUVENILE HALL

Many Teen-Agers Just Want Solutions To Home Problems

By JOANNE GRANT

(Second of four articles)

Who are the young people at Juvenile Hall? Why are they there?

We expected to find a group of young criminals, basically bad kids. Most of them weren't.

Typical was 16-year-old Sally (not her real name) detained for leaving a difficult home situation. "I ran away because I need help," she said.

And Rodney, also a runaway and no longer welcome at home now that he has the stigma of Juvenile Hall attached, who talked of difficulties in finding a foster home. "No one wants old kids," the 17-year-old said succinctly.

"Seventy-five per cent of the time when kids are not released it's because they have no place to go," said Fredric M. Latty, field services supervisor.

"The frustration of not having the resources (for placement) is the most difficult of all," he said.

An average of 200 juveniles are being referred to the probation department each month, but most are not detained long at the hall, he said.

California law specifies that a Juvenile Hall is intended to provide temporary care only. State Youth Authority standards require it to include secure physical care, constructive individual and group activities, counseling and guid-

Erick Yarchin New Chief At Juvenile Hall

A 20-year resident of Marin has been named superintendent of Marin County Juvenile Hall.

Erick F. Yarchin, 56, of 20 Garden Rock Road, San Anselmo, will begin work Sept. 1, John W. Brewer, probation chief, announced today.

Yarchin is currently program administrator at the State Medical Facility at Vacaville. From 1960 to 1967 he was with the California Adult Authority as one of its six representatives.

He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Richmond, Va. and his masters degree in psychology from San Francisco State.

Brewer said his salary had not been set.

Juvenile Hall has been without a superintendent since March 31, 1968, when Ira Okun resigned. An earlier attempt to hire one failed when there were no suitable applicants.

This time, Brewer said, several qualified persons sought the job.

Mariner Shots Show Ragged Polar Edges

PASADENA (AP) — Mars-bound Mariner 6 has sent to earth long shot photos showing features new to scientists: ragged edges on the mystery planet's south polar ice cap, perhaps due to mountains or craters, and a dark spot in the cap's center. (See photos, page 34.)

Another batch of closer pictures, scheduled for transmission back to earth tonight, may reveal more that is new.

Highlight of the tiny spacecraft's 156-day, 241-million-mile journey comes tomorrow when it transmits close-ups after skimming within 2,130 miles of Mars to try to see if the red planet is capable of supporting life.

In three hours across 58 million miles of space Tuesday night, the 850-pound flying instrument platform returned 32 and two-thirds pictures taken earlier between 771,000 and 450,000 miles altitude.

Most of the shots, shown at five-minute intervals on television monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, were dim and fuzzy, depicting an egg-shaped body with the south polar cap gleaming on the right side. Few features were distinguishable.

The frames were made 10,000 miles apart and as the final few

Israeli Jets Hit Lebanese Target

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets crossed the Syrian and Lebanese frontiers today to hit Arab guerrilla concentrations in the foothills of Mount Hermon, the army announced.

The 15-minute air attack was in response to a recent increase in sabotage activity in the area, a spokesman said.

The army spokesman listed eight incidents of sabotage in the region since July 1.

This was the first reported air attack inside Lebanon by the Israelis since they attacked the international airport at Beirut, Lebanon's capital, last December in retaliation for an attack on an Israeli jetliner in Greece by Palestinian guerrillas.

Lebanon has sought to discourage the training of Arab guerrillas on its territory for fear of Israeli retaliation. Half-Christian, half-Moslem Lebanon has tried to remain out of the Middle East conflict as much as possible while publicly defending the Arab stand against Israel.

Tentative Agreement In Two-Nation War

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement was reached early today by the Organization of American States for a settlement of the 16-day old El Salvador-Honduran crisis.

Terms of the peace settlement were reached after El Salvador, in a surprise move, agreed to withdraw its troops, which have occupied Honduran soil for the past two weeks.

The settlement provides for the immediate withdrawal of Salvadoran troops from Honduran territory accompanied by certain guarantees for the safety of the some 285,000 Salvadorans residing in Honduras.

It also urges that both nations bring to trial persons guilty of having "committed crimes and violated the human rights" of Salvadorans living in Honduras and vice versa.

The OAS named a four-man commission to hammer out the details of the peace formula.

Coast Guard Hunt For Tuna Vessel

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Coast Guard is continuing a search for a 65-foot fishing vessel, with six persons aboard, that has disappeared mysteriously off the Oregon-California Coast.

The steel-hulled tuna boat Compass Star, operated by Kenneth Dahl of Morro Bay, was last seen Sunday 82 miles west of Coos Bay, Ore., by a companion boat, the Madonna.

Kennedy Is Still Silent On Future

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Even if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has decided to keep his Senate seat, it may be some time before he communicates his decision to the public.

Observers have been looking to Kennedy's presence or absence during the Senate's vote on the antiballistic missile (ABM) system as some indication of his plans. Now that vote is not likely to come before next week.

The Boston Globe said yesterday that close friends and associates of the senator report he has decided to retain his Senate seat and to return to Washington for the ABM vote. The sources were quoted as saying Kennedy was encouraged by overwhelming public support in response to his plea to Massachusetts voters to help him decide whether to resign.

But in Washington, Kennedy's press secretary, Richard C. Drayne, said, "I have no reason to believe he has made any decision or if he has, communicated it to anyone."

Last Friday night in a nationwide television speech, Kennedy asked Massachusetts voters for their "advice and opinion" whether he should remain in the Senate in view of the controversy surrounding the death of 28-year-old Mary Joe Kopechne.

Scotland Yard Searching For Russ Novelist

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard searched today at the Soviet Embassy's request for Anatoly V. Kuznetsov, whose novels on the imperfections of life in Russia won the acclaim of the public and the condemnation of the Communist establishment. The Russian novelist vanished from his hotel Monday night.

Kuznetsov, 40, had been in London since last Thursday working on a Soviet government-ordered book on the London portion of the life of V. I. Lenin.

He walked out of the Apollo Hotel in London's Kensington district Monday at 11:10 p.m., leaving his luggage in his $5.64-a-day single room. With a wave of his hand, he dismissed the desk clerk's comment that his interpreter was looking for him, and disappeared into the night.

Kuznetsov first got in trouble with Soviet Communist officialdom with his 1967 documentary novel Babi Yar. It tells of the slaughter of 100,000 Jews by the Nazis in 1941 in Kuznetsov's native city of Kiev in the Soviet Ukraine.

The book, which took the same name as a celebrated earlier poem by Yevgeny Yevtushenko on the same subject, was an international best seller.

Early this month, the provincial newspaper Lenin's Banner attacked Kuznetsov for his latest novel, "The Fire," a story of life in a Soviet steel works town. It told of workers and officials who were demoralized.

Nevertheless, Kuznetsov remained a member of the Soviet Writers Union and stayed on the editorial board of the youth magazine Yunost even when such writers as Yevtushenko were fired from it because of their dissenting literature.

Kuznetsov has been a member of the Communist party since 1955 and was once a bulldozer operator.

Co-Ed Death Suspect To Be Quizzed

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A sheriff and a police chief made a quick trip to Hazard, Ky., today to question a man Hazard city police said had admitted killing a girl in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

The arrest in Kentucky was the latest lead as law authorities probed for a break in a series of baffling murders of seven young women in southeast Michigan in two years.

The most recent victim, 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, was to be buried today in her hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey and Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny left for Kentucky after being told of the man's arrest.

Hijack Halted

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A man in woman's clothing tried to hijack a Nicaraguan airliner with 35 passengers aboard last night after slugging the pilot with his gun. But the pilot fought back and subdued his attacker.

Police said 24-year-old Carlos Jose Guadamuz broke into the cabin of a plane en route from Managua to the Nicaraguan coast. He ordered pilot Carlos Salinas to fly to Cuba, then announced over the intercom that he was diverting the plane in the name of Augusto Sandino, an early 20th century leftist.

Salinas said Guadamuz struck him with his gun but that he overpowered him. The plane returned to Managua, and police took charge of Guadamuz.

Church Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church called today for a halt in U.S. arms shipments to Latin America, charging the war between El Salvador and Honduras was "made easier" because the United States gave arms and training to both sides.

Church, chairman of the Western Hemisphere Affairs subcommittee of the Foreign Relations Committee, said U.S. aid since World War II totals $6.4 million to El Salvador and $8.2 million to Honduras.

"It is time," Church said, "to stop our military grant-in-aid programs throughout Latin America. It is time to bring our military missions home."

New Navy Inquiry

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. Navy will reopen its investigation of the collision between the American destroyer Frank E. Evans and the Australian carrier Melbourne next week to determine if legal action should be taken against American officers.

A Navy spokesman at the Subic Bay Naval Base said the investigators want "to determine whether further legal proceedings are warranted" against Cmdr. A. S. McLemore, the Evans skipper, Lt. j.g. Ronald C. Ramsey or Lt. j.g. James A. Hopson.

Ramsey, officer of the deck and Hopson, junior officer of the deck, were warned earlier that they were suspected of negligence leading to the collision.

Nixon Visits Saigon; Puts Peace To Hanoi

President here from Bangkok and she visited wounded American soldiers at Long Binh, 25 miles north of Saigon, and an orphange.

Maximum security was in effect for the visit, the first by an American president to the capital.

An Army spokesman said the security included the "rocket belt"—a seven mile radius around Saigon within which the Viet Cong in the past have shelled the capital in the months past.

But no incidents were reported, either in the capital or in the Nixon's separate trips to the countryside, and they returned safely to Bangkok at (5:30 p.m. Bangkok time) 3:30 a.m. PDT.

Nixon's declaration of no more concessions to the Communists was an obvious reference to the Paris peace talks which formally began last Jan. 19 after preliminary skirmishing at the conference table. The United States and Saigon made a number of concessions. The Communists have not budged from their demands for withdrawal of all U.S. troops and imposition of a Communist-dominated "coalition government" in the South.

Nixon landed at Tan Son Nhut air base and flew to the presidential palace in the heart of the city where he declared:

"We have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace and now it is time for the other side to respond. Otherwise, the other side must assume the responsibility for the continuing suffering of people who have already suffered muct too long, both in North and South Vietnam."

"As I look over the period that has elapsed since the time I became President of the United States, I believe that the record is clear as to which has gone the extra mile on behalf of peace," Nixon said.

Lights Lead To Suspects, Drug Goods

A San Anselmo man and a Mill Valley woman were booked into Marin County Jial today after San Anselmo police were called to 100 Oak Springs Drive by a neighbor who saw lights on in the house he believed vacant.

Booked were Linn D. Millburn, 22, of 100 Oak Springs Drive, on suspicion of possession of marijuana, possession of narcotics paraphernalia and destroying evidence, and Julia McDonald, 19, of 258 Green Street, Mill Valley, on suspicion of possession of marijuana.

Both posted $1,250 bail each, and will appear in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Friday for arraignment.

Found in the house, unoccupied when police arrived at 9:50 p.m., were two dozen pills and capsules, believed to be dangerous drugs, two ounces of hashish, several pipes, various containers containing what appeared to be marijuana, some marijuana seeds and cigarette papers, police said.

Millburn and Miss McDonald arrived at the house at 12:02 a.m. today at which time police found a plastic bag of marijuana in Miss McDonald's jacket and a plastic bag of marijuana on the floor of the couple's car, police said.

No estimate of value was placed on the confiscated items, officers said.

Fairfax Trustees Talk To Four

The four are Patrick Fitzgerald, Georgia Elmenhorst, Paris Simmons and Stanley Little. The fifth candidate, Robert Sulpizio, will be interviewed prior to Tuesday's regular meeting.

The board is expected to make the appointment at the Aug. 26 meeting, Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond said. The Aug. 26 meeting was to have been held Aug. 19, but that session will be postponed Tuesday, Hammond said.

The cycle, driven by James Miner, 20, a Treasurer Island sailor, was struck by the car at about 12:45 p.m. at a detour section where Magnolia is being widened to four lanes, police said.

flashed on screen, landmarks well known to astronomers from telescopic photographs from earth came into prominence.

The ragged cap edge became visible on frame 20, causing a laboratory spokesman to comment: "Perhaps the most exciting result is that some pictures show a ragged edge on the southern polar cap, possibly caused by the presence of mountains or craters. This is new information."

The cap's dark spot, which the spokesman said had not been noted before and which he could not explain, showed on frame 30. Another feature of final shots was that the north polar cap, barely visible in early pictures, stood out brightly.

Mariner 6 is being followed by five days by Mariner 7, similarly squipped and on a similar mission. Their cameras and other instruments are designed to determine whether Mars, one of the sky's most intriguing bodies, can harbor life. It is known to have a thin atmosphere, clouds, seasonal color changes, lines some have linked to canals — all of which has caused some astronomers to conclude it could have intelligent life.

were advised that this office does not condone meetings taking place in smoke-filled rooms and, now that they have been advised regarding the Brown Act, any future actions taken on their part may be looked at more closely."

Bales said he would mail sections of the Brown Act pertaining to closed meetings and special meetings to all city councilmen in Marin.

Fall Victim Is Slightly Improved

A slight improvement was reported today in the condition of Robert J. Elberg, 45, of 201 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere, who was injured in a fall from a balcony at his home Monday.

Elberg, taken off the critical list was reported in poor condition today. He remained in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital with a broken leg, broken ribs and a fractured vertebrae.

Assault Complaint Dismissed In Court

An assault complaint against Leon Church, 24, of Forest Knolls, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Church and Richard Green, 32, of Forest Knolls, were both booked July 18 after a fight at Green's restaurant in Forest Knolls. An assault charge is still pending against Green.

Motorcyclist Still In Poor Condition

John M. Linberg, 20, of 206 Scott Street, Mill Valley, was reported slightly inproved today though still in poor condition in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital.

Linberg was injured July 17 in a motorcycle accident on the Fort Barry military reservation and had been listed in critical condition.

APOLLO

and Hirasaki and Carpentier are considered vital in determining if lunar material is dangerous to man. The five were the first human beings to come in contact with matter from the moon.

Scientists also planned to inject pulverized specks of the moon into germ-free white mice late today, testing if poison or living creatures exists in lunar rocks that could endanger life on earth.

The experiment, which calls for treating 264 mice over the next 50 days, will determine if moon stones gathered by the Apollo 11 astronauts can safely be delivered to scientists in many parts of the world.

Officials had hoped to begin the tests this morning, but delayed a few hours to allow time for additional preparations.

If the astronauts develop no illness that can be traced to the moon, the quarantine ends on Aug. 11. If an illness does develop, the quarantine could go on indefinitely.

The space agency announced that if all goes well the astronauts would make their first public appearance at a press conference planned for Aug. 12. They entered the lunar receiving laboratory last Sunday.

But while they're out of sight, they're not forgotten.

Space agency officials said the mailroom at the Manned Spacecraft Center was being swamped by letters and telegrams to the moonmen.

For seven minutes last night television viewers rode the lunar module Eagle to a landing on the moon.

They watched movies of the moonship as it descended to the pocked surface July 20, veered away from a hazardous, gaping crater and touched down amid outflung lunar dust.

And they saw Armstrong go cautiously down a ladder, pause, and then plant man's first footprint on the moon.

This was the first of the Apollo 11 movie footage in color and it captured much of the drama of the landing by Armstrong and Aldrin.

The color films were shown to newsmen at the Manned Spacecraft Center and transmitted simultaneously by network television to viewers across the country. Part of the adventure was televised live July 20, but that was in black and white.

The first still photographs, also in color, were sprinkled with footprints and eerie silhouettes of the spaceship, and showed the American flag perched on the beach-like surface.

A second set of stills, released last night, caught Armstrong inside the lunar module, showed the landing site from above and rocks on the lunar soil. This set also included a picture of earth with Europe, Africa and Asia visible.

COST

wholesale prices of farm products, including a downturn in the recent sharp climb of cattle prices.

But Chase cautioned it could be several months before this might be translated into more stable beef prices at the supermarket.

The preliminary report on July prices, if later confirmed by more complete figures, would be the smallest rise in the wholesale price index in nine months.

The one-tenth of 1 per cent rise would be about a third the average monthly rise of more than three-tenths over the past year.

The increase brought the wholesale price index, measuring food and a broad range of industrial raw materials, to 113.3. This means that $100 worth of wholesale goods in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based now costs an average of $113.30.

Industrial commodities averaged two-tenths of 1 per cent higher, a considerably slower rise than earlier this year, but "This still leaves something to be desired," Chase said.

The industrials price increase was largely in metals and machinery because "worldwide demand is very strong," Chase said.

Another 750 U.S. Troops Leave War

SAIGON (AP) — Another 750 American troops left Vietnam today under President Richard M. Nixon's plan to cut back U.S. strength by 25,000 men by the end of August.

The Fourth Battalion, 39th Infantry of the Ninth Infantry Division boarded planes at Bien Hoa air base north of Saigon for Hawall as Nixon arrived for a visit. It will be held in ready reserve there at Schofield Barracks.

The battalion, now commanded by Maj. Ronald W. Crooks, of Albany, had been in Vietnam since Jan. 3, 1967.

The U.S. Command said the latest departure raised to 7,400 the number of American servicemen withdrawn from Vietnam since Nixon announced the cutback June 8.

The withdrawal coincided with some increase of fighting in provinces around Saigon although the general lull in sustained ground action and enemy attacks moved into its seventh week today.

The biggest fight reported during the past 24 hours centered 30 miles west of Saigon and only four miles from the Cambodian border, along a key infiltration route.

U.S. infantrymen from the 25th Division and South Vietnamese irregulars reported 63 enemy soldiers and nine Americans killed in an eight-hour fight Tuesday. Ten Americans were wounded.

South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.

The American infantrymen swept in by helicopter to reinforce government reconnaissance troops who had run into North Vietnamese bunkers.

Twelve hours earlier other troops from the 25th Division killed 53 enemy soldiers in the same general area.

VISIT

homes, why they're here, what they think, and in some way you can sense their feelings . . . We are very fortunate that we can produce men like that."

One of the few bits of sports chatter he blew was upon greeting a GI from Minnesota.

"Ah Packer territory!" exclaimed the President, neglecting to mention the Minnesota Vikings.

Nixon's conversations with the troops covered everything from the moon landing to Army chow.

He grinned as he said he thought one question universal in the minds of servicemen was the quality of the food.

"The food is a great improvement over what we used to have. Now refrigeration has come along . . . new food processes.

"Actually, if you didn't have the food to gripe about you'd have to find something else."

The chief executive chatted occasionally about the astronauts. He was told by one soldier that many men at the base had stayed up all night to watch reruns of the moon trip on armed forces television.

"You fellows are young enough," he said. "You'll be going to Mars."

Sausalito Collision Injures Two Persons

Two persons were treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes and bruises yesterday after being involved in a car-truck accident in Sausalito.

Marian Slater, 35, of 515 Humboldt, Sausalito, suffered multiple bruises in the mishap at Bridgeway and Bee Street at 3:30 p.m. Zolton Kraznik, 21, of 67 Millard Road, Larkspur, was treated for scrapes and bruises.

Police said Kraznik's truck stopped to allow pedestrians to cross Bridgeway and Mrs. Slater's car ran into the rear of the truck. She was cited for driving at an unsafe speed.

SURTAX

matters frankly and fully with the American people upon his return Monday," the vice president went on. An aide said Nixon might go on radio and television at that time to get the public behind him.

Prior to the statement by Agnew, who canceled a West Coast speaking engagement today to be on hand to fight for extension, the surtax appeared the probable victim of a Democrat-GOP Senate deadlock.

The temporary extension of payroll withholding rates including the surtax expires at midnight tomorrow, and both sides in the dispute agree if this happens it will be very difficult to revive the surcharge.

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee held firm yesterday on its proposal for a five-month extension of the surtax, rather than the one-year plan of the administration. The Democrats said their proposal would give the Senate time to work out a broad tax reform bill which they say must accompany continuance of the surtax.

And the Democrats turned the screws tighter by announcing they would not consider a 15-day extension of the paycheck withholding rates which the House approved yesterday.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said today, "our opposition is unchanged" in the controversy.

He said the offer to extend the surtax five months remained open for action in the Senate today and tomorrow, if the Republicans would agree to it.

Mansfield said no further meeting of the Democratic Policy Committee was planned as of now.

As for Agnew's statement, the majority leader said the administration's position had not been transmitted to him officially in any way.

"I learned of it from the press," he said.

Views On Police Relations To Be Gathering Topic

Human rights commissioners and police officers from San Jose to Alameda have been invited to meet with the police-community relations committee of the Marin County Human Rights Commission at 8 p.m. today in Romm 400 at the Civic Center.

Bella Aaron, chairman of the police community relations committee, said "We've invited human rights commissioners and police officers from San Jose, San Mateo, Richmonf, and Alameda and Department of Justice marshals from San Francisco to meet with us."

She said she will reprot on what Marin is doing in police community relations, and will exchange ideas with the visiting officials.

Marijuana In Pots At Ranch; Two Arrested

Two Bolinas men were jailed yesterday after sheriff's deputies found a collection of potted marijuana plants in a junked luxury car at the Francisco Ranch on Bolinas-Olema Road.

Gerald Steven Granados, 24, and John Allen Reynolds, 19, both of the ranch, were booked on suspicion of cultivating marijuana and later released on their own recognizance to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Deputies said they got a call Monday from an unidentified woman who said she saw marijuana plants growing at the rear of the Francisco Ranch. Deputy Harry E. Bock went to the ranch that night and reported finding two plants growing in a pot.

Next day Bock and Sgt. Robert Bertrand went to the ranch and reportedly found several pots and planters full of marijuana plants in a wrecked Lincoln Continental in the yard.

As Granados and Reynolds were being arrested, an unknown third man dashed from the house and disappeared down the road, deputies said.

Sanitation Budget Is Approved

A budget of $144,800 for fiscal 1969-70, down $100 from last year, was approved last night by the Richardson Bay Sanitary District Board, secretary Douglas De La Fontaine reported.

The budget will require a tax rate of 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation, a decrease of 5 cents from last year, he said.

Increased property assessments plus the slight budget reduction were responsible for the tax cut, De La Fontaine said.

Included in the budget were treatment plant maintenance and salaries, $51,000; administration, including board members salaries, $27,000; payment to the Sausalito-Marin City sanitary District, $31,000; sludge dewatering and combustion system, $11,000; line maintenance and monitoring program, $16,500; smoke bomb testing, $4,500; capital improvements, $5,900; and landscaping, $1,200.

Not included, De La Fontaine said, were funds for the elimination of odor problems at the Trestle Glen treatment plant because the board has agreed to finance odor improvements with reserve funds.

Georgia Pacific Gives $6 Million Park Land Parcel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Nature Conservancy today announced that the Georgia Pacific Corp. had donated 390 acres of prime Redwood forestland on the Van Duzen River in Northern California for uses as a park.

Officials estimated the value of the land at $6 million and said it was one of the largest gifts in the "history of the American conservation movement." The land embraces two Redwood groves about 12 miles southeast of Fortuna, in Humboldt County.

Robert B. Pamplin, Portland, Ore., chairman and president of Georgia Pacific, gave the deed to the land to Thomas W. Richards, president of the Nature Conservatory, at a noon ceremony. Richards then symbolically handed the deed to William Penn Mott, chief of the California Park System, which will administer the park.

Photos Of Marin To Be Displayed

"Focus on Marin" a display of photos provided by the Ross Valley Camera Club are now on display through Aug. 17 at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon.

Included in the exhibit are Marin photographers Ralph and Lucie Butterworth, Elwin Menesini, Jack Bessinger, Cliff Bauer and Robert Clark.

The museum will be open from noon to 4 p.m. Sundays and Wednesdays.

Fairfax Dogs Poisoned, Police Say

Two Fairfax dogs who frequent the city parks have been poisoned, apparently by strychnine, police reported today. Both were saved.

Police said the first dog was found crossing the park, acting strangely and jerking. Its owner, Scott Dillingham found the dog and took it to a veterinarian.

Dillingham, of 20 Park Road, told police the dog left the home in the early morning.

The second dog, which went strolling in the early morning hours, was found by a friend of owner Teresa Sage, 44 Bolinas Road. It also was acting strangely and was taken to a veterinarian.

Police said nothing has been found in the parks to indicate the dogs picked up the poison there. However, visits to the parks were regular practices of both animals.

The first poisoning occurred last Wednesday, the second on Monday.

Fire Alarms At Civic Center Will Be Tested

The fire alarms at the Civic Center and the new Hall of Justice will be ringing tomorrow and possibly Friday, but they will be only test rings.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost said the test is necessary to make sure that the fire alarm is properly connected to the new system in the Hall of Justice building. Alarms will be going off at various intervals tomorrow. If the tests are not completed in one day, further tests will be made on Friday.

"Every effort will be made to keep the individual rings as short as possible to distinguish them from an actual emergency, which is a long continuous ring," said Frost. "If any emergency should arise, the main switchboard will advise various departments."

Hickel, Western Governors Talk

SEATTLE (AP) — Western governors, calling for relief from federal red tape which they charge has hampered development of their natural resources, huddled today with Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

"We are interested in getting recognition of state's rights as far as natural resources are concerned," said Idaho's Republican Gov. Don Samuelson.

"Federal monies to the state without too restrictive guidelines could help the states develop larger outdoor recreational areas on their own," Republican Gov. Paul Laxalt of Nevada said.

Drugs Suspect Nabbed In Chase In Mill Valley

A 21-year-old Novato man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of marijuana and dangerous drug possession, resisting arrest and a traffic warrant following a two-block foot chase through a Mill Valley business district.

Richard Keynard Driskill of 50 Torres Road was released from Marin County Jail on $1,250 bail to appear at 2 p.m. Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Mill Valley police said officers stopped a car in which Driscoll was a passenger at 3:15 p.m. on Miller Avenue at La Goma Street to arrest him on a $25 traffic warrant.

When officers approached the car, Driskill ran Miller Avenue to Evergreen Street and then back up the other side of the street to Montford Avenue where officers caught him.

Found in his clothing, police said, were multicolored pellets and a substance which appeared to be marijuana.

Hanoi Remains Silent About Freeing Trio

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials expressed concern today over the lengthening time elapsed with no word when Hanoi will release three American prisoners.

Without identifying them, North Vietnam announced on July 3 it was releasing three captured Americans.

Their release first was expected on the July 4 holiday, and again last Friday, a week after the arrival in Hanoi of a delegation of four U.S. peace activists who were to make arrangements.

The next weekly flight of an international control commission plane from Hanoi to Vientiane, Laos, is Friday.

The peace delegation now in Hanoi includes Renard C. Davis of Chicago, a leader of Yippies International; Linda Sue Evans of Fort Dodge, Iowa, an organizer for Students for a Democratic Society; Grace Paley of New York, a writer and teacher; and James Johnson of the National Black Antiwar Antidraft Union.

Lebanon is bounded on the South by Israel.

TALKS ABOUT FATHER

Busdieker On Stand In Death Trial

Larry Glenn Busdieker "tried to be a father," his son, David Vaughn Busdieker told a Marin Superior Court jury yesterday.

Busdieker, 20, accused of fatally stabbing his father, also testified as he was cross-examined by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas that his father tried to protect him.

Thomas referred specifically to an incident in 1966 when the younger Busdieker, of Corte Madera, was arrested and his father begged officers not to take his son to Juvenile Hall. Busdieker agreed the account was true.

Thomas also established the elder Busdieker had made no attempt to arm himself the night last December when he was stabbed with an eight-inch-bladed butcher knife.

Young Busdieker testified he had made no attempt to leave the house and get away from his father — who was threatening to kill him and swinging at him — because he was afraid for his mother. He said he thought he and his mother might be able to calm his father down.

Busdieker has testified repeatedly he was afraid his father would kill him that night.

"I was always scared of my dad," he said yesterday.

He admitted under questioning by Thomas that he had threatened to kill his father in the past, but couldn't remember when.

Much of what Thomas asked the youth about the night his father died he couldn't remember. He had testified under direct examination that he was standing in front of his father and the next thing he remembered his father was on the floor. He said he does not remember his father being cut on the arm, a would believed to have preceded the fatal blow in the chest.

Under redirect examination by defense Atty. Roger Garety Busdieker testified there had been a change in his father in the weeks preceding his death.

"He was drinking all the time. He just wouldn't pay any attention to anyone," the youth said

Busdieker testified his father had sworn at him before in "harsh" tones but he was not afraid then. The night he died, his tones were wild, Busdieker said.

The only other defense witness called yesterday, Gregory Keeler, 19, of Lake Tahoe, formerly of Corte Madera, cleaned up the mystery of the lost car keys which had precipitated the argument between father and son.

Keeler, who was with the younger Busdieker the night before the early morning stabbing, testified he had taken the keys and hidden them because he didn't think Busdieker should drive any more that night.

He said another friend had reported Busdieker had been driving too fast.

Busdieker had thought the keys were lost.

Testimony in the case before Judge Harold J. Haley was expected to end today.

Boy, 12, Held On Suspicion Of Car Theft

A 12-year-old Concord boy has been booked at Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of car theft after he was found hiding in bushes on a Marinwood street near the abandoned car.

Deputy Sheriff W. W. Weidauer reported he saw the car driving at high speed on Cedarberry Drive at 11 p.m. Monday and gave chase. A moment later he found the car abandoned on the lawn at 2175 Danberry Drive.

Several witnesses pointed out which way the driver ran, and Weidauer found 12-year-old Douglas R. Thoman in shrubbery at 633 Cedarberry Drive.

Juveniles in the neighborhood said Thoman had lived in the area about a week, staying with other youths.

The car, which reportedly had been taken a few minutes before Weidauer saw it, is registered to Grey Dresser of 573 Idylberry Drive.

Marinite Named To Commission

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Susan Schwab of San Rafael yesterday was appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to a 20-member Commission on Education Reform to review the state's public school systems and recommend improvements.

Mrs. Schwab, a member of both the Marin and state Republican central committees, was women's chairman of Reagan's Marin campaign for governor in 1966. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Stanford University.

She is the wife of Charles R. Schwab and resides at 40 Oak Mountain Court.

The governor said the new commission would study possible changes in school finances, administration, teacher training, certification and curriculum.

A similar 24-member committee appointed by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1966 made its recommendations last September, but they were not implemented. Its recommendations included new methods of training teachers, starting education earlier in life for children, establishment of special schools to test new ideas, and more racial integration.

The governor's education secretary, Dr. Alex Sheriffs, who told newsmen he learned only Monday night of the previous committee's study, said a new study was a good idea because "there's something really different in this new breed of youngsters." He said the commission's first report would be made in December.

The city champion will compete in the regional finals to be held Aug. 8 in San Jose.

Burglar Hits Tourists' Cars On Mount Tam

A thief who broke into two cars atop Mount Tamalpais stole more than $1,100 worth of travelers' checks and $57 in cash from six victims, sheriff's deputies reported today.

Both cars were entered Monday afternoon at the parking lot on the east peak.

The larger haul was from the car of Audrey Dalen of Denver, Colo. Miss Dalen reported losing $800 in travelers' checks, $10 in cash, her credit cards and driver's license. Martha Dalen of Denver lost $20 in travelers' checks, $7 cash and her driving permit. Barbara Kraabel of Denver lost $20 in cash, her credit cards and driver's license.

Ingeborg Dickinson of Albany reported her driver's license and $5 were taken from her car. Annegret Kranefuss of Albany lost $340 in travelers' checks, $10 in cash, $50 in German marks, her passport, an airline ticket to Germany and a bus ticket valued at $99. Houseboat Colony Gets Ultimatum

Donlan J. Arques and his houseboat colony must submit a timetable for correction of health and safety hazards at the "earliest possible" time, or the county will move ahead with the razing of hazardous houseboats and walkways, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared yesterday.

T. J. Nelsen, who operates a marine service on Arques property, assured supervisors Areques would build a new pier between Sonoma and Montrey streets to comply with electrical and building codes, and said houseboats that do not comply would be moved or brought up to standards.

Supervisor Chairman John F. McInnis said the board reaffirms its policy of abating unsafe walks and dockways, hazardous electircal wiring, and removing houseboats that encroach on county underwater streets.

The supervisors agreed to give Nelsoi, who spoke for Arques, time to build a new dock and make corrections.

"I want to be prepared to be as rough as need be to abate the hazards," said McInnis. "But I'd be willing to withhold the exercise of arbitrary authority so long as there is evidence of cooperative effort."

He asked Nelsen and the county staff to report back Aug. 12 on progress made to correct the hazards.

Compromise In Flap Over New Apartments

Marin County Supervisors voted a compromise zoning measure yesterday that appeared to end conflict in Santa Venetia over proposed apartments near Gallinas Village. (Another supervisors story, page 23.)

New zoning would require owner-builder P. J. Tarrant to reduce the number of units in the two-acre project from 56 to 48.

The move came after 30 Gallinas Valley residents gathered to protest the North San Pedro Road development, urging a density reduction to 42 apartments. Tarrant complained it would cost him $108,000 already invested if the tougher measure passed.

The County Supervisors Also:

FLOOD CONTROL — Authorized payment of $252,980 to Marin Junior College for right of way through college land for the second phase of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

ASSESSMENTS — Authorized county assessment roll changes and set a hearing on increases for Aug. 5 at 9:15 a.m.

COMPUTER GRANT — Approved a $3,000 contract with Computer Usage Development Corporation of San Francisco for retrieval of county housing data.

EASEMENTS — Deeded a water line easement in the civic center to Marin Municipal Water District and accepted a quitclaim from the district for a portion of unused right of way.

RETIREMENT — Voted a resolution of commendation to Joseph P. Henneberry of San Anselmo, who will retire at the end of this month after 19 years as court clerk and law librarian at the County Courthouse.

HALL OF JUSTICE — Decided the county should not move into the Hall of Justice until all the cabinet work and cleanup have been completed. Administrator Alan Bruce reported that architect Aaron Green believes the new building will not be ready for final inspection for another month, and the county is studying possible penalty recovery from the contractor because the deadline for completion was last week.

ADMISSION DAC — Decided not to meet on Sept. 9 because it falls on Admission Day, a holiday.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE — Approved a list of 33 Marin residents as the county's Family and Children's Advisory Committee to study problems of families on public aid.

INSURANCE — Approved an outlay of $5,40 to get a domestic firm to insure the county against false arrest. Lloyd's of London has refused to renew the policy because eight claims were filed last year.

COMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT — Thanked the county administrator for an "excellent" report on the county communications department. Personnel Analyst Richard Uchida reported that Director John H. Atkinson was not guilty of harassing.

Assemblymen Ask Penal System Overhaul Study

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative study of how to overhaul California's penal system has been proposed by Assemblymen John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, and Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles.

The present system, which includes San Quentin Prison "is currently wasting lives and money," their resolution stated, and "is in need of a major overhaul if it is to be effective in returning former prisoners to a constructive role in society.

"Lengthy periods of confinement, arbitrary rules governing parole, and idle, purposeless lives in prisons have led to increased criminality, rather than rehabilitation of prisoners," they declared.

They asked that a report on the study be made to the Legislature at the beginning of the 1970 session in January.

Marinwood Sets Four Outings In August

A program of recreation activities has been planned for August, Marinwood Recreation Director William A. Gordon announced.

Scheduled are an adult moonlight horseback ride and barbecue from the Marinwood Community Center at 6:30 p.m. Friday; a trip to San Francisco to see the Giants-Pirates baseball game Aug. 12; a trip to the ice follies in San Francisco Aug. 20; and a junior olympics for all ages at the Community Center from 10 a.m. Aug. 23.

More Money Sought For Pipe Project

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the Department of Public Works to apply for more federal funds for the Meadow Drive drainage porject in Santa Venetia because the project will cost more than expected.

The drainage improvement plan calls for 3,000 feet of reinforced concrete pipe to be laid along Meadow Drive from North San Pedro Road to Gallinas Creek.

A low bid of $264,684 is about $55,500 more than available funds, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported. The project is funded jointly by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Santa Venetia Flood Control Zone, and the county road budget.

On a motion by Michael Wornum, the supervisors asked Frost to apply for $22,900 more from HUD, raising the federal grant from $109,800 to $132,700.

The remaining deficit would be shared equally by the flood control zone and the county road fund, each contributing $16,300.

Canada's French-speaking province of Quebec spans 594,860 square miles, almost three times the area of France itself.

30-Member Panel To Study Aid To Needy

A 30-member committee to study problems of families receiving public aid and to make recommendations to the Marin County Board of Supervisors was named yesterday by the supervisors.

The group, called Family and Children's Advisory Committee, succeeds the former Aid to Families with Dependent Children Task Force, which went out of existence last month.

On a motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors accepted a list of 33 persons who are willing to serve on the committee. Of the 33 persons, 30 will be regular committee members, and three alternates.

Here is the complete list:

From San Rafael, Lottie Mae Hall, Sue Wagoner, Alice Brown, Diane Brock, Dorothy Smith, Marion Kelley, Peter Palmer, Shirley Schell, Sandra MacLees, Anna Marie Long, Marion Barbier, Chester Villalba, Barbara Traverso, and Evelyn Plan.

From Novato, Grace Jurkowski and Eldon Hasstedt; San Anselmo, Mary Ryan and James Kilty; Marin City, Mary Brooks, Jackie Harris, and Dorothy Seales; Fairfax, Deanne Stockeland, Mary Bell and Carmen Kline.

From Larkspur, Lynne Bishop, Sabella Richardson and Jean Glascock; Mill Valley, Marjorie Harmon and Janey Rice; Lagunitas, James Copening and Winifred Frederick; Sausalito, Charlotte Jones; Nicasio, Georgette Vilas.

Attendant Finds Safe In Brush

A peeled-open safe was found Sunday in brush below Panoramic Highway near Pan Toll Ranger Station, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Park attendant William G. Shaffer was cleaning trash along the highway at 11 a.m. when he spotted the safe 40 feet down the hill two miles east of Pan Toll.

Deputies said the door had been peeled off the safe, which was a Sargent and Greenleaf model measuring 28 inches high and 20 by 21 inches wide. Inside were only two items — an empty brown drug bottle and a single stretch sock.

Deputies said the safe number was not on their lists of known safecrackings.

Display Of Fuchsias

The Marin Branch of the American Fuchsia Society will display fuchsias of Marin from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Livermore Room, Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross. Included in the show will be antique china, silverware, jewelry and linens.

McCarthy Assails Cut In Lab Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A resolution urging Congress to restore a $600,000 cut in the budget of the Marine Mineral Technology Center in Tiburon has been introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael. (Other Legislature stories, page 10.)

Citing the center's research as "necessary for the entire United States," McCarthy's resolution said that Soviet explorations of mineral and fishing wealth in the Pacific made it "imperative that our country be the first to obtain such knowledge."

The cut was more than one third of the center's operating budget of about $1.5 million last fiscal year, and 40 of the 92 employees had to be dropped. In addition, according to Research Director Arthur P. Nelson, the cut meant the 204-foot research ship "Virginia City" will be unable to operate, and activities of the center's smaller vessel, "Cripple Creek," will be severely curtailed.

The center was set up in 1963 to develop techniques to exploit minerals on and below the sea floor. It is the only federal research laboratory doing such work, Nelson said.

India has tripled the number of school teachers since becoming an independent state.

Fifth Plan Is Filed For Creek Development

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An apparently indefatigable San Anselmo developer has applied for a fifth time to the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission for a permit to fill more than half of a 96-acre marshland parcel in Corte Madera.

The application by Frank M. Burke is for the same $1.5 million plan rejected by the commission on Jan. 17. It included a marina, bayside park, motel-restaurant-shop area, fishing pier, 33 acres of light industrial sites and 44.6 acres preserved in their natural state. Commissioners' objections centered on the industrial sites, which they said could go on dry land and did not need bay fill.

A hearing on the application will be held at 2 p.m. on Aug. 7 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The parcel is at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek. Burke has an option on the parcel, owned by W. J. Heerdt of San Francisco.

Burke's first plan was largely for light industry. His second plan included a 33-acre golf course and an 11-acre marsh to be donated to the Town of Corte Madera. The third and fourth plans were similar, except that the fourth one substituted a seven-acre motel site for some of the area set aside for light industry in the third plan.

NEW NOVATO LIBRARY

This is how the new half-million-dollar Novato Library will look from the inside, with glass windows in the meeting room facing the trees along Novato Creek. This and other preliminary sketches by Mill Valley architect Claude Stoller won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. Supervisors asked Stoller to draw up final plans. The 11,000-square-foot building will have an interior courtyard, with two reading rooms and reference rooms facing the court. It will be air-conditioned, have masonry walls, and high wooden ceiling with red concrete tile roof. Total cost will be $543,900, including $134,500 for the land, a 1.5-acre parcel on Novato Boulevard west of Tamalpais Avenue.

Dedication Set Aug. 7 For Caroline S. Livermore Wall

The new Caroline S. Livermore wall bordering the Marin Art and Garden Center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross will be dedicated at 4:30 p.m. Aug 7 at the center's Oleander Bowl.

The undulating brick wall, similar to the Thomas Jefferson wall at the University of Virginia, was named in honor of the late Marin conservationist who founded the center in 1945 and was its first president. One brick thick, the wall is curved to give it necessary strength as well as grace.

The wall, built prior to the opening of this year's Marin Art and Garden Fair, is to be continued to run partially along Laurel Grove Avenue when more funds are received, Mrs. Fred Herrington, dedication chairman, reported.

Main speaker at the Aug. 7 ceremony will be Eugene A. Bechtel of Ross. George S. Livermore, Mrs. Livermore's son and designer of the wall, will also speak.

Charles Prescott of the Bohemian Club will sing "Trees" and Mrs. Livermore's favorite song, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Injuries Minor In Mill Valley Crash

Robin Hoglund, 26, of 33 Mountain View Road, Fairfax, was treated Monday for a cut forehead at Marin General Hospital following an automobile accident at Miller and Montford avenues in Mill Valley at 12:23 p.m., police reported yesterday.

Police said her car was hit by another car driven by Sidney P. Chapin, 29, of 104 Eldridge Avenue, after she had driven through a stop sign at the intersection.

Top Tam Salary Hiked To $14,950

Tamalpais High School District trustees yesterday approved a new fifth scale in the 1969-70 salary schedule for teachers which will boost top pay to $14,950 — an increase of $1,050 over last year.

The figure represents a victory for the Tamalpais District Teachers Association. In June the association won a request that salary talks be reopened after the board had already approved a 5 per cent pay hike with a top of $14,500.

The board's vote on the new scale was 3-2.

The increase is expected to add $45,000 to the district's budget figure of $3.8 million for teacher salaries during the coming school year.

The new "E" scale in the schedule, which the teachers proposed, will affect 90 to 100 of the district's 300 teachers. To qualify a teacher will need a bachelor of arts degree and 75 additional units of college work.

"This proposal is acceptable to the TDTA," said Roy Kemper, spokesman for the negotiating council.

Kemper and other representatives of the council said they considered the increase "a step toward cooperation" with the board on other matters as well.

"It gives us hope for the future," Kemper said. Teachers will now work for a revamping of the entire salary schedule and establishment of an "unequivalency policy," by which teachers could earn unit credits by participating in workshops and seminars, as well as in regular college courses, he added.

The board agreed to appoint two members to a joint committee to study the equivalency proposal with the teachers.

But trustees made no change in the so-called "D-28" classification approved in June which provides a $1,000 longevity bonus for teachers with 15 years of service who are at the top of the fourth scale.

Trustees Bette Wallace said she was delighted with the agreement reached yesterday. "I feel we all have done our damnest," she said.

Voting with her were Robert W. Corlett and Gloria Melbostad. Trustee David D. Ring voted against the increase and Frank L. Miller, who was not present yesterday, had asked that his opposition at a closed session Monday night be registered.

Mrs. Melbostad indicated possible opposition Monday after a teacher negotiator introduced into discussion some doubt as to whether the rank-and-file of teachers would really be all that in favor of the new salary scale.

She said yesterday she finally decided to vote for the proposal because she simply "had to go along in this particular case." She said, "It has been long and gruelling. We did the best we could."

Ring said he spoke for Miller as well as expressing the dissenting viewpoint on the increase. Miller was absent from yesterday's session.

"The real issue is whether the increase is a reasonable one," he said.

"I strongly believe the 5 per cent increase was reasonable and fair and proportionate to other quality districts. I think the new increase is really out of line."

However, Ring said he had hopes the opposition by him and Miller would not create "personal animosities" between the board and teachers in the future.

Teachers with a secondary credential and 60 units of additional work now will have a top of $14,500; those with at least 42 units can earn a high of $13,555; those with 24 units can receive $12,615 top, and teachers with less than 24 units can earn a top of $9,980.

Drunken Driving Sentences

Three motorists have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

John Robert Germany, 37, of 540 D Street, San Rafael, was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail, given another 90 days suspended jail term, and placed on two years' probation for drunken driving Dec. 20 on Highway 101 in San Rafael.

Arthur Scott Marsh, 48, of Richmond, was sentenced to 45 days in jail, with the remainder of a six-month jail term suspended, placed on two years' probation and fined $200 for drunken driving Jan. 9 at Third and Cijos streets, San Rafael.

Michael Carl Delilo, 30, of 366 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was given a 10-day suspended jail term, placed on 18 months' probation and fined $200 for drunken driving August 15 on Highway 101.

Order Is Lifted On Quaill Hill Grading

A temporary restraining order against dust-raising grading at the Quail Hill residential and office project at Northgate has been lifted by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Action was based on agreements signed Saturday between property owners Carl S. Vella and Selwyn Sacks and the Marco Investment Co., who filed suit against Quail Hill, Inc., Commerce Clearing House, A. Teichert and Son, grading contractor, and 100 John Does. The suit charged that dust was causing damage to properties.

Urbutt Resigns From Sanitary District Board

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board accepted the resignation Monday of member Carl F. Urbutt, who is moving out of the district, board President Cyril G. Hansen reported yesterday.

Hansen said the board expects to consider candidates for the vacancy at the next regular meeting Aug. 25.

The board also set Sept. 15 as the deadline for candidates filing for election to the three board terms which expire this year. The election is Nov. 4. Hansen said petitions will be available after Aug. 21 at the sanitary district office or the county clerk's office.

In other business Monday night, the board took no action on a request by a group of residents who live near the Old American Distilling Co. at Bridgeway and Nevada Street to provide garbage collection services.

Hansen said there was little the board could do until the future of the distillery area — which is an annexation target of Sausalito — is settled.

The board also passed resolutions maintaining current sewer service charges and authorizing final payment to Maggiora and Ghilotti of Corte Madera for completion of the Princess Street pumping station.

PICKED CREW CHIEF— S/Sgt. Willis H. Booker of 835 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, was named Crew Chief of the Month at Hamilton Air Force Base. He is assigned to the 78th Organizational Maintenance Squadron and was cited for his working knowledge of the Fairchild C-119, his job performance and military bearing.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Monagan Admits Tax Reform Is Dead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Even Republican Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan was admitting today that Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform program is dead for 1969 — barring a legislative miracle.

With the Legislature shooting for adjournment of the session within 10 days, Monagan was asked last night whether the net result of a day's angry maneuvering was that Reagan's prized program is dead for the year.

"That's right," he replied.

The GOP leader from Tracy pointed out that Reagan's program, introduced months ago, hasn't even been put on the file for a hearing in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

He pointed out, however, the fact of legislative life that "nothing is dead around here until adjournment."

But his comments underlined another fact: It would take a turnover of miracle proportions for the governor's highly publicized plan of tax increases to finance tax reductions for the homeowner to pass the Assembly and the Senate by the end of next week.

It was a united front of all 41 Republicans plus one Democrat — Carley Porter of Compton — that turned back a Democratic try last night to bring Reagan's package to an immediate debate before the lower house sitting as a "committee of the whole."

The move, which surprised and angered Monagan, was made by Democratic Assemblyman Jack Fenton of Montebello after Monagan thought an amicable agreement to end the day's angry proceedings had been reached.

Fenton said he took the action as a chance "to give all of us, members of both parties, to back what we said before . . . and go on record as for or against the governor's tax package."

Democrats had spent all day on various maneuvers they hoped would force Republicans to bring the GOP governor's tax plan to the floor.

Monagan and other Republicans have indicated it's too late in the session to pass Reagan's bills. They noted the whole plan is based on voter approval at the statewide June 1970 election, so there will be time to pass the legislation early next year.

Democrats say they can provide up to 24 votes in favor of the proposal. But, they say, a number of Republicans fear that voter reaction to the Reagan plan could boomerang against them at the polls, and don't want it on the ballot.

DISCLOSURE

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate has given final approval to a conflict of interest and financial disclosure bill which one opponent said was as hard to vote against as motherhood.

The 26-5 vote sending the bill to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk came after another senator tried to amend the bill "to make it as harmless as possible." Not casting a vote was Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Under the measure passed yesterday, all public officials—state, county and city — as well as candidates for public office would have to reveal their financial holdings in excess of $10,000, and list campaign contributions and contributors above $500.

The bill by Assemblyman Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, drew bipartisan support from 16 Democrats and 10 Republicans. All five opponents were Republicans.

Its upper house sponsor, Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, admitted, "This bill doesn't do everything, but it does some healthy things. It will let the public know what holdings we have that might influence our decisions.

Sen. Clark Bradley, R-San Jose, tried to amend the bill to limit its provisions to state officials only.

BAN LIFTED

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California voters will be able to go to the polls, bars and liquor stores — not necessarily in that order — during next June's statewide primary election.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's office said yesterday he signed a bill by Assemblyman Carlos Bee, D-Hayward, wiping out the last vestiges of the ban on the sale of alcoholic beverages on election day.

The eletion-day prohibition tradition, which covered all elections in the state when it was instituted in the 1930s, had been eroded over the years to cover only statewide elections, and then only during hours the polls were open.

The effects of the new law will first be felt during the primary next June unless any special statewide election is held before then.

One-Cent Hike In Gasoline Tax Will End On Aug. 31

SACRAMENTO (AP) — When California motorists pull into service stations starting Sept.1, they'll be pleased to learn they're paying a penny a gallon less for gasoline.

Gov. Ronald Reagan announced yesterday the temporary one-cent increase in the state gasoline tax — instituted to pay for repairs to storm-damaged roads — will be dropped Aug. 31, three months ahead of schedule.

That will reduce the levy from eight to seven cents per gallon. The tax has been in effect since June 1.

The bill enacted earlier this year by the Legislature called for the additional tax for up to six months and gave the governor the power to terminate it any time after the first month.

Reagan is attending the Western Governors Conference in Seattle. His announcement was made through his office.

He said State Public Works Director James A. Moe recommended the early cutoff date.

Reagan said that, by Aug. 31, $24 million will be raised and the additional funds, along with $1.6 million already available in flood funds, will be sufficient to repair the state and local roads damaged in last winter's storm.

The governor also said there will be enough left over from the gasoline tax income to pay for a bill now moving through the legislature which would set aside funds to pay mountain counties and cities in meeting snow removal costs.

Last winter's heavy snow burdened the budgets of about 20 counties and four cities to remove it.

Tidelands Access Effort In Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A proposed ordinance to insure public access to state tidelands was offered yesterday to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors by local conservationists.

Attorney Richard E. Day of Californians Organized to Acquire Access to State Tidelands said the proposed ordinance was offered by the group as a basis for study and discussion on access problems.

The ordinance, as proposed by the conservationists, would prohibit the development of subdivisions on the west side of Shoreline Highway unless the developers dedicate roads to the public or provide reasonable access to usable tidelands in another manner.

Day said the ordinance had been drawn up several months ago and given to Supervisor Ignacio A. Vella of Sonoma with the understanding that he would offer it to the board for discussion. When Vella did not do that, Supervisor Robert E. Theiller of Sebastopol agreed to offer it yesterday.

Not expecting rapid board action, Day said the ordinance would first be discussed by the county planning commission. He said an interpretation by the courts may be necessary later.

The organization had opposed the supervisors' action to exclude the Sea Ranch development from any future public access ordinances.

"The board set a bad precedent in ruling out public access at Sea Ranch," Day said.

Sea Ranch, owned by Oceanic Properties, Inc., is located on 10.5 miles of the coast near the Conoma-Mendocino county line.

If the earth were perfectly smooth and round, the ocean would cover it to a depth of 12,000 feet.

City Citation System A Flop So Far–Judges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A police program of issuing citations instead of making arrests for minor offenses is not working properly, judges reported.

After two weeks of the new program, judges reported yesterday that only 50 per cent of those cited had appeared in court, so the judges began issuing bench warrants.

"At least 90 per cent must show up for the program to work," said Ed Cummings, supervising police captain. "If less, there'll be more man-hours lost chasing down the bench warrants."

"However, we will give the program every reasonable means to succeed," he added.

If the plan worked, it would save police time and be less of a burden on those cited because they would not have to post bail for release after arrests.

Cigarette Foe Now Plans To Seek Only A Stiff Warning

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The sponsor of a bill to ban cigarette advertising in California yielded today to opposition and proposed instead to require a stiff warning to accompany all smoking advertisements. (Other Legislature stories, pages 1 and 10.)

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson said he will submit the amendment when his Senate-passed measure is heard by the Assembly Commerce and Public Utilities Committee later today.

He said the change substantially alters the bill that drew nationwide attention as the toughest antismoking measure passed yet by a state legislative chamber. It cleared the Senate 28-7.

But the Beverly Hills Democrat said he will strike the outright ban since the cigarette industry has voluntarily agreed to phase out its radio and television commercials by September 1970.

Joseph Mahoney, lobbyist for eight major cigarette makers, has said he would vigorously oppose the bill to ban the industry's advertisements.

Beilenson said his intentions when he introduced the measure were to stop what he called "offensive" advertising by cigarette manufacturers. He said the broadcast ban would nearly accomplish that.

However, in return for the broadcast phaseout the cigarette industry could still advertise in the printed media, which Beilenson said would be covered by his measure.

He proposed a warning recommended by the federal trade commission be tagged on to all cigarette advertisement. It reads:

"Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic brochitis, pulmonary emphysema nad other diseases."

Viet Veteran For Bomb Resumptions

By SUZANNE WOOD

A young Vietnam War veteran, who lost his legs in the conflict, last night denounced the de-escalation of the war and the current withdrawal of troops as he called for an all-out effort by the U.S. to win the war, including resumption of bombing of North Vietnam.

There was no bitterness but a sense of impatience on the part of 25-year old Peter Stark as he spoke at Redwood High School in Larkspur to a receptive gathering sponsored by the John Birch Society's Truth About Civil Turmoil committees.

"It is past time the American people demand the government lift the crippling warfare restrictions which gets thousands killed and wounded in Vietnam," said the former Green Beret who is convinced of a monolithic Communist conspiracy.

Stark, who attended the University of Pittsburgh, had volunteered for duty in Vietnam. He was there 10 months before losing his legs.

"When a man goes on the line, the whole society goes behind him," said Stark, who now travels around the U.S. giving similar talks sponsored by TACT.

Stark told his audience, who repeatedly greeted his comments with spurts of applause, that the war in Vietnam can be won or lost in three places: on the internal battleline, in the domestic conditions or in the "faltering soul of each citizen."

"These people who say stop the killing, pull out of Vietnam, just don't know what they're talking about," the young man declared, adding that the "blood bath" in Southeast Asia would just begin if the U.S. left.

Stark said he did not believe nuclear war would occur if the U.S. bombed North Vietnam because the Communist are not strong enough to want nuclear war, especially over North Vietnam.

"We can't do anything there if people are always thinking in terms of nuclear war," he said.

He went on to say the containment theory is "suicidal" because the U.S. can't do anything if it's always on the defensive and the battleground is selected by the enemy.

He discussed the communist tactics — or "Communist handiwork" — which he observed in Vietnam and he denounced as false any notions that the communists had mellowed.

"Communism has not deviated from the doctrine of world revolution since 1917, and world revolution means world conquest," he said.

As he frequently referred to documents ranging from U.S. Senate bills to Communist manifestoes, he briefly reviewed the doctrines of Marx, Lenin and Stalin which he said represented the philosophic, tactical and power bases of communism.

Stark said the Communists are encircling the U.S. geographically, isolating it politically and weakening it internally.

He said that the Communists in an attempt to make their propaganda credible have chosen American college students as their taget audience because "they (the students) like to get a hold of a cause and are politically naive."

There were few, if any college students, in the audience of more than 150.

He continued to say the American people have been "confused, misoriented, misdirected, demoralized and would be disarmed if possible."

Stark lashed out at the Soviet Union which he said is using the North Vietnamese to fight against the U.S. in the Vietnam War. And he said that with the United States' free trade policy that "western technology has made the Soviet Union what it is."

Stark attacked the Nixon and past administrations for seeing no contradiction in fighting in Vietnam and trading with Red countries at the same time. Trade does not promote peace, he said.

"I'm for peace, but I'm for liberty first," he said.

Jury Member Booked In Lewdness Probe

A member of the 1969 Marin County Grand Jury was booked at Marin County Jail yesterday afternoon on suspicion of committing three acts of lewd conduct with an 11-year-old girl, the district attorney's office announced.

Ralph Wesley Johnson, 62, of 212 San Francisco Boulevard, San Anselmo, was booked at 3:43 p.m. and released on his own recognizance at 3:45 by Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating. He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said the alleged offenses took place in December 1968, and on March 15 and May 1 this year, all in San Rafael.

Investigation started approximately a month ago, Thomas said, when the girl's family complained to Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales. Bales, Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunin, Chief Investigator Donald Midyett and Investigator John Kingston conducted the inquiry, Thomas said.

Johnson, a car salesman, is a former member of the Democratic Central Committee and former president of the Marin County Committee on Political Education, political branch of the AFL-CIO.

He is the former owner of a luncheonette in San Rafael, and earlier was a bartender at Bob's of Marin.

Johnson was arrested on suspicion of battery in August 1966, after an altercation at his luncheonette with bread delivery man Richard S. Mermin. He pleaded nolo contendere (no defense) to a reduced charge of disturbing the peace and was fined $110 and given six months' probation.

Debt-Ridden Congressman Denies Conflict-Of-Interest Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Seymour Halpern, R-N.Y., says there is no conflict of interest between his position as a member of the House Banking Committee and the fact that he has many outstanding bank loans and debts.

The Wall Street Journal, in a story published yesterday, said Halpern has debts of more than $100,000, including sizable loans from several banks.

Among the debts, the Journal said, was $10,400 in telephone bills dating back to 1960. It said also that Halpern owes thousands of dollars to caterers, friends and clubs.

The 55-year-old Halpern is serving his 11th year in the House and is third ranking Republican on the banking panel.

He was not available for comment but his office issued a statement quoting him as saying he had "never sought profit or engaged in any wrongdoing."

"I have had my share of financial problems," the statement said, "but not one iota has rubbed off on my public life."

"There has never been an iota of conflict," the statement continued. "Had I been self-seeking, I certainly would not be in debt. I acknowledge having a number of loans and several personal debts. But I am repaying them.

"And I should point out that some of those mentioned (in the Journal) have long since been cleared up. I have never defaulted on an obligation, and no one has ever forgiven any of my obligations, nor have I ever suggested any forgiveness."

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the Banking Committee, said in a statement that in fairness to Halpern "I do not want at this time to make any judgment on the allegations in the Wall Street Journal, but in all fairness it must be conceded that reports of this nature raise questions concerning legislation which has recently been approved by the committee."

Patman said "there have also been published reports of intensified lobbying pressure on important banking legislation, such as the bills to regulate one-bank holding companies."

He said he thinks it will soon be time for Congress to "decide just how far it is willing to allow those lobbyists to go in influencing national legislation."

Fairfax Home Looted; Items Valued At $2,500

Women's clothing and jewelry valued at a total of $2,500 were taken from the home of Cindy Bost, 35 Crest Road, Fairfax, yesterday, police said today.

Officers said the burglary occurred while she was at work between 7:30 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. yesterday, with entry gained through an open window.

The burglary was one of three reported today by Fairfax police.

Kim Crance of 373 Tamalpais Road reported yesterday a sofa, chair and ottoman, a chest of drawers and other furnishings valued at more than $450 were taken from the home she is moving to at 239 Scenic Road.

Police said entrance was made through an unlocked front door sometime yesterday morning.

Kathy Monica Young reported Monday her home at 95 Woodlane Avenue had been enetered and a stereo tape recorder and a sewing machine valued at a total of $500 taken. Entry was made through an open window and forcing an interior screen, police said.

22 File Suit For Credit In Cleaver Course

OAKLAND (AP) — Six professors and 16 students from the University of California's Berkeley campus have filed suit against the board of regents which denied academic credit to a course in which Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver was a guest lecturer.

The lawsuit, filed in Alameda County Superior Court yesterday charged the regents acted illegally when they ruled last Sept. 20 that guest lecturers could only appear once a quarter in credit courses.

The petition claimed the regents violated the constitutional rights of students and faculty and broke their own standing orders.

Judge Lyle Cook was asked to order credit for the controversial Social Analysis 139x course on racism in which Cleaver lectured nine times last fall.

Sanitation Budget Plan Approved

A preliminary budget of $257,775 for fiscal 1970 has been adopted by the Novato Sanitary District board, according to district engineer-manager Charles A. Joseph.

The budget is $175 less than one submitted earlier by Joseph, but $28,745 more than the fiscal 1969 budget.

It calls for a 3.5 cent increase in the district tax rate to 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. However, the 6.5 cent bond redemption tax in the Novato portion of the district is expected to drop to 5.5 cents, Joseph said after Monday night's board meeting.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

SALARIES — Raised the pay of Joseph from $1,412 to $1,475 per month and approved these other wage increases: 5 per cent to maintenance foreman William Buckingham and asst. dist. engineer Bill L. Bayles, 10 per cent to construction engineer David Sproul and 7.5 per cent to the district's nine other employees.

MONEY — Adopted a resolution transferring district funds from the County of Marin to the Novato branch of the Crocker-Citizens Bank and named Joseph as district treasurer.

MAINS — Approved plans for mains to serve Bahia unit 1-B of 141 lots, accepted the mains and treatment plant for unit 1-A of Bahia for the Union Bank of Los Angeles and approved plans for mains for 2.6 acres of low-cost federal housing at the end of Fourth Street and a short main to four lots in San Marin unit 8.

ANNEXATIONS — Approved annexations for a lot on McClay Road south of Center Road for Mario Bettini, another lot on the north side of Novato Boulevard at McClay Road for Dorothy Ruzick and started annexation proceedings for a lot on Simmons Lane at the end of Virginia Avenue for Robert J. Soderblom.

No Complaint

Pending further investigation, no complaint was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Michael Joel Marcos, 22, of Vallejo, who was arrested Saturday on suspicion of having a concealed .32-caliber pistol in his car on Highway 101.

Stretch Dollar With Beef Chuck Loaf

Preparing a good dinner takes time, but who wants to be hung up in the kitchen all afternoon? Especially during the summer when you could be outside. Instead, use the cool morning or evening hours to prepare a summer Beef Loaf.

This loaf features boneless lean beef chuck, an economical way to use your meat dollar. The beef is simmered with delectable seasonings then chopped.

Next add gelatin to the beef broth and stir in some tangy vinegar and red pepper seasoning to give it just a little bite.

Then in goes the beef and some parsley and you have it . . . a jellied beef loaf with incomparable flavor. For the artistic touch, arrange some hard cooked egg slices in the bottom of the mold before you fill it.

You can keep this loaf in the refrigerator up to three or four days. It's a delicious and beautiful entree for summer dinners or luncheons . . . and it makes fabulous sandwiches. Try slicing it in small cubes and serving on crackers or small bread rounds for a different and intriguing hors d'oeuvre. Or take it on a picnic.

CALIFORNIA SUMMER BEEF LOAF

3 pounds boneless lean beef chuck
1 quart boiling water
1 small onion
1 stalk celery
½ bay leaf
2½ teaspoons salt
4 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon peppercorns
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons vinegar
Dash liquid red pepper seasoning
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 sliced hard cooked egg

Cook beef in boiling water with onion, celery, bay leaf, salt, cloves and peppercorns about 2 to 2½ hours, until meat is tender. Cool in broth. Remove fat from surface of broth. Chop beef fine, removing all fat and gristle. There should be about 3½ cups. Strain broth. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup broth. Boil down remaining broth to 1¼ cups. Pour over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Stir in vinegar and red pepper seasoning. Add beef and parsley. Cool until slightly thickened. Arrange egg slices in bottom of 1-quart mold. Spoon gelatin over egg. Chill firm. Unmold and cut into slices to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

OLIVE GRAPEFRUIT BASKETS

2 large grapefruit
1 (7-ounce) can pitted black olives
1 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ cup dairy sour cream
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt

Cut grapefruit into halves. Using grapefruit knife, cut fruit from shell in one piece, then separate sections from membranes. Cut edge of shell into scallops. Drain tuna and break into large chunks. Combine chives cut into large pieces, grapefruit sections, tuna, celery and pimiento. Arrange in grapefruit shells. Top with sour cream mixed with remaining ingredients. Garnish as desired. Makes 4 servings.

OLIVE CUCUMBER MOLD

1 cup canned pitted black olives
1 medium cucumber
1 (3-ounce) package lemon gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
1 (3-ounce) package chive cream cheese
¼ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons prepared horseradish
Dash liquid red pepper seasoning
¼ cup chopped parsley

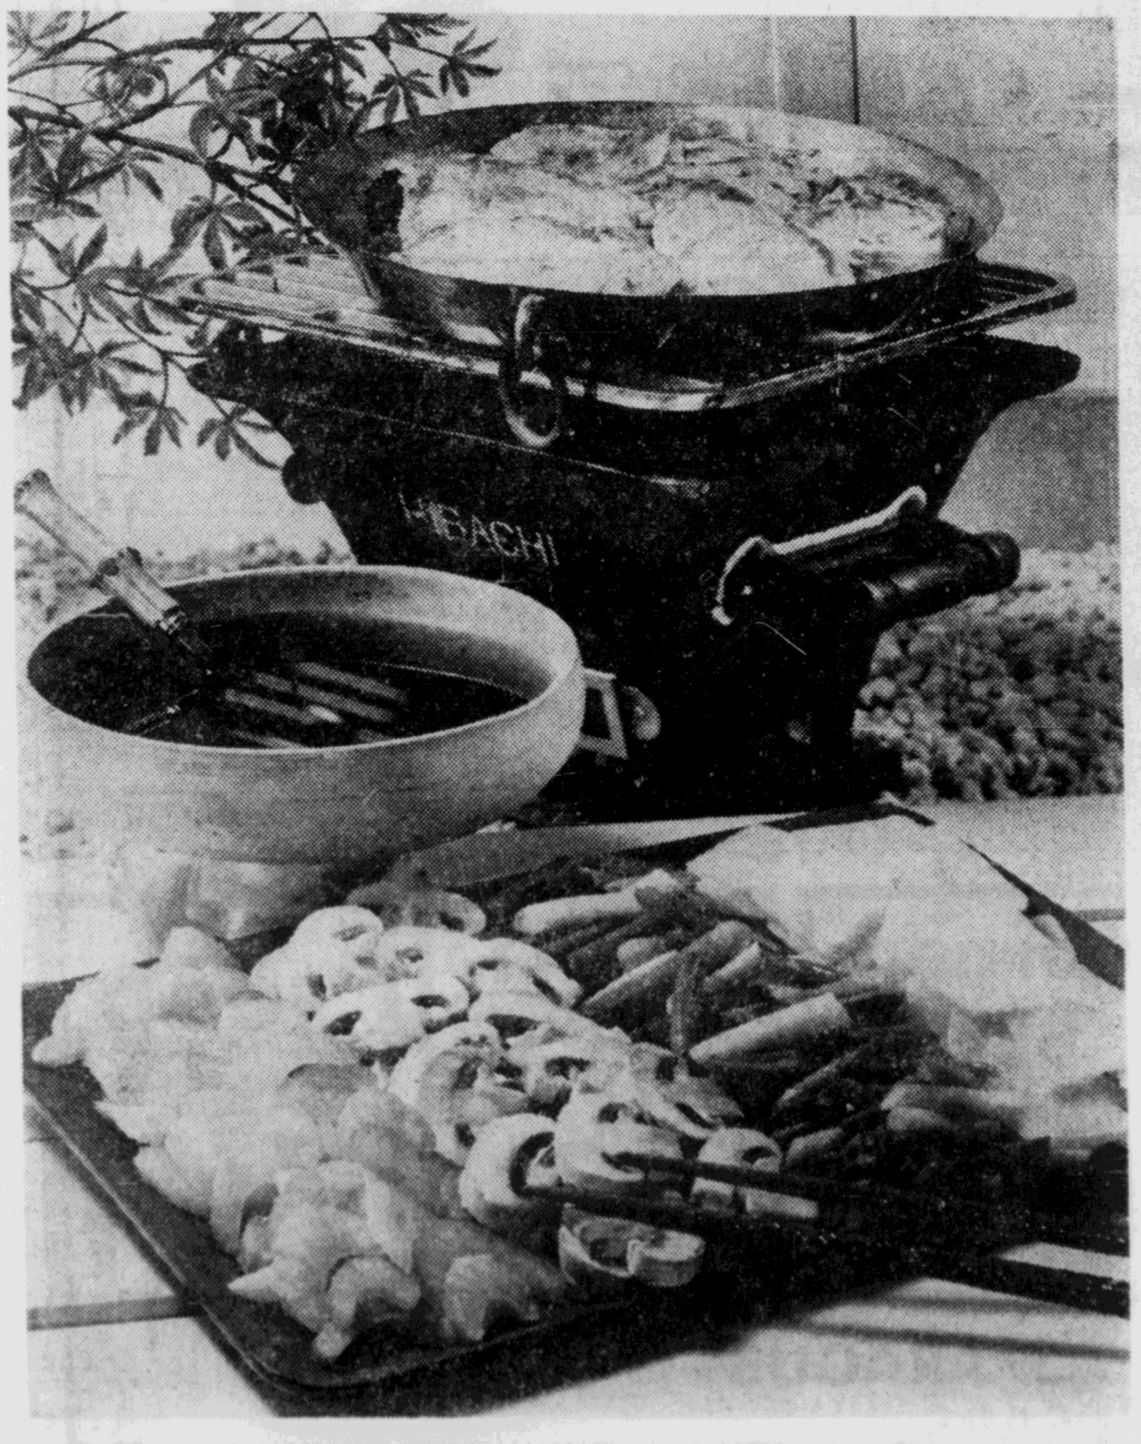
Cut olives into wedges. Pare and shred cucumber. Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add softened cream cheese beating until smooth. Stir in vinegar, horseradish and red pepper seasoning. Chill until partially thickened. Fold in olives, cucumber and parsley. Turn into 4-cup ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Makes 6 servings.

CAROUSEL SALAD

1 cup canned pitted black ripe olives
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
2½ cups water
3 tablespoons vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon liquid red pepper seasoning
2 cups small curd cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
1 cup diced cucumber
¼ cup sliced green onion
½ cup diced green pepper

Thinly slice olives crosswise. Arrange center slices in circle in bottom of 6-cup ring mold; press firmly into mold. Sprinkle gelatine over 1 cup water to soften. Place over low heat and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining water, vinegar, salt and liquid red pepper seasoning. Cool until mixture mounds on a spoon. Fold in cottage cheese, mayonnaise, cucumber, onion, remaining olive slices and green pepper. Spoon mixture into mold being careful to keep olive slices in place. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens and garnish as desired. Makes 8 servings.

THE OLIVE CUCUMBER MOLD is a cool, inviting salad for the outdoor hostess throughout the summer. It can be garnished in a variety of ways — here with luncheon meats, halved hard-cooked eggs and olives.



American Cooks Have Fun Trying Their Hand At Preparing Sukiyaki

Americans who have been to Japan are intrigued with the preparation and eating of Sukiyaki, the famous Japanese dish. It is prepared at the table in a heavy iron skillet over a hibachi, a charcoal brazier. Using chopsticks, the diners take morsels of food from the skillet while the sukiyaki is still cooking. In this way, they select ingredients cooked to the exact degree of doneness they prefer.

Sukiyaki American-style is prepared in much the same way as the Japanese do it. Paper thin slices of pork (which cook quickly and thoroughly because they're thin) and the vegetables are cooked in a savory mixture of soy sauce, water and sugar. The American influence is seen in the use of a fine Italian dressing. The pork slices are browned in it. The zestful spices and garlic flavoring found in this particular dressing add a new and original flavor to this old Oriental dish.

Sukiyaki is a different dish to serve at your next barbecue. You can make it part of a prevailing Japanese theme. The mood is set with Japanese lanterns hung in the trees, bouquets of large colorful paper flowers, cushions for seating and chopsticks for eating.

Sweet almond cakes and tall glasses of iced tea complete the menu most appropriately.

SUKIYAKI WITH PORK

¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup Italian dressing
2 pounds pork loin, sliced paper thin
1 cup sliced celery
2 cans (5 oz. ea.) bamboo shoots, drained
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 cup sliced green onions

In small bowl, combine soy sauce, water, and sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves.

In large skillet, heat Italian dressing and brown meat well. Push meat to one side of skillet; pour half of soy mixture over meat.

To other side of skillet, add celery, bamboo shoots, and mushrooms. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes. Add green onions and cover vegetables with remaining soy mixture. Cook an additional 5 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Use Little Water

Cook vegetables rapidly in as little boiling water as possible so that when they are tender, they will have absorbed all the moisture in the pan.

More Ideas For Salads At Supper

Summer is the time to make the salad something different. The meat course comes off the barbecue to be teamed with variations with the good greens available in Marin markets.

'I'd Leap At The Chance To Go To The Moon'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Like most people in the world, Mary Rae Hill is tremendously excited over man's first landing on the moon, but she has a special reason for her involvement.

"I think my boss may have a high enough scientific standing to get at least a microscopic sample of the moon material to look at," she says.

A Mill Valley resident, Mary is a geologist with the California Division of Mines and Geology and editor of its monthly publication, "Mineral Information Service." She is also a photographer and takes many of the pictures used in the bulletin.

"I'D LEAP AT the chance to go to the moon," she says, "because I'm so much interested in its geology. We published a series of articles on that about 1965."

She doesn't see much chance for women who hold this ambition, however, because she says women can't be astronauts until they can be admitted to the institutions where this kind of training is given and until they are admitted to the space program.

"An interesting thing to me about the moon," she continued, "is that it doesn't have the same kind of erosion cycle that makes rocks here on earth. When you don't have water, what kind of erosion does take place? The astronauts found hard rock — something is packing the soil, and if it isn't water, what is it? Everyone was agog when Aldrin — or was it Armstrong? — said, 'It almost looks wet.'

"I THINK THE material they gathered from the moon may give information that might make possible prediction of earthquakes, perhaps lessening their effect and even enabling the harnessing of their power. We have to learn to use the earth's own power."

Mary doesn't go along with people who doubt the value of the space program, saying that the vast amount of money it costs should be spent on the poor.

"We are already getting enormous benefits for meteorology and weather prediction from the satellites, which are giving warnings of hurricanes, and the satellites have been taking photographs that are replacing those that cost huge amounts of money when mapping is done from conventional airplanes.

"AS FOR PEOPLE who say the money should be spent on the poor, I maintain that we are doing this, because every bit of research has a great amount of direct or side benefits that raise our standard of living, lengthen the life span and create more jobs. Benefits are for rich and poor alike. You can never tell what will come of practical value from basic research such as the moon probe is."

With Werner Von Braun, Mary believes that the success of the moon venture indicates that man might one day live elsewhere in the universe.

"I believe that man, like a turtle, can take his house with him, or take whatever he finds wherever he goes and create a livable environment."

As for present limitations on space travel, she shrugs, "Now we say no one can go faster than the speed of light. We used to say man could never go faster than sound, and we conquered the sound barrier some time ago."

MARY RAE HILL, Mill Valley geologist, uses a geologic hammer to get a specimen of the Franciscan rock formation from a bank behind her home on Blythedale Ridge facing Mt. Tamalpais. The entire mountain consists of this formation, which is subject to landslides. (Independent-Journal photo by Jackie Hartman)

MARY RECEIVED an A. B. degree in geology from the University of Colorado and took three years of graduate work in geology at the University of Colorado and the University of Illionois.

Her work as editor of the "Mineral Information Service" takes most of her time, she says, and the second most time-consuming of her four current assignments for the state of California is investigating the hazard potential of the rock formations people are living on, especially in Marin.

"This is the Franciscan formation," she explains. "It is very hard rock, but it fractures easily. It extends from the Oregon border to Santa Catalina Island, and the San Andreas fault runs right through it. This is what Mt. Tamalpais is made of.

"WE HAVE TO be concerned with how severe landslides might be in it. In Marin County they happen where land has been filled or cut, and houses have been destroyed when the earth sinks."

Mary's third assignment deals with her work as one of three members of the earthquake investigation committee. In case of a quake of any magnitude in the state they have to go to the scene and make a report, submitted first to Mary's boss, state geologist Dr. Ian Campbell, and finally to Governor Reagan.

Her duties include making arrangements for study of the next quake.

A fourth assignment for Mary consists of working on a film of local interest as her thesis for a master's degree in television film making at San Francisco State College.

"I'm interested in film making as a scientific geological tool," she noted, "and how to use it to explain geology to intelligent people of different training.

"MY THESIS project is to show within a limited space of time a geologic event, and I have been working on photographing the changes that will take place within a year at Rodeo Lagoon at Fort Cronkhite."

Mary says her next ambition is to go to the Arctic or Antarctic as an official observer.

"In 1960 a women's expedition was planned," she recalls, "but at the last minute the U.S. Navy turned it down. The woman who was to have headed it was Dr. Marybelle Allen, who was living in San Rafael then. She is now head of the microbiology department of the University of Alaska at Fairbanks.

"I have never heard of a scientist being against women going to the Arctic or Antarctic — it's the Navy who is against it. I think there may be some scientists' wives going this year or next, and that may break the barrier."

MARY KEEPS in training for her strenuous field trips by getting up at dawn and hiking two miles up Mt. Tamalpais

MOST UNUSUAL of the pets that are a major hobby of Mill Valley geologist Mary Rae Hill is this little Bantam rooster she calls Louie. "I raised him from an egg," she says. The other pets are two dogs, a mynah bird, and five cats, including a 20-pounder named Greywacke, which is a kind of sandstone. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Balmain Keeps Skirts Short In His Bold, Bright Collection For Fall

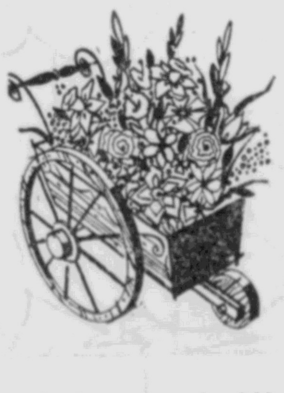
By JOAN DEPPA

PARIS (UPI) — Skirts stayed resolutely short at Pierre Balmain yesterday in one of the youngest, gayest and most beautiful collections the courturier has produced in years.

Balmain, who himself tried to force hemlines lower 18 months ago, ignored current efforts to bring back long skirts and kept his coats, dresses and suits all two to four inches above the knee.

He also bypassed the trend towards neutrals like gray and mustard in favor of bright, bold combinations of red and black, royal blue and white, brown and turquoise.

When he did use neutrals, they were dramatic or soft but never drab. One wide off-white coat had squares of gold broadcloth with their corners slashed off and black diamonds set into the space where the corner would have been.



There were lots of details, but simple, interesting details without being fussy.

For fun — but wearable fun — Balmain offered polkadotted mink. There were black polka dots on brown, black on white and white on black, used for fur coats, hats and trimming on collars and cuffs.

They were not the sort of clothes which will be copied in mass quantities by ready-to-wear manufacturers, but they were just right for Balmain's private customers like Queen Fabiola of Belgium and Queen Sirikit of Thailand.

to make your kicks and capers the most fun ever. Little skimps of cotton knit, they flirt right through summer into fall. They're perky and crisp and come in the most smasheroo colors ever. Green/navy/white or blue/brown/white stripes take over a jaunty V-neck with regimental precision. Slick railroad stripes make tracks across a short sleeve crew neck in plum/red or green/navy combinations. Sizes 5 to 13, $15.

Hypochondriacs Enjoy Being Sicker Than Anyone They Know

DEAR HELEN:

My mother is "ailing." She's been ailing most of her life, although she is as strong as a horse, when she wants to be — and she eats like one too.

If it isn't her heart, it's her liver, or her back, or some fancy name for an ailment she probably hasn't got in the first place. The doctor has never found anything wrong with her.

She doesn't have many interests, dislikes going places, sits most of the day, and won't spend her ample inheritance because she "may need it for the hospital." Her only diversion: talking to a few gossipy neighbors, when she isn't mad at them.

If I tell her she isn't really sick, she gets furious. She was this way before she lost Dad, so it isn't due to widowhood. Is there any way to change a hypochondriac? — NEARBY DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER:

Probably not at this late date. A chronic "ailer" enjoys her aches, for when she has little else to interest her, it makes her proud that she can be sicker than anyone she knows. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You said jealousy is a result of self-dislike. This is a good thought, but, in my case, jealousy was a cover-up because I was fighting a desire to be unfaithful myself. It is easy to transfer feelings we are ashamed of and guilty about to someone else, and then blame him for them.

I used to throw horrible jealous fits, cry hysterically, lie awake at night suffering over my husband's imagined infidelity. Then slowly it dawned on me that though I was happily married to an attractive and exciting man, I secretly yearned for an affair.

Yes, I gave in to my longing, and the fear and jealousy stopped. Everyone is much happier, especially my husband who comes home to a contented, loving wife. If he is unfaithful, I no longer care. I realize that we are both deeply committed to making our marriage a good one and that no occasional fling can intrude on our private lives. I feel very lucky to be attractive to another man besides my husband. If he is tired or preoccupied or worried about his job, I don't attribute it to some fault of my own, and after a while he bounces back to his old exuberant, passionate self. Meanwhile I am receiving the attention I yearn for from someone else better able at the moment to give it.

I know this isn't the answer for everyone, but it works for me. — HAPPIER WITH TWO

DEAR HAPPIER:

Would it "work" with your husband, if he found out? Seems to me a tired and worried man needs to know his wife is standing by, not lying down on the job. — H.

'Fads Out'

Designer Bill Blass built his creative reputation first in the world of women's wear. Then he turned to men's apparel. Of all fashion, Blass, with the house of Maurice Rentner, New York, says, "Costumes and fads are still absolutely out. Personally, I hate all gimmicks." And that, he added, "includes yellow shirts too."

and back before she goes to work.

Her most evident hobby at her home on Blythedale Ridge facing the mountain is pets.

These are two dogs named Serendipity and Duffy; a mynah bird named Charlie; Louie, a Bantam rooster, and five cats, including a 20-pounder she calls Greywacke — that's a type of sandstone, she explains.

MARY ADMITS geology is an unusual occupation for a woman. She chose it, she believes, because she wanted to be outdoors.

The only other women she knows in the field in the Bay Area are a graduate student at the California Division of Mines and Geology, five in the regional headquarters of the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, about three in the oil business, one or two in industry and several in teaching positions.

Two who are retired and living in Mill Valley, she says, are Mrs. Jeanine Verplanck and Mrs. Gladys Loucke.

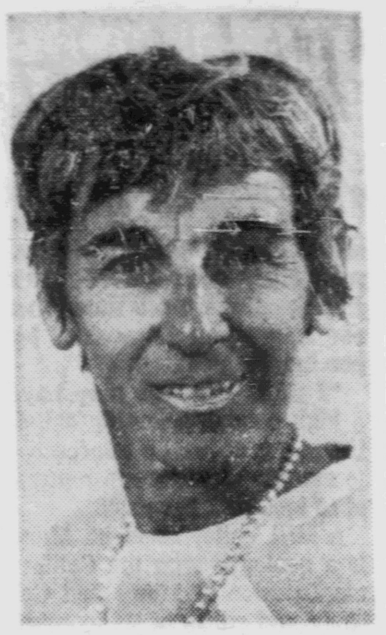
Mrs. LaNoue Heads Ice Skaters Club



MRS. JOHN D. LA NOUE

Mrs. John D. La Noue of San Rafael is the new president of the Marin Figure Skating Club, an organization for nonprofessional skaters of all ages, which promotes all forms of skating.

Marilyce La Noue previously served as test chairman and is presently attending a special judging school to become a judge in ice skating competitions. She is treasurer and a member of the board of trustees of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science and is a past president of its Fairhills Guild.

A graduate of Lincoln High School in San Francisco, the new president attended the drama school in connection with the former Pasadena Playhouse and was a professional dancer from the age of seven.

Activities she enjoys most are community projects, golf, bowling and ice skating, but she says the real skaters are the children, John, 15, and Suzanne, 16.

The family has lived in Marin County six years. Mr. La Noue is with the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company in San Francisco.

Other new club officers are Mmes. William Maley, vice president; Stanley Rutner, secretary; Verna Wilkin, treasurer; and Douglas Craig, test chairman.

Girl Scout Packing Up For Mexico

"I took a couple of years of Spanish, and it will probably come back to me," Terra Linda High School junior Jill Chesley said about her upcoming trip to Mexico.

Jill is one of 16 Bay Area Girl Scouts who will be off on their "Mexican Holiday," but the girls will also give service at a home for children in Cuernevaca, teaching songs and games to the youngsters.

They will spend six days at Our Cabana, the Western Hemisphere Girl Scout center near Cuernevaca, where they will exchange arts and crafts skills and ideas with Girl Guides from other American countries. The Girl Scouts will also visit the pyramids, cathedrals, museums and other attractions during the two weeks trip.

Jill will be on hand in Livermore for the final briefing of the group Aug. 7 and 8. The departure is set for Aug. 13 from San Francisco International Airport.

The daughter of Mrs. Dura L. Chesley of Marinwood, she is a member of a Santa Venetia Girl Scout troop and has done volunteer work at Sonoma State Hospital.

It will be Jill's first trip outside the United States, and she is looking forward to experience in a foreign country as she hopes eventually to backpack in Europe. She says that backpacking and camping as well as craft work and weaving are among her favorite activities.

"Maybe I'll make a shift to wear when we aren't wearing our uniforms on the trip — to parties and things . . . ," she finished.

Anniversary Tour Of Europe

By MOLLY MARIN

In celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casady of Novato toured Europe for three weeks. They took a four-day relaxing cruise on the Rhine docking nightly at various spots from Rotterdam, Holland to Basle, Switzerland. Their favorite city was Salzburg, Austria, Marilyn Casady said.

In Munich they rented a car and visited the medieval town of Rothenburg, which has not been touched by any of the wars in Germany. They were disappointed in the Black Forest as they think California's forests are more beautiful. They also toured France, Luxemburg and Belgium.

In Holland they met with Pieter den Heijer, the exchange student that lived with the Casadys three years ago while he attended Novato High School. He was their guide in Holland and showed them many points of interest not normally seen by the tourist. They also met his family for the first time and were entertained in the Jan den Heijer home.

Pieter pointed out the storks nests famous in Holland. The Dutch people are worried about the storks becoming extinct and when a nest was destroyed by fire, the people in the town built another nest on an adjacent building. The stork returned this spring and the people were jubilant, Marilyn said.

While in Europe, the Casadys' youngest son, Kevin, was a guest of the Eric Kollgaard family in Novato and their two older boys, Warren and Brooks, "batched and dog sat" at home.

The family home is four miles from the Belgium border, near Bonn, and while there she also visited relatives in Cologne and toured the wine country near the Rhine and Mosel river areas. It had been two years since Mrs. Trout was home and most of her time was spent visiting with her family.

Locket Look

Grandmother's locket is back with teen-agers. The teeners like the locket look engraved, stone set, antique finished, in white or yellow gold finish, often in sterling, which is attracting more and more teen attention.

FAIRFAX SHORT STOP

Police Block Effort To Close Food Store

An unsuccessful attempt to close the controversial Short Stop Market in Fairfax was made last night, police said today.

Police said about 20 persons, led by the market's neighbors, gathered to close the store at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Kent Avenue.

Previously, residents of the area had submitted a petition asking that the market be forced to cease its 24-hour operation because the middle-of-the-night noise interrupted their sleep and was creating a public nuisance.

After weeks of consideration, the city council decided on July 21 to amend the market's special use permit to allow operation from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. only.

Market officials, however, have repeatedly said the store would not be closed during the night. It has remained open since the council action.

No one was arrested in the disturbance last night, police said.

Young Musician Wins At Festival

A 14-year-old Novato boy won three trophies in the Northern California Accordion Association festival held in the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco.

He is Randy Moore, who won first place in the 14-year-old open solo competition, fourth place in the junior competition and received a trophy for technical excellence in performance. The festival was held Sunday.

Young Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dave Moore Jr. of 604 Rowland Boulevard. He represented the Joe Maggiila Accordion Studio of San Rafael.

Jail, Probation On Check Charge

Trish Jeanne Dutra, of San Francisco, has been sentenced to 30 days in Marin County Jail, placed on a year's probation, and ordered to make restitution totaling $169.74 for bad checks passed in Marin.

Miss Dutra pleaded guilty July 18 to passing one bad check in San Anselmo Feb. 17, and five other counts were dismissed. Sentencing was Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

No Charges Filed Against Youth Who Fled Accident

An 18-year-old who wrecked a car on his way to junk it fled the scene of a three-car accident yesterday even though he "knew I wasn't going to get away with it," the California Highway Patrol said today.

Kerry James Reeve of San Jose returned to the scene four hours and 15 minutes later to "see the damage" and was arrested on suspicion of hit and run. He was later released for lack of evidence.

A friend of Reeve's fled the accident scene both times.

Reeve suffered a slight injury to his left arm in the mishap, but refused treatment, patrolmen said.

Officers said Reeve told them he was driving the car to a junkyard when he apparently fell asleep and slammed into a car owned by Edward L. Shaffer Jr. of Daly City. Shaffer's car, parked near the Lowrie Yacht Harbor on San Pedro Road, rolled into a third car owned by Kenneth Wilson Jones of Burlingame.

Reeve said he was dazed and scared and as a friend, Larry Pulver, who had been driving to the junkyard in another vehicle, pulled up. Reeve jumped in and they fled.

Pulver and Reeve returned several hours after the 8:10 a.m. accident and Reeve was arrested while Pulver fled again, patrolmen said.

The car Reeve was driving when the accident occurred was registered to Andrew Moncur Gillespie of San Rafael.

WILD FLIGHT

Santa Rosan Goes Limp At Booking Desk

An unemployed Santa Rosa man was booked into Marin County Jail early today after he slugged a highway patrolman who had stopped him for speeding, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Hilton James Welborn, 30, was arrested for felony battery on a peace officer and for speeding after the incident at 2:20 a.m. today. He was held to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

The highway patrol said Welborn was stopped on Highway 101 at Grant Avenue in Novato after being chased at speeds of 80 miles per hour.

Arresting officers said Welborn tried to push a door against Patrolman Roscoe A. Ritchey Jr., 35, of 6120 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera, and then refused to sign the speeding citation.

After he was arrested and handcuffed, the man agreed to sign the citation and the cuffs were taken off and he again became argumentative, the patrol said. Welborn then struck Ritchey in the jaw, officers said.

After he was again handcuffed and seat-belted into the back of the patrol car, officers said, Welborn wriggled out of the seat belt, opened a rear door and fell out of the patrol car as it came to a stop.

He complained of a back injury and accused Ritchey and his partner of deliberately leaving the door open. When the patrol car arrived at the jail in San Rafael, Welborn went limp. He was carried into the jail, booked while lying flat on his back in front of the booking desk, then put into a padded cell.

Neither Ritchey nor Welborn was hospitalized although Ritchey suffered from dizziness and was driven home, the patrol said.

More Arson Attempts In Marinwood

Two arson attempts on vehicles were discovered Sunday in a Marinwood neighborhood where four houses have been set on fire in recent weeks, sheriff's deputies reported today.

One vehicle was the car of Robert Gehrke, whose home at 113 Blackstone Drive was burned by an arsonist July 20. The other was a van owned by James D. Ellis of 112 Blackstone Drive.

Ellis told deputies he found his van with the air cleaner removed and burned paper stuffed into the carburetor. The paper burned out without igniting anything.

Mrs. Gehrke told officers papers and letters had been set afire and stuffed into the gas tank of their car, but also burned out harmlessly.

Deputies said the papers used on the Gehrke car were taken from Ellis' van.

A 14-year-old Marinwood boy has been arrested on suspicion of setting the house fires which have damaged the Gehrke house and houses at 2726 Heatherstone Drive, 234 Johnstone Drive and 248 Johnstone Drive.

EYE LOST IN VIETNAM

GI Seeking $50,000 For Being Listed As Deserter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A young soldier who lost an eye in combatin Vietnam while listed by the Army as a deserter is asking Congress to vote him $50,000 damages.

Charles H. Bitterling, attorney for 21-year-old Wayne L. Smith, gave this account:

Smith was shipped to Vietnam from Oakland on Sept. 4, 1968. Serving as a medic, he was wounded twice. The second wound cost him his left eye.

After treatment at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C., Smith was honorably discharged last March 5.

On the day of discharge, Smith's mother, Helen Hunter, received a letter from the Army Personnel Center in Oakland saying "Our records indicate your son . . . was scheduled to report to this station for movement overseas on 4 Sep 68 and to date has not yet reported."

Bitterling said Mrs. Hunter tried to clear things up but on May 22 two FBI agents handcuffed Smith in his front yard and attempted to take him away.

While the shaken soldier protested, his sister, Sharon, rummaged through the house, found Smith's discharge papers and showed them to the agents.

"The FBI then let him go and called up the next morning and apologized about the mistake," the lawyer said. "Probably someone just left a name off a roster.

"But it caused this boy a lot of humiliation, to be arrested and dragged off in front of his family. They think he was a hero in Vietnam and here they come, arresting him as a deserter."

The government cannot be sued without its consent, Bitterling explained, so a petition seeking a special $50,000 damage appropriation has been filed with Congress and forwarded to House Speaker John W. McCormack.

Hub Fireman Added; First In Eight Years

One fireman was added to the San Anselmo Fire Department last night — the first to be added since Fire Station 2 was opened in 1961.

The San Anselmo City Council approved the addition at a budget session saying the cost would be $6,568 or 2.5 cents on the tax rate.

A motion to add two firemen, requested by Fire Chief Francis A. Sousa, was made by Councilman Robert M. Scott but this died for lack of a second.

The council added $485 to the fire budget to move a fire hydrant from San Anselmo Avenue and Pine Street across to Bank Street and then adopted a total fire budget of $310,189.

Councilmen approved adding one female night clerk-dispatcher to the police department at $7,500 to free a patrolman to be out on the street. Chief Raymond R. Buchagnani said this, with two other clerk-dispatchers already employed, will enable him to have clerk-dispatchers around the clock five days a week.

Also approved within the $281,060 police budget was $325 for an IBM typewriter, $840 in increased allotments for uniforms and an increase of $100 for painting police department offices.

In a five-minue soliloquy, Fred Lancelotti of 169 Crescent Road in the audience urged the council to spend more money on police and fire protection. He said that he hasn't been able to sleep for the last two weeks because of some of the characters he's seen in the Foothill Road area.

The following budgets were also approved by the council: animal regulation, $4,000; civil defense, $200; city attorney, $13,620 which includes a $3,000 hike in case it is needed for vagrant cases, and non-departmental, $21,590.

The sum of $1,523, earmarked for a microfilm reader-printer, was stripped from the nondepartmental budget by a 3-2 vote, Councilmen James F. Reed and Kenneth L. Anderson voting "no."

The council referred to staff a request from the chamber of commerce that city crews be used to erect Christmas decorations, chamber manager William A. Trewhella saying this would save the chamber $800.

Administrator - controller Alfred C. Kaeppel told the council at the start of the session that, at that moment, the 1969-70 tax rate was $2.245 per $100 assessed valuation or one cent less than last year's rate. At the conclusion of the meeting, he told the Independent-Journal that the rate had increased to about $2.30.

Another budget meeting will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at which time public works and capital improvements outlays will be considered.

In action separate from the budget, the council voted 3-2 to approve a resolution and authorized spending $23,700 for condemnation proceedings to acquire two pieces of property for redevelopment of the Hub intersection.

Theft Suspects' Trial Date Set

Jury trial for three of four Novato men charged with stealing lumber was set for Dec. 1 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Rodney J. Arnold, 19, Mitchell D. Samios, 21, and Fredrick C. Geiger, 21, pleaded innocent and were given the trial date.

The fourth defendant, Michael M. Marks, 21, was to appear in court today.

The four were arrested July 17 when police saw a car without lights drive away from a Pleasant Valley construction site at 1:38 a.m. Police reported finding 38 two-by-fours in the car.

$630 Given For Black Aid Programs

Novatans for Racial Equality has voted to contribute $630 toward black aid programs, including $10 in behalf of the Black Panther Party breakfast program in Oakland.

Elizabeth Smith, secretary of the group, said the group was unaware of the Black Panther breakfasts in Sausalito at the time it made its donations last week.

The largest contribution, $600, went to Operation Give A Damn at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City. Ten-dollar contributions also went to the National Council of Negro Women in Mississippi and the Education Corps in Greenbrae.

Much of the money came from the booth which the organization operated at Novato's Western Weekend, Mrs. Smith said. The group grossed $1,046 and made a net profit of $562, she said.

The group also has new officers. Richard Kuhn is president and Ray Johnson, vice president. Dianne Graham has been named recording secretary and Nancy Kuhn, corresponding secretary. Carol Wierbinski will handle publicity.

Four board members are at large, Jonnie Bell Wright, Richard Langtry, Raleigh Floyd and Elaine Nix. The new officers will hold their first meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Richard Kuhn home at 363 San Luis Way.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet flotilla which visited Cuba last week now appears to be conducting antisubmarine warfare exercises in the Gulf of Mexico, the Pentagon said today.

The Pentagon said a Soviet cruiser and two accompanying destroyers at last report were about 380 miles west of Key West, Fla. Two submarines, a submarine tender and an oiler are within 50 to 60 miles of the three warships.

Whole Family Hooked On Rebuilding A Vintage Car

By TOM COCKRELL

In the 1920's they were the mile-a-minute car, 2,900 pounds of big bore engine, artillery type wheels and nickel-plated fittings that a Literary Digest advertisement brayed were "now on the crest of a permanent wave of success."

In 1940 they were thirsty derelicts that sold for $200 on the back lots of used car emporiums.

Today they are about as extinct as the mastondon.

But for a bearded, 36-year-old San Rafael mechanic and auto body owner, one 1925 air-cooled Franklin coupe is almost a full-time job, a superannuated version of the busman's holiday.

Douglas L. Shaffer and his wife, Georgia, are working night and day in Doug's Auto Body Shop at 37 Duffy Place to get every one of the big machine's 3000 separate parts cleaned, sanded, primed, painted and back together again in time for the annual concours d'elegance March of Dimes benefit at Peacock Gap Country Club Aug. 10.

"We'll make it — if I have to work 25 hours a day to do it," says Shaffer.

It all began 18 months ago when Shaffer, who owns nine vintage and classic cars, bought the prize piece of his collection.

"When he started taking that Franklin apart I felt like a widow," said Mrs. Shaffer. "He began bringing parts home and I guess I got hooked too."

Together the husband-and-wife team whose home is in Fairfax figure they have put in 1,000 hours on the full restoration job, most of it in the Duffy Place garage.

Collecting old cars is part hobby and part mania. Shaffer fondly blames the man who got him started two years ago, James Webb, a San Rafael businessman, artist and designer.

"I haven't felt the same about Jim since," he says, recalling his three trips to Eureka Fields to haul home model A's, the purchase of a 1914 white truck, a 1953 Packard Caribean, a 1941 Lincoln Continental and a 1919 Dodge tourer from a Petaluma man.

Shaffer also owns a 1949 Willy's jeepster and a 1935 International pickup truck.

Always on the lookout for a likely derelict, he carries a polaroid camera he uses to snap photos in fields, wrecking yards, behind famhouses.

Becoming car poor, however, is not one of Shaffer's worries. Oldcars, he says, are like a portfolio of stocks, a form of insurance. They only increase in value.

Car collecting does have its pitfalls.

Shaffer once had a 1932 Cadillac roadster in the shop that needed a lower door panel repaired for rust. He sent the door to a metal shop. The shop lost the door.

Shaffer said he advertised all over the United States, finally found a man in New Hampshire with the right door. The only trouble was he had to buy the whole car.

To Shaffer, old car collecting is an intensely personal hobby.

"It's like a painting, a work of art," he says. "I couldn't sell the Franklin. If I restore a car myself, I keep it. It would be like selling one of my own kids."

And that isn't likely, since the Shaffer children — Kerry, 16, Jeffrey, 12, Gordon, 8, and even 7-year-old Teresa — have all pitched in to help clean car parts and spruce up the big wood spoke wheels on the Franklin.

Restoring the big Franklin — which was billed as a lightweight in its day — meant tearing it right down to the drive train, Shaffer said.

One problem occured when it was found the car was missing a grill shell ornament, a small lion. It had to be specially cast.

Why all the fuss?

Simple, says Shaffer. He will be faced with a team of judges who will poke and prod every inch of the car. The scramble for points at car meets like Peacock Gap is intense and professional.

"That car has to be factory fresh. If you have to spend eight hours scrubbing a piece of copper tubing with steel wool, then that's what you do," Shaffer said.

Canal Area Teen Needs To Be Eyed

Teen-age recreation needs in the Canal area of San Rafael will be outlined by Robert Schoen before the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission at its 8 p.m. meeting today. Schoen operates a barber shop at 175 Belvedere Street.

The commission will discuss building plans for a new community recreation center, tentatively to be located at Albert Park. It will also hear a proposal for a code of operations manual presented by Andrew J. Snyder, parks and recreation director.

Hottest writer-showman of all time now at Forest Meadows Theatre

If you are hip to humor, action, and language which can raise both your hairline and your understanding, then it's time you endowed Forest Meadows with your presence.

For there, under the green bay trees, is the coolest playwright who ever murdered boredom.

This season he's doing it through three plays which will 1(test your laugh-center, 2(titillate your dramatic juices and 3(make you feel as sharp and intelligent as you know you are.

The problem is, are you going to let yourself get trapped into doing things that don't promise half as much fun? Such as beer-drinking, TV watching, or slapping mosquitoes on the patio? When instead you SHOULD be sitting down to a marvelous evening of entertainment in the equally marvelous theatre at Forest Meadows?

Think about this. Our playwright is here only for the summer. He has other commitments . . . being the most popular writer showman of all time.

So, talk to your husband (or wife). Tell the kids, too. Then phone in for reservations.

Let's not keep Shakespeare waiting.

Board Turns Down Fair-Marin For Larger Auditorium Stage

Marin cannot afford to enlarge the stage area in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center when it does not even have the money to complete the second phase of the auditorium, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared yesterday. (Other Supervisors stories, page 6.)

Futhermore, architect Aaron G. Green and his associates and the county administrator said they find the Marin auditorium stage adequate to handle nearly all major traveling shows including operas, musicals and concerts.

The board of directors of Fair-Marin Inc., and Leon Kalimos, executive director recommended that the stage depth be expanded by 15 feet and ceiling height raised by 17 feet and asked for cost estimates on the proposed changes. They charged that the stage size is inadequate, and Marin will lose some of major shows.

Officials of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation and Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella gave a "very rough, horseback estimate" that the changes could add $250,000 to the $2.5 million auditorium.

George C. Izenour and William Wesley Peters, theater designers for the foundation, presented detailed figures showing how the expansion of the stage would mean drastic changes in the entire auditorium because each portion is finely balanced to provide proper accoustics and multi-use of the auditorium.

The first phase of the auditorium, now under construction, has 800 seats, and Fair-Marin Inc., plans to raise another half-million dollars to complete the second phase to bring the total seating to 2,100.

Campanella said he had got in touch with various theaters operators and designers from New York to Arizona and found that the Marin auditorium stage is adequate for most shows. He declared he can see "no cost benefit justification" for spending $150,000 to expand the stage by 15 feet and raising the ceiling at another $100,000.

Harold Stockstad, president of Fair-Marin, and director Stephen Zellerbach challenged the accuracy of the $250,000 estimate, but the supervisors replied they must go by the estimates unless Fair-Marin directors can come up with contrary evidence.

The architects and the Fair-Marin officials disagreed on the adequacy of the Marin auditorium stage.

The architects said the stage is comparable to the Gammage Auditroium at Arizon State University where major symphony, orchestras, opera and ballet companies from throughout the United States have performed satisfactorily.

Campanella said the Marin stage is almost identical in size to the Curran Theater in San Francisco.

"Last week, the manager of the Curran said the theater is too small," replied Stockstad.

On a motion by Supervisor Michael Wornum and a second by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors voted not to expand the stage. However, they agreed with Campanella that the architect should look into four other less costly changes suggested by Fair-Marin.

These would be the adequacy of plug-in amperage available on the stage, a place for costume storage, improving the stage floor "bounce", and enlarging the loading door from the present eight by ten feet to 10 by 15 feet.

The vote was 4 to 0, with Supervisors Louis H. Baar absent.

Sausalito Admits Mistake In Arrest Over Leaflets

Sausalito made a mistake when it arrested Frances Steadman of Corte Madera Sunday for passing out anit-ABM leaflets, Sausalito City Atty. Leland H. Jordan conceded yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Jordan said U. S. Supreme Court decisions have made it clear antipamphlet ordinances cannot be applied to pamphlets about religious, social or political causes.

On Jordan's request, Judge Peter Allen Smith dismissed the complaint against Mrs. Steadman of handing out leaflets without a city permit. The whole proceeding took about a minute.

Arresting officer Steven Willis "acted on an ordinance covering all leaflets," Jordan said, but "on the basis of recent Supreme Court decisions we can't proceed."

Mrs. Steadman complained Monday she was dragged to a patrol car and handcuffed with hands behind her back after being arrested.

Sausalito police Capt. David Malkin said it is department policy to handcuff all prisoners for the safety of police and prisoner.

Mrs. Steadman was with other members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom when arrested.

Her attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of Fairfax, said the dismissal clears the way if Mrs. Steadman wants to sue Sausalito for false arrest, as she indicated Monday she would.

Bayonet Suspect Is Bound Over

After a preliminary hearing yesterday in Marin Municipal Court, Dean Plagowski, 34, was bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial on charges of assaulting a policeman and brandishing a bayonet July 22 in Sausalito.

Plagowski, of no known address, reportedly terrorized pedestrians with the weapon before police subdued him.

He was ordered to appear at 9:30 a.m. Monday in superior court for arraignment.

JUVENILE HALL

Many Teeners There Because Aid Needed

ance, and a study to produce a report to provide better understanding of the child in court.

The teen-agers and pre-teens who are detained come from all socio-economic groups, but definite statistics are not kept on their backgrounds.

Mostly, Marin juveniles in trouble are emotionally disturbed rather than hard - core criminals, said Latty.

They all have certain things in common such as their constant craving for love and affection, he said. Most are also scared and lonely. Many have problems with school, one of the chief reasons the population is higher in winter than in summer.

The young people talk freely of their problems, the reasons they are in Juvenile Hall and why, in many cases, they're not likely to leave very soon.

Sally, the pretty girl who said she "needed help," has been in and out of Juvenile Hall for two years and disagrees with the whole concept.

"If someone runs away or has problems with their families, you shouldn't lock them up," she maintained. "Take them to a place where they can talk to someone — a help center."

Has Juvenile Hall done Sally any good? "It gives you time to think about yourself. I've become a lot more mature," she mused.

Another girl, however, said, "It makes me build up feelings of resentment toward people — parents."

Another who indicated it may have helped was a long-haired boy, detained for a variety of offenses involving burglaries and drugs.

He said it has made him realize "you've got to make decisions yourself. They try to help you make the right decisions but it's still up to the person."

He admitted his current decision making revolved around the possibility he would be committed to the California Youth Authority or a single alternative placement out of state. "I've just got to get away from all my friends, otherwise I'll keep doing the same things," he said.

Boys and girls alike agreed Juvenile Hall is boring. "It's like a rest home," one boy said. "The most difficult part of being at Juvenile Hall is not knowing what's going to happen to you," said another.

"I just don't think about it," said a thin girl with long, lank hair.

All agreed they would rather be outside, but also agreed they wouldn't run away because they don't want to "blow it."

Counselor William Pinnard noted, "The kids we're set up to work with are not splitting." The others, he said, ought to be in the county jail.

Striking among the young people we interviewed was the number who had been in and out of the hall for years. One explained that once you've been in the hall it is unhappily easy to return.

Ronald B. Jenkins, supervisor of the senior boys unit, said many keep coming back because they feel secure. "It's home here," said Pinnard.

Last month, 177 young people were admitted to Juvenile Hall and 179 released. Average daily population was 52.

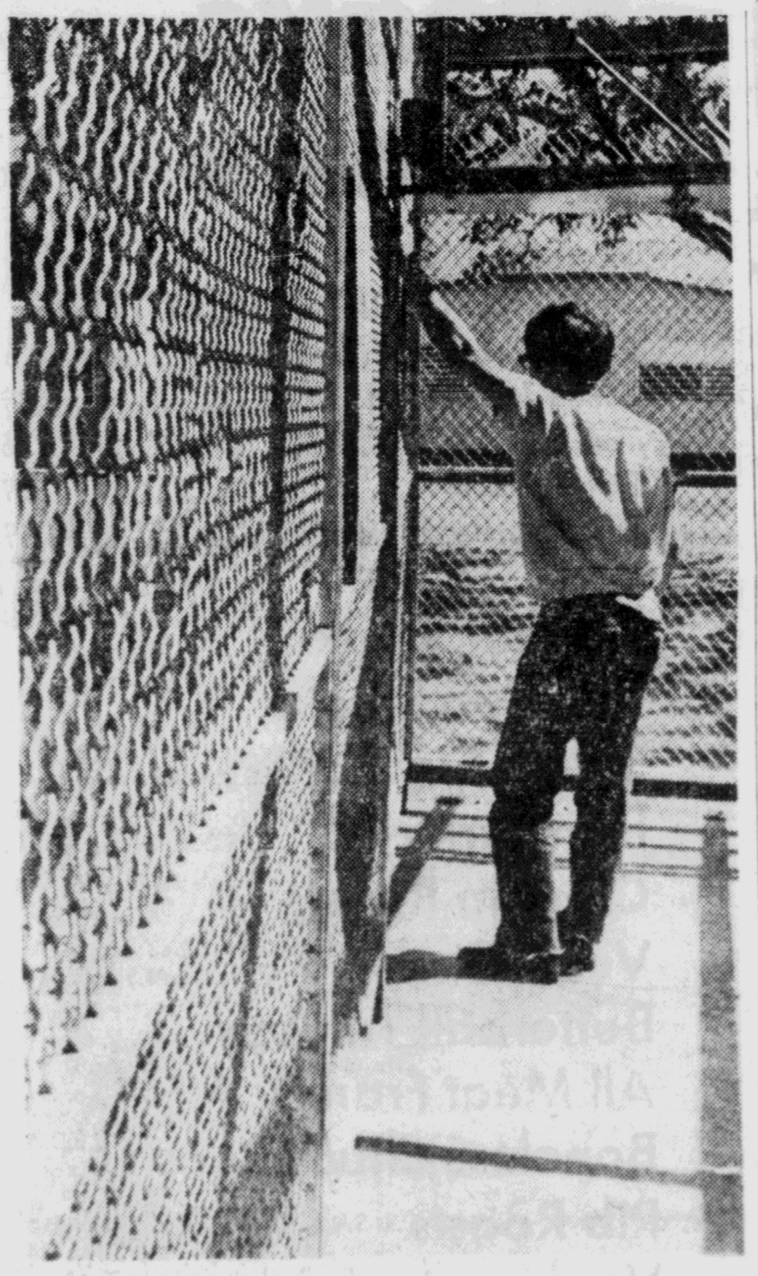
Admissions included 42 beyond parental control, 40 runaways, 29 liquor law violations, 13 each of auto theft and burglary, seven each thefts, curfew violations and disturbing the peace, six marijuana offenses, six dangerous drug or narcotics violations, two assaults, one each forgery and malicious mischief and three miscellaneous such as holds on request of other jurisdictions.

The continually shifting population adds strains to the already complex operation. The changes can stem from the shifting population as well as internal problems.

The swift changes of mood were graphically illustrated one day recently in the girls unit. The group was fairly happy during the afternoon and had talked the counselors into considering a short co-ed program that night.

Then, two girls received an LSD tablet from a former resident of the hall returning for group therapy. They shared it.

Counselors picked up on the illegal activity almost immediately and as word filtered through the group the atmosphere grew tense.



The girls were subdued, talking quietly among themselves.

Ironically, the girls' supervisor, Milton P. Shimabukuro, had said earlier in the day drugs were the thing that worried him most in having girls return for therapy.

Probation Chief John W. Brewer said he questions the value of having former residents return, although a national trend is developing in that direction.

He said it is one of the areas that will be thoroughly investigated with the new superintendent, Erick F. Yarchin of San Anselmo.

No one at the hall, however, expects ever to be able to keep drugs out of the hall, despite strict security measures which include stripping and searching whenever a resident returns from the outside.

However, the young people, counselors and administrators reported drug use is decreasing, inside and outside the hall. In January, 20 were admitted for some kind of drug use. Last month there were 12.

Mother And Girl, 5, Hurt Near Petaluma

A Windsor woman and her daughter were injured yesterday at 4:15 p.m. in a car-truck accident on the Petaluma-Valley Ford Road, west of Petaluma.

Lois Merritt, 48, and her daughter, Candy, 5, were treated at Petaluma General Hospital for head cuts. The California Highway Patrol said they had been passengers in a car driven by Judith Gilbert, 19, of Santa Rosa, which was struck from the rear by a milk tank truck driven by Alfred Munson, 40, of 915 Fifth Street, Petaluma.

Hospital Tax Rate Is Lower

Marin General Hospital District's tax rate will drop by 4.5 cents per $100 assessed value this year, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

Last year's rate of 8 cents will drop to 3.5 cents for the 1969-70 fiscal year, largely because the hospital district will need far less capital improvements this year, Mitchell explained.

Last year's hospital budget was $369,000, most of which went for land acquisition to increase parking space. This year's budget request was reduced to $190,760.

The hospital tax is levied throughout the county except for the Novato area served by the Novato Hospital.

MOTHER JAILED

Boy, 6, Found Chained In Crate

BLYTHE (AP) — The mother of a 6-year-old boy found chained inside a packing crate in a desert commune near Blythe has been jailed on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of her son.

Meanwhile, the child, Anthony Saul Gibbons, is recuperating at a receiving home in Indio. He is in good condition and "doing fine," said a Riverside County Probation Department spokesman.

Mrs. Beverly June Gibbons, 36, of Vidal, was arrested in Blythe yesterday while talking to Jeffrey Thomas Flynn, 22, identified by police as a member of the commune.

Flynn, of Vidal, was also jailed. He was accused of endangering the health or life of a child, the same charges filed earlier against six men and two men commune members, now free on $5,000 bail. A preliminary hearing in their case will be held Aug. 13.

Police said they are seeking Mrs. Gibbons' husband, James, identified as a Los Angeles County probation officer, for further questioning.

A detention hearing was scheduled to determine whether to return the boy to his parents. Capt. Ronald Bickmore of the Blythe sheriff's office said he would recommend to the court that Anthony and his sister, Tammy, 11, who also lived at the commune, remain under county care. He did not elaborate.

Tammy is with her brother at the Indio home.

Anthony was found Saturday by officers chained by the left ankle to a heavy steel plate inside a wooden crate six feet by six feet.

Bickmore said the boy claimed he had been chained because he set fire to the commune's living quarters — a quonset hut and other makeshift buildings — on about May 20.

The boy said he had been chained for nearly two months. Bickmore said Anthony's story was supported by his sister.

He said none of the commune members arrested would give statements about the boy's treatment.

Bickmore said Anthony was discovered by unidentified horse buyers Saturday. They reported they found the boy chained inside the box which was "crawling and swarming with flies."

Officers at the scene found a filthy mattress, wash basin, coffee container, drinking container, and uncovered gallon can in the crate.

They reported the boy was in good condition despite his imprisonment and temperatures they speculated climbed to more than 120 degrees inside the crate.

Bickmore said Anthony was apparently given food and water regularly and released from the box once a week to take a shower.

Gibbons and his wife, who are separated, told officers Tuesday they boarded Anthony and Tammy at the commune last February because they "liked what this group was doing."

Gibbons said his son was not chained when he visited the commune about two weeks ago.

Bickmore said the commune, on a 20 acre site about three miles west of the Colorado River, was set up by youths who apparently migrated from Los Angeles several months ago.

Bickmore said the commune's members did not dress or look like hippies "but they had the same philosophy, perhaps."

He said they tried unsuccessfully to farm and were raising chickens, pigs, cows, sheep, and horses. The horse buyers who discovered the boy were there to look at the commune's stock.

The eight commune members were taken into custody Monday, and Bickmore said more arrests are possible.

Light Planes' Collision Kills Six In Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)—Two light planes collided with a "big bang" in flight over Boise today and crashed, killing all six occupants.

One, a Cessna 190 with two men aboard, crashed near downtown Boise and only 100 feet from a kindergarten where 14 children were playing.

The other plane, a Beechcraft, crashed behind a home in a well-to-do residential area on the northern outskirts of Boise. All four aboard that plane were killed.

The two persons aboard the Cessna were tentatively identified as attorney Eugene Smith of Boise and B. P.W. Clapin, a Boise pilot.

Smith was a former prosecuting attorney of Ada County and the son of retired Chief Justice E. B. Smith of the Idaho Supreme Court.

The Beechcraft, believed to be from Oregon, struck a guy wire when it crashed behind the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Deusen.

The crash started a grass fire that blackened the side of the hill behind the home and burned bushes right behind the home.

Three bodies were found inside the wreckage and one was on the ground beside it. All were burned.

The Cessna was one of a flight of Boise Chamber of Commerce members returning from a fly-in breakfast tour to the primitive back country.

The plane did not burn when it crashed. A piece of the plane struck the home of Mrs. Gardner Parsons but did little damage.

Pound Probe To Follow San Francisco Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn asked the district attorney's office yesterday to look into the operation of the city pound by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Mendelsohn, chairman of the supervisors' health committee, made the request after a five-hour public hearing on the SPCA's operations.

He said witnesses had alleged criminal activity in the disposal of dogs and cats. Mendelsohn said there was no proof of wrongdoing, but that an investigation should be made.

Twenty-five witnesses appeared, accusing the SPCA of mass destruction of cats and dogs on July 3, improper use of its animal death chamber, and inadequate veterinary services.

Charles W. Friederichs, executive director of the SPCA, denied the charges.

The key witness was Dennis Mazer, a former SPCA kennelman suspended for insubordination. He said he was suspended when he protested the mass destruction of cats and dogs on July 3. He said the animals were killed in violation of a required 96-hour waiting period because SPCA officials knew kennelmen were preparing to strike for union recognition.

Mazer also said dogs and cats were piled one atop another in the chloroform and vacuum death chambers and that dead animals are left in the machines while new animals are put in to be gassed. He said sometimes the machines aren't emptied for weeks.

Friederichs said it was "absolutely false" to say animals are piled into the machines, and "utterly ridiculous" to charge that an order to destroy all strays and owner-surrendered animals was given before the strike.

Car Rolls On 101; Teen-Ager Hurt

Steve Jay Friend, 17, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was slightly injured early today when his car rolled on Highway 101 near Lucky Drive, the California Highway Patrol said.

Friend, who was alone in his car when the accident occurred at 3:25 a.m., complained of a pain in his right knee and went to his own physician, officers said.

The youth apparently fell asleep and the car left the road and rolled, patrolmen said.

MARINER CLOSES IN ON MARS

Reagan Names San Rafael Man To Drug Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A San Rafael resident was one of two men named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the newly created advisory committee on drug manufacturing.

The Marin resident is James E. Tingstead of 19 Pueblo Court. He is supervisor of the pharmaceutical technology laboratory at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

Tingstead previously was employed for 10 years as manager of pharmacy research with the Upjohn Pharmaceutical Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Regan's other appointment was Irving Porush of Los Angeles, director of quality control and analytical chemistry for Riker Laboratories in Northridge.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Starvation And Malnutrition May Stem From Low Incomes

VAN DELLEN

To the best of my knowledge, there is no evidence of widespread starvation in this country, but there are people who do not get enough to eat. Current studies of low income areas show that many consume diets containing 50 per cent of the foods considered adequate in calories, iron, and vitamins A and C. One-third of the children under 6 years of age are anemic because of iron-poor diets.

But despite obvious malnutrition, many of these people are in better health than those in hunger areas abroad. According to Dr. Arnold E. Schaeffer, writing in Nutrition Today, this stems from America's "pure water, a safe food supply, excellent sewage disposal, and good medical care." Malnutrition per se is bad enough, but it is much worse when combined with filth and "the stressful insults of a hostile environment."

THIS MAY explain why there is very little actual starvation or severe vitamin deficiency diseases. Being poor means that they have very little money to spend for groceries. But this is only part of the story. Many poor people do not know what foods to buy or how to cook them. This was the rationale of school lunch programs. At least the children got one good meal a day.

When Orville Freeman was secretary of agriculture, he wrote a letter to the editor of Science relative to hunger in the United States. "We are now reaching 20 million children with school lunch programs of which 2.5 million are fed free lunch or pay a token price. Our combined food stamp and commodity distribution program now reaches a million people in 2,400 counties . . . We are now furnishing 22 foods under our commodity distribution program with a maximum value of 1,600 calories."

THE FOOD INDUSTRY must be encouraged to fortify more edibles with vitamins and minerals. Since enrichment is no longer stressed, there has been a growing tendency to omit these essentials from staple products.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MILK

J. M. writes: Television and billboard advertisements tell me that a person never outgrows his need for milk. On the other hand, some doctors say "no milk" because of its cholesterol content. I am 42 and have always loved milk, but recently switched to the 2 per cent type. I would appreciate your comments.

REPLY

The fat in milk is a saturated fatty acid and if you have a problem along this line, switch to skim milk which contains all of the nutrients found in milk but none of the fats.

LEG CRAMPS

D. M. writes: Could nightly cramps in the calf indicate Buerger's disease? There is no trouble during the day.

REPLY

Not as a rule. Poor circulation due to arteriosclerosis or Buerger's disease may produce pain in the calf, but the symptom usually occurs after exercise and is relieved by rest. Continuous pain develops in the foot and calf when the circulation is further reduced. It may be mistaken for cramping but usually is present day and night.

RAW SPUDS

A reader writes: Are raw potatoes considered poisonous?

REPLY

No. Although raw starches are more difficult to digest, they are not harmful.

ULCERS

T. K. writes: What makes an ulcer perforate?

REPLY

Ulcers are craters and when they grow deeper are likely to break through or perforate the wall of the stomach or duodenum. As a result, acid leaks into the abdominal cavity and produces a chemical peritonitis. Perforation may be the first sign of ulcer. In other instances, perforation occurs because of dietary neglect or lack of treatment. A perforated ulcer is a surgical emergency.

HYSTERECTOMY

A reader writes: Is the heart beat irregular after a woman has undergone a hysterectomy?

REPLY

It could be, but not because the uterus was removed. There are many different types of heart irregularities and this woman should consult her physician.

MEASLES

Mrs. R. A. writes: Is ordinary measles as harmful as German measles to a pregnant woman?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge, although statistics along this line are meager. Most women have had regular measles long before reaching the marriageable age.

COLICKY PAIN

A reader writes: Can gas spasms in the colon be referred to as colic?

REPLY

Yes, especially when severe. The term is used more commonly in referring to the bowel discomfort many infants develop.

CONFUSION

A reader writes: I'm a 62-year-old widow with low blood pressure. I get spells of confusion lasting two or three minutes. During these bouts I don't know where I am and lose track of time. I wonder if I ought to continue driving my car?

REPLY

Leave the car in the garage until the cause of your blackouts is determined. Low blood pressure is not a factor but circulation to the brain may be disturbed or you may have a low blood sugar or epilepsy.

PHLEBITIS

E. L. writes: Is it safe to expose a leg to the sun that had a serious thrombosis a year ago?

REPLY

Yes, provided exposure is gradual so that the skin is not burned.

OLIVE OIL

A reader writes: Is cooking in olive oil permitted on a low fat diet?

REPLY

Yes.

ROAST BEEF

A reader writes: My roommate keeps telling me that rare roast beef is better for us than beef that is well done. I disagree. However, it is a bit of a problem to cook one roast and have half of it come out rare and the other well done.

REPLY

Properly roasted beef, be it rare, medium, or well done, is similar in nutritive quality. However, when it is too well done, the meat loses some of its juiciness. Why not get two steaks instead of a roast? Cook one rare and cremate the other one.

Today's Health Hint — Plastic wading pools without covers should be cleaned at frequent intervals.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Some Series Are Just Plain Bores

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The tipoff to television's prime time is not how many series you watch with avid pleasure or active dislike, but, rather, how many you simply disregard because of dullness.

Since I earn my living watching the tube, I am required to tune in most of the shows if just for a few minutes now and then—that is, once they have had their premieres and run for a while. Until that time, it is only fair to view them with some regularity.

Once they have had a fair shake, however, it would be unmitigated mental cruelty to force anybody to sit through all of the prime time series with regularity. And so I can tell you frankly which shows leave me totally unmoved, and which I watch least of all throughout the year.

I don't remember the last "Peyton Place" for more than two or three minutes at a stretch for the last few years. Same goes for "The, Big Valley" and "I Dream of Jeannie."

I don't rememer the last time I saw "Hogan's Heroes," but whenever it was it certainly was too recent. Funny Nazis never amused me and never will, and it took some time before my violent dislike of this series finally ran down into total lack of feeling for it.

The Doris Day show lost me about five minutes after it went on the air, and, curiously, despite some good episodes, I hardly ever watch "The Virginian" more than briefly.

"The Mothers-In-Law" was a void so far as I was concerned, and the same for "My Friend Tony" and "Land of the Giants" and "Get Smart."

I feel nothing special when I turn in "Adam-12" or hayseed stuff like "Petticoat Junction" and the other similar series.

Lawrence Welk is very professional and a nice man, but I just can't make it through one of his hours — not at all way. "The Dating Game" and "The Newlywed Game" hold me for about a minute each time I tune in.

"Gomer Pyle" just isn't up my alley, and I have absolutely no feeling for anybody or anything in "The Wild, Wild West."

The trouble with television, really, is not that it's bad—because it's often good—but that there's just too much of it, too many hours, and the odds are simply against it.

49er Coach Impresses Head Of Goldrushers

For a man who spends most of his waking hours on green turf, Coach Dick Nolan of the San Francisco 49ers doesn't let any grass grow under his feet.

Take that observation from Mr. Price Hall of the Franciscan Savings and Loan Association, Tiburon, who just returned from the Niners' training camp at Santa Barbara. A season ticket holder since the team's inception in 1946 and recently elected acting president of the newborn Marin Chapter, 49er Goldrushers Club, Mr. Hall couldn't wait for the 1969 season to begin so he spent the weekend rubbing elbows with his favorite athletes.

And, he came home quite impressed with Mr. Nolan, now in his second year at the helm. Hall, who has viewed most games from the stands, was fascinated with a close look at Nolan's coaching methods which include the use of a computer.

Charts Tell Team's Reactions

Says Hall: "Nolan has been making charts of players' actions for the past several years on certain downs in regard to position on the field, both by yard line and hash mark, point of time in the game and the score. He told me that he had concluded that the constant factor in forecasting plays was the coach or the coaching system. He found that by charting more than one year he could predict the team reaction to a given situation and then, relating his finding to the strengths or weaknesses of an individual key player, he could successfully defend against the play. This could succeed or fail depending on the skill and execution of the defending player. Nolan found that by relating the tendencies evident in a five-game study they were almost identical to the findings over a five-year period.

"When he came to the 49ers he acquired a computer to lighten this tremendous amount of paper work. He found that by using a card punched with eight factors he could accomplish in 30 minutes what had taken him 40 hours."

System Has Improved Alexander

Hall discussed Nolan's system with retired linebacker Matt Hazeltine, the Tam High graduate who is now doing public relations work with the 'Niners. "Matt told me that a good example of the success of the system," said Hall, "was the actions of Kermit Alexander during the latter half of last season when, after absorbing the system, he intercepted more passes than ever before and was a much better defender.

"Matt also said that, in his opinion, Kermit and Jimmy Johnson were the best pair of corner defenders in football. He qualifies this by saying that several of the best defenders had retired or slowed down considerably while K and J had improved. He also said that, prior to Nolan, he did not believe that Kermit had had sufficient good coaching."

Hall, a perennial optimist, feels the 'Niners should show a marked improvement now that they've had time to absorb Nolan's coaching technique.

Now, if we can find a socket at Kezar and teach that electronic brains how to block and tackle . . . Socket to 'em, 'Niners.

Dillon Headed For Santa Clara

RUSS DILLON, one of Marin's hottest baseball prospects who pitched Novato High to the Marin Athletic League title this year, has signed a letter of intent with University of Santa Clara. Meaning the Atlanta Braves, who drafted him, will have to wait in line.

THAT FAMILIAR-LOOKING man umpiring third base at last Saturday's Marin Little League District championship game in Corte Madera was Jim ("Dating Game") Lange of television fame. A resident of Lucas Valley, Lange has been active in the Marinwood-Lucas Valley L.L. program when he isn't commuting to Los Angeles videoland.

SWIMMER TERRY SHISTAR of San Anselmo, a U.C. Berkeley coed, has been training in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for next month's 11th International World Games of the Deaf in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Her mother, Mary Lou, who will accompany the 125 U.S. athletes as a member of the medical staff (she's a registered nurse), says the team will depart New York next Tuesday for Europe. Mrs. Shistar sends thanks to all Marinites who contributed to Terry's Travel Fund.

Sharon Walsh Helps North In Team Win

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Northern California, Western and Southern California gained the semifinals in the U.S. National Intersectional Girls Team Tennis Championship yesterday.

The matches were shifted to indoor clay courts after being held up several days by rain.

Northern California defeated the Southern Lawn Tennis Association 5-0, Western defeated Texas 4-1 and Southern California downed New England 4-1 to gain the round of four. The other semifinal berth will be filled Wednesday when Florida plays Middle Atlantic.

Eliza Pande defeated Tuppey Dougherty 6-1, 6-1 to lead the Northern California sweep. In the other matches, Martcie Louis defeated Jean Shapiro 7-5, 6-4; Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, defeated Linda Wert 6-3, 6-0; Gail Hansen defeated Sis Kibler 3-6, 6-3, 6-1; and Brenda Garcia defeated Mary Miller 6-3, 6-4.

Cathy Bemme defeated Emily Fisher 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 for the only Texas victory against Western.

Sohner In Key Playoff Game

Sohner Tree Service softballers will battle the Sebastopol Merchants at Petaluma's McNair Park tomorrow night in a playoff for the championship of the Petaluma "A" League at 7:30.

Sebastopol won the first half of league play and the Treemen were unbeaten in the second half.

Novato Babe Ruth Stars Do It Again

Novato's Babe Ruth All-Star team is only a step away from becoming the Northern California Babe Ruth champion.

The All-Stars could take care of that tonight when they meet the winner of a losers-bracket game at 8:30 in the Northern California Babe Ruth championship tournament at Auburn.

Novato became the only remaining unbeaten club in the tourney last night on the strength of a convincing 3-1 victory over Yuba City. Either Yuba City or Auburn, who play off at 6 o'clock tonight, will provide the opposition in the 8:30 game.

Impeccable relief pitching and clutch hitting by Randy Jackson and Hoza Wright turned the trick last night for Novato.

Marty Moroski, a straight A student at Novato High School, bailed out wild and wooly starter Greg Mazeres in the second inning against Yuba City after Mazeres had given up a hit four walks and committed two errors, letting in Yuba City's only run in the first inning.

From there on in, Moraski shut the door on Yuba City, not allowing a single hit or run, allowing only three runners to reach base, striking out ten batters while walking only two in five and two-thirds innings of heavy relief work.

Novato, trailing 1-0, tied it in the third when Jeff deRecat walked, Steve Judnick singled and Jackson doubled for the game's only extra base hit, driving in deRecat.

Novato went anead in the fourth when Moroski singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Wright's single.

In the sixth, Dennis Stanley and Wright hit back-to-back singles, with Stanley eventually scoring from third on a passed ball.

Novato collected seven hits, two each by Wright and Jackson.

In two games, Novato pitching was allowed only one hit and no earned runs at Auburn. Judnick hurled a no-hitter in an opening-game win over Menlo Park Sunday.

Unlikely Heroes For A's

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's are getting help from some unlikely people in their drive to overtake the Minnesota Twins in the American League west pennant race.

For instance, rookie left-hander Vida Blue beat the New York Yankees, 6-5, last night for his first major league victory.

And the winning runs were provided by seldom-used Ramon Webster who brought home two runs in the eighth inning with a pinch hit triple and then scored the winnings himself on Bob Johnson's single.

Of course, there's also a familiar name in the Athletics' big surge — Reggie Jackson. He drove in two runs for Oakland with his 40th homer and a fielder's choice. The homer put him 23 games ahead of Babe Ruth's pace but one game behind that of Roger Maris.

The A's, who still trail the Twins by three full games, despite winning 14 of their last 17 games, meet the Yankees again tonight with Chuck Dobson, 12-7, pitching against Fritz Peterson, 10-12, of New York.

THANK THEM ALL

Blue pitched the first eight innings against the Yankees. It was a loser when he left the game, but Oakland scored three runs in the last of the eighth off ex-teammate Jack Aker to win.

"I wanted to thank everyone of those guys who helped me win," the 23-year-old Blue said.

"Just think, I beat the Yankees for my first major league victory."

Webster, who had struck out in his previous three trips to the plate as a pinch-hiter, whipped Akers first pitch for a triple.

"I figured he would throw a sinker ball because that's his best pitch," Webster said of Aker. "I'm a low-ball hitter and it was his strength against mine."

"I'm happy I did something to help the team. It's been a long time."

Bulldogs, Rockets Win Junior Soccer

The Bulldogs downed the Trojans 5-1 and Rock's Rockets topped the Independents, 1-0, in a pair of San Rafael Recreation Department junior soccer games at Vallecito Junior High School yesterday.

Francisco Cepeda and Bill Mejia scored two goals each for the Bulldogs while Julio Mestre scored the winning goal for Rocks Rockets.

ANGER AND PAIN

Hundley Mad At Mays, Willie Hurt In Big Slide

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo is mad at umpire John Kibler. Randy Hundley is mad at Willie Mays. Mays isn't mad at anyone but he's nursing a pair of sore knees.

The entire incident came about in the seventh inning of yesterday's game in which the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

With Bobby Bonds on first via a single and one out, Mays laced a drive into the right field corner to score Bonds with the tie-breaking run.

Willie stretched what should have been a double into a triple and when Kibler called him safe, Santo, the Cub third baseman, blew his top.

Moments later, Willie McCovey, who earlier had hit his 32nd homer, hit a sacrifice fly to Billy Williams in left field. Mays came tearing home and bowled over Hundley to score the insurance run.

Mays, however, had to leave the game with an injured left knee and a scraped right knee.

"No," said Mays later, "It's not serious. I don't need any X-rays. Don't know if I'll play tomorrow. I'm not that smart. We'll just wait and see. Williams made a great throw and if I had slid, I think I would have been out because Hundley would have blocked the plate."

"Hogwash," said Hundley. "I gave him the plate. I'd be stupid to try to block the plate on a long play like that. I don't know what he had in mind but he'd have scored easily if he had slid. There was no call for him to come in at me like that."

As it turned out, Mays could have been out at third or the plate and it wouldn't have made any difference since the Cubs didn't stir the mildest of uprisings against Frank Linzy who won easily in relief of rookie Ron Bryant.

With the series squared at 1-1 and the season series between the two teams standing at 3-3, another meeting was on tap today with Gaylord Perry (12-7) going for San Francisco against Dick Selma (10-4).

Will NBA, ABA Merge?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Basketball Association and the National basketball association may merge within 30 days, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

A merger would be similar to that of the American and National football leagues, the story said.

Reportedly the older, established NBA made the first overture to the younger ABA, with the aim to end a war that has sent player salaries soaring.

The report says a source close to the situation revealed, that the ABA has received a proposal from the NBA featuring three main points.

1—There would be separate leagues, but beginning next spring there would be a common draft of college seniors. After the ABA has been upgraded to a competitive level with the NBA, there would be a championship series between the leagues.

2—The Los Angeles Stars and Oakland Oaks, both of the ABA, would be relocated. Presumably, because the New York Nets are physically based on Long Island, each league would keep its "New York" team.

3—Each ABA franchise would pay the NBA indemnities, possibly as much as $500,000.

A merger would also presumably end a number of suits now pending that involve both leagues and several individual teams.

One unidentified owner was quoted as saying if there is a merger, it would come before Sept. 1.

The report said that Paul Caruso of Beverly Hills, Calif., who is the attorney for the ABA's Los Angeles Stars, was visited at his home two weeks ago by three NBA owners: Sam Schulman of Seattle, Dick Bloch of Phoenix and Franklin Meull of San Francisco.

None could immediately be reached for comment.

Bill Russell Will Retire From NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Russell, player-coach of the world champion Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association and one of the game's all-time greats, is retiring, Sports Illustrated said today in a copyrighted article.

Russell wrote that he "no longer feels the urge to compete." The 35-year-old Russell went on to say:

"There are professionals and there are mercenaries in sports. The difference between them is that the professional is involved. I was never a mercenary. If I continued to play, I'd become a mercenary. I'm not involved any more . . . I've lost my competitive urge. If I went out to play now, the other guys would know I didn't really care. That's no way to play—it's no way to do anything . . .

"You can bet I'm going to do something that will call on the kind of energy I've been using in sports for the last 20 years." In the meantime, he said "I'm going to become the hottest 6-foot-9 black lefthanded 16-handicap golfer to come along in years."

Russell's contract still has one year to run.

In Boston, however, a Celtics spokesman said the team has no knowledge of any resignation.

"As far as I know," the spokesman said, "There has been no official resignation by Russell. He may have resigned to Sports Illustrated—but not to the Celtics."

Russell was reported en route back to the West Coast where he has been making television shows since end of the basketball season.

Once Great Don Drysdale Throwing With His Heart

CHICAGO—When the Giants arrived in Chicago for their four-game series with the Cubs, the Dodgers were still in town. In fact, they were in the same hotel both clubs use for their Chicago headquarters. The Dodgers had a day off Monday so they spent it in Chicago instead of rushing on to their next stop in Pittsburgh.

Don Drysdale was in the lobby and, as always, was an easy fellow to interview. Big D naturally is concerned that a damaged right shoulder may prematurely end his major league career that began 14 seasons ago. But at the moment he was very happy because once again he was back in action.

THIS SPRING Drysdale fell into the dugout chasing a foul during an exhibition game in the Astrodome. A muscle deep in the right shoulder was torn. He was on the disabled list three weeks, returned to action but still wasn't right. He had a 4-3 record on July 3 when the arm went bad again and that was the last time he pitched until he faced the Cubs last Sunday and beat them 6-2 although he lasted only the minimum five innings to qualify for the victory.

"WHEN I went out there," said Drysdale, "I wasn't sure how much the arm would hurt. I didn't have as much pain as I've had. The arm felt fine.

"When I went into the clubhouse I didn't put as much ice on it as I usually do. I didn't want to take the chance of having it stiffen up too much and not being able to throw loose the next time."

RON SANTO hit a homer off Drysdale in the third inning and Billy Williams ended his day's work with another to lead off the sixth.

"As soon as Williams hit it I knew that was as far as I was going to go."

Concensus of the Cubs was that Drysdale's snap is gone. "He wasn't Drysdale — not the way he used to be," was the way Glenn Beckert summed up Cub reaction. "He gave me pitches I should have hit."

DRYSDALE ACKNOWLEDGED that his fast ball refused to move as it once did for 3,000 innings during which he recorded 209 victories.

"I was throwing as hard as ever but I couldn't put much on it," he said.

SOME SAID he still throws a fast ball — but in his heart. Others said Drysdale got by the Cubs with his great competitive spirit.

Nobody ever questioned the stout competitive heart of Drysdale, especially old Seals Stadium fans at 16th and Bryant Streets in San Francisco where Drysdale sidetracked the Giants on their way to a pennant in late September of 1959.

THE GIANTS were two games in front with eight to play when the Dodgers came in for a three-game series. Drysdale walked the first three men he faced in the opener. He struck out the next three — Orlando Cepeda, Willie Kirkland and Daryl Spencer.

Then the Dodgers swept the series, moved into first place, one game ahead of the Giants, and ultimately beat the Braves in a playoff for the pennant.

For the first time in three weeks a Cincinnati Reds pitcher didn't leave for an early shower . . . the same couldn't be said for the thunder in the Atlanta Braves bats.

The Reds edged to within three games of the Braves in the red-hot scramble for the top spot in the West Division of the National League with a 4-2 victory over Montreal last night behind the steady four-hit pitching of left-hander Jim Merritt.

San Francisco stopped Chicago 4-2 in the only afternoon contest while the Los Angeles Dodgers split a twi-night doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates, losing 4-2 in 10 innings before taking the nightcap 6-5.

The Giants are two games behind the Braves while the Dodgers are a game back.

St. Louis blasted San Diego 10-4 and the Houston at New York twi-nighter was rained out.

The Braves lost a chance to gain ground when they exploded for seven runs in the second inning and were leading 8-0 after three innings over the Phillies in Philadelphia when the rains came. After a wait of 52 minutes, the umpires postponed the twi-night twin bill and the Braves avalanche of base hits was washed out.

In Cincinnati, however, Reds Manager Dave Bristol didn't mind his lack of a shower until after the game.

"Did you notice I didn't go to the mound at all tonight," Bristol remarked after the game. "Matter of fact, it might have been the only time I haven't gone to it this season."

It was the first complete game by a Red starter since July 8. And only the 13th complete game by the Cincinnati staff. Merritt owns five of them as he upped his record to 10-4.

Pirates Purchase No-Hit Bo Belinski

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said today they have purchased Bo Belinsky, who pitched a no-hitter in his rookie year, from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

The Pirates said Belinsky, purchased outright for an undisclosed price, will report to Pittsburgh within a few days.

Belinsky notched his ninth consecutive victory Monday night and has a 12-5 record in the PCL, tops in the league. His earned run average is 2.86. He appeared in 23 games.

Belinsky started the year with the St. Louis Cardinals, then was released.

Gary Lewis Returns To Camp

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Gary Lewis, a running back, reached the San Francisco 49ers training camp yesterday after completing Army duty.

Lewis, a fullback, had been due Monday but got a delay from Coach Dick Nolan for "personal and business reasons."

Dick Withcer, a wide receiver, suffered a slight ankle sprain in a Tuesday workout which officials said would make him miss today's scrimmage at Thousand Oaks against the Dallas Cowboys.

But back at work was Stan Hindman, a defensive end who sat out some of Monday's workout because of a knee twinge.

Stabler Leaves Oakland Camp

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Former Alabama star quarterback Kenny Stabler has quit the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League "because "there's not much sense in staying in it if I wasn't enjoying it."

Stabler, the Raiders' second-round draft choice two years ago, said he was not displeased with his treatment at Oakland but simply was tired of playing football.

"I know that it's hard to tell a football fan you're tired of the game," Stabler said in a telephone interview. "I'm not tired of football, but I am tired of playing football. I just hope that people will understand."

Stabler was to have played Saturday night in an exhibition game in Birmingham against the Kansas City Chiefs.

The left-handed quarterback said he started to wait until after Saturday night's game in Birmingham before quitting, "but that seemed like a phony thing to do."

"I kept asking myself on the plane coming back if I was doing the right thing and I feel like I have," Stabler continued. "I may regret it later, but I don't now."

McLain, Lolich Get Double Twin Trouble

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tangling with a pneumonia bug and the Minnesota Twins on the same day can bring the toughest Tiger to his knees. Denny McLain isn't even certain which hits harder.

McLain was sent home from Minnesota last night . . . with a touch of pneumonia, according to a team spokesman . . . after being shelled for nine runs in 4⅓ innings as the Twins completed a 5-2, 11-5 doubleheader sweep over the Detroit Tigers.

Dr. Len Michienzi, a Minnesota club physician who examined McLain, prescribed rest for the Tigers' 15-game winner, who was running a high fever.

"I haven't felt very good for three, four days and knew something was wrong," McLain said before leaving for Detroit. "But this isn't an alibi for losing. I had pretty good stuff, but every ball they hit was a shot."

The Twins cuffed McLain, 15-6, for 11 of their 17 hits in the nightcap after prevailing over 14-game winner Mickey Lolich in the first game. They hadn't beaten either of the Detroit aces since the 1967 season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland nipped the New York Yankees 6-5, Baltimore downed Kansas City 4-1, California topped Boston 4-3, Washington trimmed Seattle 4-2 and Cleveland won a pair from the Chicago White Sox, 34- in 11 innings and 9-5.

QUITE ILL

McLain, won 31 games last season and has sparkled again this year despite arm trouble and dental problems, was "quite ill" before the Tigers left Detroit Monday, his business partner, Stan Drall, said last night.

The Twins, beaten eight times in succession by the 25-year-old right-hander, raked him for seven runs in the fifth inning, Tony Oliva's two-run tape-measure homer keying the uprising. Rod Carew stroked two singles in the inning and Leo Cardenas and Ted Uhlaender each drove in two runs.

In the opener, Lolich worked seven innings and allowed just five hits. But one of them was a two-run double by Oliva and another was a two-run homer by Carew . . . the first home run off the Detroit southpaw this season.

SOCCER — AMERICAN STYLE — Members of the Bulldogs (dark jerseys) and the Rock's Rockets go after a soccer ball in a senior division game of the San Rafael Recreation Department's summer soccer league. The Rockets and the Bulldogs battled to a 1-1 tie recently, assuring the Rockets of the league title.

New Junior Soccer League Successful In San Rafael

Soccer, that most continental of sports which failed as a big-time American operation, seems to be flourishing as a San Rafael-Terra Linda youth enterprise.

The San Rafael Recreation Department's first stab at a summer youth soccer league will put the finishing touches to its first season tomorrow evening at Vallecito Junior High School with final play in its junior division for boys in grades eight through ten.

There is also a league for boys in grades 11-12 up to 19 years old, which wound up play yesterday, also at Vallecito.

The program, with groundwork laid by the physical education departments at Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools, met with considerable success.

Program director Bob Vasser of San Rafael reported that some 55 boys in the senior division and 35 more in the younger group reported out after a preseason clinic.

It hasn't just been a matter of some inexperienced novices getting together for a series of basically clumsy games. Most of the youths out for the two leagues have had some contact with the sport, either by experience in the San Francisco junior leagues or through school classes. At both San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools, the sport is reported to be the most popular during phys-ed periods and that includes such old standbys as baseball and basketball.

Terra Linda is planning on having a regular soccer team of its own, pending approval by the board of education.

The Rocks Rockets win the senior division with a 4-0-1 won-lost-tied record, representing mostly Terra Linda youths. The Bulldogs, a San Rafael entry, finished second with a 3-1-1 record. The Trojans were third at 2-3 and the Independents finished last at 0-5.

Some of the outstanding players in the league have included Julio Mestre of the Bulldogs and Rick O'Rourke of the champion Rocks Rockets.

The junior league has been plagued by a rash of recent forfeits and the standings are in a jumble.

However, even when designated teams don't show up to make an official game, there are enough sideliners to keep some informal action going.

MAY MUSHROOM

Vasser has been heartened by the spectator turnout for most of the games. He figures the program is a success and will mushroom next summer

"The turnout has really been gratifying," he said. "Most of the credit ought to go to the physical education departments of Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools."

Vasser is a San Francisco State graduate, who played three years of varsity soccer ball. He's also a member of Teutonia German Club soccer team, has coached the Olympic Club soccer team and is vice president of the Northern California Junior Soccer League.

BUDGET CUT

Sonoma To Review Athletic Future

The future of intercollegiate athletics at Sonoma State College is being reviewed by the college's athletic board with all efforts being made to sustain the program, according to President Ambrose R. Nichols Jr.

Acknowledging the many complaints issued by Marin and southern Sonoma County residents over the proposed curtailment of the program, the president said the student-faculty board would review the scope and funding available for the program.

The directors of the Associated Students had slashed the budget of intercollegiate sports to $8,800. Athletic Director G. Edward Rudloff has requested $16,000 and said the fund cut would ruin plans for the stepped-up women's sports program and the college's planned debut in intercollegiate football.

After a series of meetings, the board is expected to recommend to the athletic department what added funds are needed or to what degree the program must be curtailed.

President Nichols said that student body president James G. Gillette and Rudloff are in agreement as to the importance of the college's participation in sports in the Far Western Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and expect that Sonoma State will field teams during the 1969-70 academic years.

Marin Quartet Wins In Junior Tennis Tourney

A quartet of Marin County aces marched into the third round of the 11th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt Tennis Tournament at the Mill Valley Tennis Club yesterday with second-round victories.

Bob Klyce of San Rafael, the champion of the recent Marin County tournament, downed Ben Cator of Sacramento, 6-2, 6-0 and Mill Valley star Andy Moffat wiped out Mike Towne, 6-4, 6-2 in boys 18. San Rafael boys 16 champ Bill Kinser downed Paul Bartolini of Mill Valley, 4-6, 9-7, 6-2 and Jerry Suyderhoud of San Anselmo took out Mark Rod Rodnick of Tiburon, 6-1, 6-3. Losing in boys 16 was Eugene Kilgore of Belvedere.

Steve DeMartini of San Rafael lost in boys 14 singles, as did Jeff Beritzhoff of Mill Valley. Dan Tierney of Tiburon won in boys 14.

New York A 13-Point Favorite

CHICAGO (AP) — The betting gentry warily is making the New York Jets little more than an early two-touchdown favorite over the collegians in the 36th All-Star Football Game at Soldier Field tomorrow night.

The Jets, propelled by Super Bowl hero Joe Namath, could win going away in the first appearance by an American Football League club in the colorful classic long dominated by champions of the National Football League.

But a certain maystery hovers over All-Star Coach Otto Graham's All-Star squad which has been drilling at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

The NFL holds a 24-9-2 edge in the All-Star series.

Graham has assembled a 50-player squad without such bickering top pro draftees as O.J. Simpson of Southern California, Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Joe Greene, heralded defensive tackle from North Texas State; split end Ron Sellers of Florida State, and tight end Ted Kwalick of Penn State.

The odds-makers are uncertain whether a collegiate squad, still packed with 17 of pro football's 26 first-round draft choices, can come up with more voltage than the Jets expect.

DEFENDER — Donald M. Bekins of Belvedere will open defense of his national Triton Class sailing championship in a series of races this weekend on San Francisco Bay, hosted by the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere. Bekins, national commodore of the Triton Class (28½ feet in length) scored an unprecedented "sweep" of honors in 1968 by winning the class's perpetual trophy and Bay Area title in addition to his national title. Others competing in the nationals this weekend are Gene Yates of Ross, representing the Sausalito Y.C., Frank Lossy of the Berkeley Y.C., John Neidringhaus of Chesapeake Bay, and Dick Marshall of Puget Sound.

WESTCHESTER OPEN

Golfers Eye Richest Pot

The pro golfers go after the tour's richest purse—$250,000—tomorrow in the Westchester Classic, and one of the game's leading figures says they haven't yet touched the mother lode.

"Some day—not so far away—a man will come to the 72nd hole and line up a putt worth a cool million dollars," predicted Fred Corcoran, the tournament director.

"Twenty-five years ago I said golfers on the tour would some day be playing for a million dollars a year. Most people thought I was crazy. They said it was a pipe-dream.

"Now they are playing for more than $6 million, and the end of the rainbow isn't in sight. I can forsee the day that rich sponsors and the television networks will get together for a tournament that could stagger the imagination.

CHOKING PRICE

Right now, the golfing gypsies must be content to play for Westchester's $250,000, with $50,000 going to the winner. "I think I've found my choking price," millionaire Arnold Palmer once said as he took aim at the rich prize.

It's one of the season's most illustrious fields, including defending champion Julius Boros; the 1967 victor, Jack Nicklaus; U.S. Open titleholder Orville Moody; Masters champion George Archer; the new British Open king, young Tony Jacklin of England, and Monday's Canadian victor, Tommy Aaron.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

As In Industry, Division Of Labor Important Bridge Item

Much of our industrial prosperity is based on the division of labor: you do your work, and the other fellow does his. Bridge prosperity is based on the same principle. You get no bonus if you do the other fellow's work.

LOOKED GRATEFUL

South looked properly grateful as he won the first trick with the ace of clubs. He then had the satisfaction of drawing all the missing trumps in three rounds.

Declarer led a club to the king, ruffed a club, returned to dummy with the ace of hearts to ruff another club and got back to dummy with the ace of diamonds to cash the last club. He could then afford to give up the last three tricks.

West did declarer's work when he opened the queen of clubs. North's bidding indicated club length and fair strength in the red suits. South's bidding showed an independent spade suit with not enough in the red suits to welcome a no-trump contract. (Actually, three no-trump would have been the best contract.)

West should have foreseen that South would try to use dummy's clubs. The red suits were obviously the weak points in South's armor.

RED LEAD

West could have defeated the contract by leading either a diamond or a heart. Since a heart lead looks dangerous from West's point of view, he should lead the eight of diamonds.

If South plays a low diamond from dummy, East wins with the king of diamonds and may return either a diamond or a heart.

IMPORTANT THING

The important thing is to knock one of the red aces out of the dummy before South can start the clubs. Then South will be unable to set up and cash dummy's last club.

The job of the defenders is to defend, not to do declarer's work for him. (But be sure to see this column tomorrow.)

Neighbors, 2 Yellow Cobras, 0

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Policeman Vermon Smit did his neighbor, W. Watling, a good turn when he killed a deadly poisonous yellow cobra near where Watling's children were playing in their garden.

Watling repaid the debt the very next day. He killed another yellow cobra Mrs. Smit found in her kitchen while her husband was away.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 30th, the 211th day of 1969 with 154 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1916, German saboteurs blew up a munitions dump at Black Tom Island just outside Jersey City, causing an estimated $22 million damage.

In 1937, the American Federation of Radio Artists was organized as a unit of the AF of L.

In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill creating a female branch of the U.S. Navy called ' Waves.'

In 1967, news from behind the Bamboo Curtain told of a mass purge of the Red Chinese army.

A thought for the day: American writer Oliver Wendell Holmes once said: "Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all."

India's Policy On Lending

NEW DELHI (PA) — Neither a borrower nor a lender be. But if you do borrow, you might as well lend a little.

Following this policy, India advanced more than rupees 400 million (over $55.5 million) as loans to other countries between 1950 and 1967.

The largest recipient has been Burma, which accounts for almost half the amount. Other countries are Afghanistan, Sikkim, Bhutan, Nepal, Ceylon and Indonesia.

New Repair Shop In Marin For Camper, Trailer Services

A new business opening in San Rafael is Bud's Camper and Trailer Repair Services.

Owner Pierce (Bud) Reeves of Santa Venetia has leased a 2,000-square-foot building plus 2,000 square feet of yard space for storage at 34-A De Luca Place through Herman Deitch, Realtor and William Brannan of William Timmer Realty. Reeves probably will have this specialized field pretty much to himself in Marin County, since most of this type of work is done either in Santa Rosa or at El Cerrito, across the bay.

He was formerly with the Sears Roebuck and Co. service department for 14 years and has been repairing trailers and campers as a hobby. Now he has a professionally equipped repair shop, sells and installs air conditioners, LP ranges and refrigerators and toilets. He also installs heavy-duty shock absorbers, hitches, overload springs and dual battery systems and will take care of almost anything on trailer wheels that needs repair or updating. He has two mechanical assistants.

D. T. V. LISTON of San Rafael has been appointed a senior research associate of Chevron Research Co. He joined the company in 1960. In his present assignment he will continue his exploratory work in the field of lubricating oil additives.

DR. WILLIAM F. FISCHER JR., formerly of San Anselmo, has joined the research division of Rohm and Haas Co. at Bristol, Pa. He received his doctorate in organic chemistry this year from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is now married and lives at Cornell Heights, Pa.

Scripture

GERALD H. SMITH of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president, data processing and systems, for Capital Funding Corp. He has been with the company since 1966 when he helped organize and develop its first sales office in Fresno. He moved to the San Francisco home office the following year to become director of data processing.

J. C. SCRIPTURE of Scripture Oldsmobile, Inc., San Rafael, has been named vice president for the Oldsmobile Dealers Association for the Greater Bay Area. He is a former president of the Northern California Automobile Dealers Association.

AWARDS: L. J. Dervin Ford Co. of Novato has received another Ford Motor Co. Distinguished Achievement Award — this one for progressive management, modern sales and service facilities, sound merchandising practices and high quality standards. Last one was for customer relations. . . . Albert E. Franzi of Greenbrae, general manager of Petrini's, has received a third place award from the American Dairy Association of California in an advertising contest during June Dairy Month.

INSURANCE: James Crean of San Anselmo has observed his 20th anniversary with Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. He is a field representative in the San Rafael district office and has been made a member of the company's Veterans Association. Farmers Insurance Group is seeking a young woman, age 19 through 25, to be queen of its float at the 1970 Tournament of Roses parade. Winner in the local contest will be named Miss Farmers Insurance Group of Marin County and entered in the statewide contest. Entry blanks are available at local Farmers offices.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Wife Doesn't Know About Investments

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I recently invested over half our savings in Husky Oil and Reichold Chemicals. My wife doesn't know about it yet. How good are these stocks and how much worrying will I have to do before she finds out? — A. D.

A. Because of the state of the market you may have a good bit of worrying to do, even though you have shares of two potentially profitable issues.

Husky, because of its position on the North Slope, was approached as a takeover by an American oil company. The offer was turned down as too low. Largely overlooked by investors, the company has some very interesting property in several glamor areas, such as Wollaston Lake, the "High Arctic" and the Kandik Basin, making the issue an attractive land play situation.

Reichold's plastics operations have experienced rapid sales growth. During 1968, gains of 19 per cent to 25 per cent were recorded in sales of polyester resins, organic peroxides, epoxy resins and polyurethene foam resins. These products are used by furniture, automotive, building and boat manufacturers. To keep pace with the growing demand, Reichold is expanding several of its present facilities and building an additional plant. First-quarter earnings rose 23 per cent on a 6 per cent gain in sales.

Q. Some months ago I bought shares of Villager Industries at 42. It has dropped to 15. Should I take my loss or buy more? — H. D.

A. You have ridden this investment down to a four-year low; I see no advantage in selling at this level. Nor do I recommend additional buying to average down since recovery will no doubt be protracted. Production difficulties and increased costs plus expenses involved in streamlining distribution and inventory control have penalized recent earnings. These problems are in the process of being solved and a turnaround in the earnings picture may come later in the current fiscal year. However, price recovery to your cost does not appear to be an immediate prospect.

U.S. Seamen Hit Talks On South American Seizures

WASHINGTON, D.C. (BW) — The Seafarers International Union of North America has warned the State Department not to submit to "blackmail" in negotiations with Latin American countries over their seizures of American fishing trawlers.

The SIUNA position was spelled out by vice presidents Frank Drozak and Steve Edney, at a meeting with Donald L. McKernan, special assistant to the secretary of state, at the State Department.

Government officials are preparing for a conference to be held in Buenos Aires commencing today with representatives of Ecuador, Peru and Chile — countries which, over the past eight years, have seized more than 80 U.S. fishing boats and levied fines of more than $900,000 for alleged violations of the fishing zones off the South American coast.

These countries claim a 200-mile fishing zone, in contrast to the accepted practice of limiting a nation's fishing rights to 12 miles off its coast.

In some of the seizures, Latin gunboats have fired on the American trawlers.

Following the State Department meeting, the SIUNA officials issued this statement:

"We take the position that the conference at Buenos Aires should limit itself to resolving the issue of the illegal seizures of American fishing vessels — seizures which have jeopardized the lives and the livelihoods of the American fishermen whom we represent.

"We are opposed to the inclusion in the Buenos Aires conference of any discussions on Latin American requests to reduce American tariffs on the tuna fish shipments by the Latin American countries or any changes on Bonita as it is presently packed and marked today.

"The reason for the conference is simple — it has been called in order to resolve a serious threat to peace and stability to this hemisphere caused by these repeated illegal seizures. For the government to enter into any negotiations with the countries on the subject of tariffs or imports would be to submit to blackmail.

"The American delegation to Buenos Aires should be concerned solely with resolving the problems caused by the denial to American fishermen of their rights on the high seas."

Nixon Facing New Crisis On Return: Living Cost

When President Nixon returns from cementing the United States' relationships abroad, perhaps he will turn his attention to a developing crisis at home: the cost of living.

Early this year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that consumer prices went up by 4.2 per cent during the final year of the Johnson administration — the greatest rise in any one year since the Korean war.

Since then, the rise has been at a rate making last year's look rather deliberate.

In January, the BLS index went up .3 of one per cent. In February, the rise was .4; March, .8; in April, .6; in May, .3, and in June, .6 again.

THE RISE for the first six months is thus 3 per cent. If the same rate continues through the remainder of the year, the resulting 6 per cent consumer price rise will dwarf any of those in the Johnson years.

Locally, the rise has been greater than the national average, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Charles Roumasset, BLS regional director, reported that the spring rise in the San Francisco metropolitan area wiped out spring pay hikes negotiated in the annual round of union-management contract talks — hikes which in themselves has been translated into the additional escalation of the past few months.

RISING PRICES have provided fuel for summer demands by public employees for pay raises higher than usual. These, in their turn, will be translated into higher taxes next winter.

Nor does the so-called "cost of living index" — now at 126.7 per cent of its 1957-59 base — tell the whole story. Interest costs, the highest in a century, add to the squeeze. High interest curbs investment and adds to unemployment. This in turn puts a greater load on welfare rolls — which again results in higher taxes.

Caught in the squeeze are those workers who got new contracts with pay raises that looked good at the time but now have lagged behind the rise in living costs. Caught still tighter are the millions not covered by union contracts, many of whom may have received no cost-of-living raise at all. And caught tightest of all are those on pensions or other fixed incomes.

IN THE CLOSING weeks of his campaign for the presidency, Richard M. Nixon declared in a radio address last Oct. 23:

"As sure as a binge leads to a hangover, an inflationary boom, if pursued too long, leads to a deflationary bust and massive unemployment. Unless current policies are changed as a matter of highest urgency, we are all in for a dreadful headache in 1970 and beyond."

In the six months since he became President, however, Mr. Nixon does not seem to have felt this "highest urgency." His budget cut turned out to be a one per cent trim — scarcely altering the hemline of the overly full garment. For the rest, his "anti-inflation" policies seem to be the same ones that failed to work for his predecessor, including the 10 per cent income tax surtax which he denounced as a candidate but adopted as President.

Mr. Nixon may have found in his travels, as did Nelson Rockefeller in his, that many of the United States' friends abroad are not very friendly. He is likely to find the electorate at home rather unfriendly too, if — as appears inevitable — the July figure shows the cost of living still on its runaway course.

Not Among The Grandstanders

A few weeks back, commenting on the unemotional (if also unimpressive) performance of the current Marin County Board of Supervisors, we suggested that the three who left the board at the close of last year had sometimes been guilty of grandstanding. "Trying for the accolades instead of for accomplishment" was the way we put it.

One of those three, Ernest N. Kettenhofen, took exception to this. If he had tried for the accolades, suggested Kettenhofen, he might still be on the board instead of having been defeated at the polls.

While we may not agree with this assessment, we feel that we did wrong "Kett." The uproar he contributed to the board's operation was due to his bulldog determination and his inability to admit that "politics is the art of compromise," rather than to grandstanding.

Petris's Anti-Auto Bill May Make Detroit 'Get On Its Horse'

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Passage by the state Senate of a measure by Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, to ban sales of automobiles powered by internal combustion in 1975 brought some raised eyebrows not only around the state, but also in Detroit, seat of the automobile manufacturing industry.

However, the public probably doesn't have too much to worry about. Should the assembly pass the bill and the governor sign it into law — neither of which is likely to happen at this late date in the legislative session — nobody' going to start walking right away.

SENATOR PETRIS never had any hope of getting his bill passed at all. It was introduced with the idea of shaking up the public and the automobile industry to the facts of life, which are that if something is not done about the smog problem, the human race eventually is doomed.

The best way to do the shaking up was to introduce a bill threatening the public with a return to the horse and buggy, which would put a lot of street-sweepers back on the job, and the automobile industry with the loss of California as an outlet for its product.

THE SENATOR was forced to amend his bill to get it through the Senate. Now it does not provice for banning the internal combustion automobile on California highways, but bans the sales of new and used automobiles in this state after 1975.

This amendment puts the entire burden on the automobile industry to come up with a means of transportation which does not emit poisonous substances in the atmosphere we breathe.

Petris claims the industry has "dragged its feet" in solving this critical problem.

In his effort to shake up the people and the industry, Petris found a medium in his bills which is turning out to be highly successful. It presages a new and much more serious look at the smog problem.

Coast Guard Housing Relocation Advantag

The objectivity and professionalism of Larry Hatfield's account of the Coast Guard housing controversy at Inverness (July 26) were deeply appreciated. Although he quoted exclusively from Coast Guard sources, he summarized fairly and accurately the Inverness community's objections on the grounds of density and sewage disposal.

Commenting further, it should be noted that the commercial center of West Marin, Point Reyes Sation, is actively seeking to get the Coast Guard project transferred to their community. At least one excellent site, which complies with the West Marin Master Plan and the park service plan for circulation in the National Seashore, has been called to the attention of the federal government.

This site would save the federal governmtnt much money now, much more later. It would save the local taxpayers, both in this school district and county-wide, much more. It is estimated that, after all state and federal subsidies, it will cost about $500 per pupil to educate the Coast Guard children. As there are to be over fifty of them, this is no mean burden on a small school district. Much of this high cost comes from the necessity to "bus" pupils. If the Coast Guard selected the Point Reyes Station site, right next to the West Marin Elementary School, about $20,000 might be lifted from the burden . . .

The effect on traffic is also of major importance. Inverness is hemmed in between its forested hills, on unstable soils that tend to slide every winter, and Tomales Bay. At the Inverness Inn site, the 80 Coast Guard households will be completely dependent on the automobile, and many of them will need two sets of "wheels." At Point Reyes Station, the housewife can walk down to cash her check, get her hair done, get the car serviced, mail her letters, and buy whatever groceries she needs to supplement her weekly trips to the Hamilton Field PX.

Finally, I was glad to see that Mr. Hatfield elicited from the Coast Guard sanitary engineer, Mr. Race, the admission that treated sewage efuent will at times be discharged directly into the creek, and thence into Tomales Bay only a few hundred feet downstream . . .

Self-Delusion Persists Among Hawks In Vietnam

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

It is nothing less than astounding that American military circles in Saigon are still telling themselves, and any visitors who will listen, that victory is just around the corner. Such is the report of Richard Dudman, our chief Washington correspondent, after a recent visit to South Vietnam.

"Won't it be a tragedy,' the visitor is asked, "if the American people lose patience and Nixon feel that he has to pull out just when we've got it made?"

JUST WHEN we've got it made! The Vietnam war in its acute stage — that is, since January 1965 — is now the longest war in our history. Periodically through these agonizing years military leaders have been coming back from Saigon to report that we just about had it made. The American people have been dragged from one peak of false optimism to another. They have been misled, propagandized, manipulated, and just plain lied to. It is incredible that today, after 36,000 dead and 225,000 wounded, any military officer or civilian functionary would have the gall to ask the American people for a little more patience, on the ground that "we've got it made."

The magnitude of the presumption becomes clear when one realizes what the American officers in Saigon are talking about when they say "we've got it made." They are talking about five or six more years of war. They are talking about keeping 200,000 to 300,000 American troops in South Vietnam for at least that long. They are talking about continuing to bleed the American taxpayer of billions of dollars every year to sustain and arm and train a mercenary army led by a dictorial government which cannot command the confidence of its own people.

So long as there is talk like this in the American establishment in Saigon, it is quite clear that the struggle over Vietnam policy has not closed out by a long shot.

THERE HAS always been among the sponsors of the war a total inability to understand the nature of the Vietnam conflict. Judging by the talk in Saigon, nothing in this bitter experience has brought them wisdom. Not in 15 years of steadily deepening entanglement, not 36,000 dead and 225,000 wounded, not the successive escalations followed by responding escalations on the other side, have enabled them to understand that it is a political and not a military conflict. We have been trying to solve by military power a post-colonial problem of Asian political development that simply will not yield to military methods. We have been trying to "win" a war which even in the narrowest military sense could not be won without converting it into a war with China or Russia or both.

We do not justify the deaths of brave young men by condemning others to die for five or six years more. The only honorable mission our troops have ever had in Vietnam is to enable the Vietnamese people to decide their own future. After 15 years of American intervention in one degree or another, the time has come to let them decide it.

Nixon's One Promise To Asia: We Won't Go Away And Forget

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — We need to know three things to judge President Nixon's trip to Asia:

What he isn't doing.

What he aims to do.

The special and helpful assets he takes along.

WHAT MR. NIXON isn't doing on this trip to the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, India and Pakistan is as important as what he is doing.

He is not making any new defense pacts. He will not be talking about any new U.S. commitments, military or political. He will not be redefining past commitments.

This is what Richard Nixon is very deliberately and very carefully not doing. It is significant because he wants to make it clear to the non-Communist Asian nations that their first line of security is not the United States but their own regional defense system which is thus far more potential than real.

THERE ARE POSITIVE things which the President wants to discuss with the Asians. He wants them to know firsthand that he is thinking in post-Vietnam terms and that they should be, too.

He wants them to realize that U.S. troops will not be in Vietnam indefinitely and that their own future security will depend in large part on their collective strength and willingness to use it in behalf of each other.

He intends to assure them that while we will be withdrawing from Vietnam, we are not withdrawing from the western Pacific and are not canceling our interest and concern with the welfare and independence of the Asian nations.

He will make it clear that a regional defense system embracing the non-Communist Asian nations will give the United States every incentive to help, that its absence could create a dangerous vacuum.

In other words, President Nixon is informing friends and adversaries alike that, despite the indecisive war in Vietnam and the possibly unsatisfactory peace, the United States is not going to pursue an insular or isolationist policy, that we are not going to try to stop the world and get off, that American concern for the peace and development of the weaker nations remains strong.

IN HIS TALKS with the Asian leaders, Mr. Nixon is fortunate to have a full quiver of new and special assets — some of his own making, some not. The principal ones are these:

1—He embarks on his mission in the glow of tremendous, worldwide admiration and respect for the perfectly executed achievement of putting two men on the moon and bringing them safely back to earth. We have lost prestige in Vietnam, but we have gained immeasurable prestige for our superior scientific and technological attainments in the brave new venture of unmatched space exploration. President Nixon will be talking from a powerful base of constructive achievement.

2—The American de-escalation of the Vietnamese war enhances the President's credentials in every nation he is visiting — except Thailand.

3—The modest liberalization of U.S. trade and travel policy with respect to Red China, which Mr. Nixon has just approved, is widely welcomed.

4—The Asians, like most of the rest of the world, want to see successful U.S.-Soviet arms-control talks — and so does Mr. Nixon.

Richard Nixon is going to Asia at a good time for a good purpose — to show that the new president is not concerned with just half the world and to show that the United States, however the Vietnamese war ends, is not planning to run away and hide.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

MIRV, Not Romania Visit, May Hamper Arms Talks

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — President Nixon believes his forthcoming visit to Romania will help, not harm, this nation's relations with the Soviet Union.

Consequently, the President thinks his stop there Saturday will improve, not damage, the prospects for successful talks with Russia on limiting strategic arms.

That point of view runs counter to much of the comment which followed the announcement of the Nixon itinerary. Some of the pundits have been quite certain that the President, by a personal visit to Russia's increasingly independent ally, would create problems at the arms talks due to begin next month.

The President, however, outlined his opposing views at some length for congressional leaders before his departure. Some of the House and Senate leaders, who met with him at the White House, came away with the impression that plans for the Romania stop-over had been checked out very carefully in advance with Russian leaders.

WHILE THE PRESIDENT has been traveling, Senate debate on the Safeguard ABM system has been highlighting another potential problem for those forthcoming arms limitation talks.

The problem is not Safeguard, but MIRV — The presently experimental multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles. As the debate progresses it becomes increasingly clear that MIRV developments, in the United States and Russia, already make for difficult negotiations.

The United States has been testing a MIRV warhead which sends each nuclear-armed reentry vehicle on an independent course to a separate target. The U.S. IS already planning to deploy two weapons systems which will use MIRV warheads — a new Poseidon missile in the present Polaris submarine fleet and a new version of the Minuteman ICBM, Minuteman III.

Russia is trying for a MIRV warhead too. Pentagon experts believe, however, that the United States is a good deal farther along in the development process.

What is emerging from the ABM debate is an understanding that the MIRV situation has its difficulties at the bargaining table.

If Kremlin negotiators think the United States is well ahead in MIRV development, can they agree to any sort of limitation which inhibits Russia's efforts toward development of a true MIRV system?

The Pentagon is asking for six conversions again this year. But when, in a closed-door hearing last week, Sec. of the Navy John H. Chafee noted that six Polaris-Poseidon conversions would be funded this year, chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Armed Services Committee retorted:

"I wouldn't be too sure about that."

Sees Thieu, Then Visits U.S. Troops

SAIGON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon visited Saigon five and one-half hours today and warned Hanoi and the Viet Cong that "we have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace . . . It is time for the other side to respond.

Nixon's visit took him from a glittering palace reception in Saigon to a U.S. infantry base outside the city where he told the soldiers Vietnam may become one of America's finest hours and that "I only hope we can bring the war to an end worthy of your sacrifice."

American officials said later Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu were not particularly discouraged about the prospects for peace but that they seemed to show a slightly harder attitude toward North Vietnam.

TROOP MOVES

They said North Vietnam appeared to be withdrawing troops into Cambodia and Laos instead of North Vietnam and that the Paris peace talks could get off dead center only if Hanoi halted this practice, since it raised the question of good faith.

The officials said this represented no new Allied policy requirement and that during the last half of August Nixon would make another decision concerning American troop withdrawal beyond the 25,000 he has promised to pull out by the end of August.

The assessments and the Nixon statement showed that the United States felt it had made the most generous peace proposals possible and it was now time for Hanoi to react with some of its own. These decisions were made at a lengthy Nixon-Thieu conference at the presidential palace.

VISITS BASE

Afterwards Nixon traveled by helicopter and jeep under heavy escort to a U.S. First Infantry base 10 miles from Saigon to talk with American soldiers.

"...Out here in this dreary, difficult war, I think history will record that this may have been one of America's finest hours, because we took a difficult task and we succeeded," Nixon told the troops.

President, GIs Exchange Light Banter

DI AN, Vietnam (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon mixed serious talk of the war with good humored banter about baseball and football as he moved among the troops of the U.S. First Infantry Division today.

The President, played up to his reputation as a sports fan during much of his visit to the division's headquarters, located in red, muddy, scrub-covered flatlands 10 miles north of Saigon.

To a young man from Dallas, Tex., he said: "You got a good football team. Think they can take the Packers this year? You know they lost their quarterback."

He asked a young rifleman from Chicago if he was a fan of the Cubs or the White Sox.

"I'm a Yankee fan, sir," the young soldier answered.

"That World Series is going to be tough for the Yankees," said the President. "They're not the best team, but they're moving along. Got a lot of speed . . . Stick with the Yankees. Our daughter is a Yankee fan."

As the President walked among the GIs crowding around him to shake his hand, he grew reflective.

He turned to a group of newsmen and said: "You look at these men, their determination, their leadership and you heard them talking quietly about their

District Attorney Says Proof Of Request Missing, Raps Sausalito Council Act

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said today his office would not prosecute the Sausalito City Council for meeting secretly to select a new member, but remarked that it was a "helluva way to do business."

"We're absolutely against secret meetings," Bales said. "I think it's a helluva way to do business — meeting over cocktails or in somebody's house."

LETTER LACKING

Bales said an investigation by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas and investigator John Kingston disclosed that, in the absence of proof of a letter from the Independent-Journal requesting notice of closed meetings, there was no violation of the Ralph M. Brown Act, the state laws regulating private meetings of public bodies.

The act requires that public groups provide 24 hours notice of private meetings to news media which request it. The Independent-Journal made written request to Sausalito in 1967, but city officials told Thomas and Kingston that they could not find the letter.

JULY 3 SESSION

The council met — unannounced — at the home of Mayor Earl N. Dunphy of July 3 (not July 7 as previously reported in the Independent-Journal) to screen candidates for the council seat vacated by the resignation of George C. Hoffman. On July 16,. in regular session, the council named college teacher Wyman Hicks as Hoffman's replacement by a 4-0 vote.

Thomas said he and Kingston questioned members of the council about the July 3 meeting.

"All persons interviewed felt at no time did they believe they were violating the Brown Act and that they had no intention of violating the Brown Act," Thomas said.

Such violation is a misdemeanor.

However, Thomas added, "All

Apollo Crew Taking Key Blood Tests

Blood for the tests was taken from moonmen Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. before they sat down to breakfast in their elaborate quarantined quarters. Blood was also taken from Dr. William Carpentier and engineer John Hirasaki, the astronauts' companions in quarantine.

TV PARLEY

The astronauts then started a day-long closed-circuit television debriefing before an audience of space officials. Plans called for a thorough review of the moon mission.

Armstrong and Aldrin watched pictures of Mars sent to earth by the Mariner spacecraft Tuesday night, but made no comment.

They watched the Mariner pictures on television, interrupting the screening in their quarters of the movie "Romeo and Juliet," a modern, adults-only version of the Shakespeare classic.

COLLINS ABSENT

A spokesman said they returned to the movie just after seeing the television report on Mariner.

Collins stayed in his room during the evening and didn't see the movie or television, the spokesman said.

Wholesale Price Rise Tapering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The climb in wholesale prices slowed dramatically this month, rising only one-tenth of 1 per cent and offering at least some distant hope of a slowdown in soaring living costs, the government said today.

"You have to be careful about placing too much significance in one month's figures, but it does seem to be fairly significant," said Asst. Commissioner Arnold Chase of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Most hopeful note for most Americans was a drop of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in

Reagan Tax Plan, Auto Ban Unlikely

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposal for a 10 per cent income tax cut next year is the only tax rebate bill likely to clear the Assembly this session, Speaker Robert T. Monagan said today.

The Republican leader's comment at his weekly news conference appeared to doom chances of passage for a rival tax cut plan of 20 per cent which also was passed by the Senate with Reagan's bill.

Minutes later the Assembly voted to consider only 25 bills now pending on the floor.

Monagan, noting Senate approval of both bills, remarked "we'll rescue them . . . and only pass one" out of committee.

Reagan's measure would provide a one-time-only $82 million reduction for income taxpayers next year, while the Democratic plan would provide about $109 million.

Monagan also predicted today the lower house will kill efforts to ban the internal combustion engine in all vehicles sold beginning in 1975.

"I don't think at this stage we're arbitrarily ready to say at some future date that all automobiles must be off the streets," Monagan said.

The Senate-passed bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, has been referred to the Assembly Transportation Committee. Asked to assess its chances of getting out of committee, Monagan said: "I don't know, but I wouldn't think so."

Nixon Appeals From Asia To Extend Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon has reached from half-way around the world in an attempt at pressuring the Senate into extending the income surtax, in danger of dying at midnight tomorrow.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said last night he had been in communication with Nixon in Thailand. The President "is deeply concerned by the inability of the Senate to act and the injury this threatens to every citizen," Agnew said.

"He intends to discuss these

Erick Yarchin New Chief At Juvenile Hall

A 20-year resident of Marin has been named superintendent of Marin County Juvenile Hall.

Erick F. Yarchin, 56, of 20 Garden Rock Road, San Anselmo, will begin work Sept. 1, John W. Brewer, probation chief, announced today.

Yarchin is currently program administrator at the State Medical Facility at Vacaville. From 1960 to 1967 he was with the California Adult Authority as one of its six representatives.

He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Richmond, Va. and his masters degree in psychology from San Francisco State.

Brewer said his salary had not been set.

Juvenile Hall has been without a superintendent since March 31, 1968, when Ira Okun resigned. An earlier attempt to hire one failed when there were no suitable applicants.

This time, Brewer said, several qualified persons sought the job.

Mariner Shots Show Ragged Polar Edges

PASADENA (AP) — Mars-bound Mariner 6 has sent to earth long shot photos showing features new to scientists: ragged edges on the mystery planet's south polar ice cap, perhaps due to mountains or craters, and a dark spot in the cap's center. (See photos, page 34.)

Another batch of closer pictures, scheduled for transmission back to earth tonight, may reveal more that is new.

Highlight of the tiny spacecraft's 156-day, 241-million-mile journey comes tomorrow when it transmits close-ups after skimming within 2,130 miles of Mars to try to see if the red planet is capable of supporting life.

In three hours across 58 million miles of space Tuesday night, the 850-pound flying instrument platform returned 32 and two-thirds pictures taken earlier between 771,000 and 450,000 miles altitude.

Most of the shots, shown at five-minute intervals on television monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, were dim and fuzzy, depicting an egg-shaped body with the south polar cap gleaming on the right side. Few features were distinguishable.

The frames were made 10,000 miles apart and as the final few

Flames Destroy Novato House

Fire wrecked a Novato home today, killing a pet dog and cat.

The home of Wallace C. Forsythe of 482 Via Herbosa was engulfed in flame when firemen arrived shortly after 11 a.m. None of the residents was home. Neighbors saved a car in the driveway and one in the garage.

Shortly after noon, a grass fire erupted on San Rafael Hill near Chula Vista Drive. Billows of brownish smoke were visible for miles.

JUVENILE HALL

Many Teen-Agers Just Want Solutions To Home Problems

By JOANNE GRANT

(Second of four articles)

Who are the young people at Juvenile Hall? Why are they there?

We expected to find a group of young criminals, basically bad kids. Most of them weren't.

Typical was 16-year-old Sally (not her real name) detained for leaving a difficult home situation. "I ran away because I need help," she said.

And Rodney, also a runaway and no longer welcome at home now that he has the stigma of Juvenile Hall attached, who talked of difficulties in finding a foster home. "No one wants old kids," the 17-year-old said succinctly.

"Seventy-five per cent of the time when kids are not released it's because they have no place to go," said Fredric M. Latty, field services supervisor.

"The frustration of not having the resources (for placement) is the most difficult of all," he said.

An average of 200 juveniles are being referred to the probation department each month, but most are not detained long at the hall, he said.

California law specifies that a Juvenile Hall is intended to provide temporary care only. State Youth Authority standards require it to include secure physical care, constructive individual and group activities, counseling and guid-

Boards Lack Initiative In Teacher Salary Field

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

School trustees should make a concerted attack on the single salary schedule for teachers "to insure that taxpayers are no longer short-changed," contends Richard Zweiback, director of school personnel relations services for the National School Boards Assocation.

It can be done, says Zweiback, through the collective bargaining procedures that are written into education laws, in one form or another, in most states.

WRITING IN the June issue of the American School Board Journal, Zweiback holds that, although collective bargaining is supposed to be a give-and-take process, in the public schools it has become a matter of "school boards give and teachers take."

"It is likely to continue that way until school boards take the offensive and present their own demands as a condition for any negotiation settlement with teachers," he continues.

"A good place to start is with re-evaluation of the old-fashioned single salary schedule. . . . Do we wonder, when we continue to base salaries solely on longevity and time spent in schooling, why we continue to see an institutionalized mediocrity in education and a consequent lowering of quality? . . .

"Is there something illogical about teachers who have long recognized that not all students perform equally asking school boards to believe that all persons holding a teaching certificate are equally competent?"

ZWEIBACK THEN proceeds to shoot a big hole in the "poor mouth" argument that has been used so successfully by teacher organizations in winning pay increases for all their members regardless of competence.

"Teacher salaries have jumped far ahead of increases in the cost of living —to say nothing of total teacher income, which is boosted by, among other sources, extra-curricular pay," he writes.

"If school boards are to insure that taxpayers no longer are short-changed, they are going to have to consider ways of rewarding performance and weeding out mediocrity."

ALTHOUGH Zweiback's call appears in the official organ of the National School Boards Association, it is unlikely to spark a widespread attack on the teacher salary system.

The pattern has been well established in which school boards sit back and wait for the teachers' contract demands, then try to whittle them down. If any school board in California has prepared its own list of demands to present to teachers as a basis for negotiations, I have not heard of it — although this would be equally in accord with the provisions of the Winton Act.

Attempts to break away from basing salaries solely on longevity and college credits, through "merit pay" schemes, have foundered in nearly all cases. There are various reasons.

TEACHER organizations are adamant against any salary system which provides for evaluation of the competency of a teacher by anybody. Although it is common practice for a contractor, for instance, to pay some especially valuable employee above the union scale in order to keep him, teacher organizations will have none of this in the education business. The only way for the teacher to break away from the schedule is to become an administrator.

Few of the really good teachers become administrators. They are more interested in classroom work with students. They also refuse to take courses required for an administrative credential. And they don't want to get involved in playing school politics, another virtual necessity for an administrative job.

IT THEREFORE remains for the school building politicians to become the administrators. And because the best teachers hold such administrators in rather low esteem, they do not want their salaries to be based on evaluation by those administrators. So they, too, go along with the system which reqares the incompetent equally with the outstanding.

If anything is to be done about the system, it appears it must originate with the school boards. But school trustees — unlike teachers — seldom read their own publications, or pay them much attention if they do read them.

Israeli Jets Hit Lebanese Target

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets crossed the Syrian and Lebanese frontiers today to hit Arab guerrilla concentrations in the foothills of Mount Hermon, the army announced.

The 15-minute air attack was in response to a recent increase in sabotage activity in the area, a spokesman said.

The army spokesman listed eight incidents of sabotage in the region since July 1.

This was the first reported air attack inside Lebanon by the Israelis since they attacked the international airport at Beirut, Lebanon's capital, last December in retaliation for an attack on an Israeli jetliner in Greece by Palestinian guerrillas.

Lebanon has sought to discourage the training of Arab guerrillas on its territory for fear of Israeli retaliation. Half-Christian, half-Moslem Lebanon has tried to remain out of the Middle East conflict as much as possible while publicly defending the Arab stand against Israel.

Tentative Agreement In Two-Nation War

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement was reached early today by the Organization of American States for a settlement of the 16-day old El Salvador-Honduran crisis.

Terms of the peace settlement were reached after El Salvador, in a surprise move, agreed to withdraw its troops, which have occupied Honduran soil for the past two weeks.

The settlement provides for the immediate withdrawal of Salvadoran troops from Honduran territory accompanied by certain guarantees for the safety of the some 285,000 Salvadorans residing in Honduras.

It also urges that both nations bring to trial persons guilty of having "committed crimes and violated the human rights" of Salvadorans living in Honduras and vice versa.

The OAS named a four-man commission to hammer out the details of the peace formula.

Coast Guard Hunt For Tuna Vessel

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Coast Guard is continuing a search for a 65-foot fishing vessel, with six persons aboard, that has disappeared mysteriously off the Oregon-California Coast.

The steel-hulled tuna boat Compass Star, operated by Kenneth Dahl of Morro Bay, was last seen Sunday 82 miles west of Coos Bay, Ore., by a companion boat, the Madonna.

Kennedy Is Still Silent On Future

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Even if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has decided to keep his Senate seat, it may be some time before he communicates his decision to the public.

Observers have been looking to Kennedy's presence or absence during the Senate's vote on the antiballistic missile (ABM) system as some indication of his plans. Now that vote is not likely to come before next week.

The Boston Globe said yesterday that close friends and associates of the senator report he has decided to retain his Senate seat and to return to Washington for the ABM vote. The sources were quoted as saying Kennedy was encouraged by overwhelming public support in response to his plea to Massachusetts voters to help him decide whether to resign.

But in Washington, Kennedy's press secretary, Richard C. Drayne, said, "I have no reason to believe he has made any decision or if he has, communicated it to anyone."

Last Friday night in a nationwide television speech, Kennedy asked Massachusetts voters for their "advice and opinion" whether he should remain in the Senate in view of the controversy surrounding the death of 28-year-old Mary Joe Kopechne.

Hearing Is Set

After a preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court yesterday Robert Charles Baldi, 19, of San Rafael, was held to answer Aug. 11 in Marin Superior Court to a charge of concealing stolen property March 23 in San Rafael.

Scotland Yard Searching For Russ Novelist

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard searched today at the Soviet Embassy's request for Anatoly V. Kuznetsov, whose novels on the imperfections of life in Russia won the acclaim of the public and the condemnation of the Communist establishment. The Russian novelist vanished from his hotel Monday night.

Kuznetsov, 40, had been in London since last Thursday working on a Soviet government-ordered book on the London portion of the life of V. I. Lenin.

He walked out of the Apollo Hotel in London's Kensington district Monday at 11:10 p.m., leaving his luggage in his $5.64-a-day single room. With a wave of his hand, he dismissed the desk clerk's comment that his interpreter was looking for him, and disappeared into the night.

Kuznetsov first got in trouble with Soviet Communist officialdom with his 1967 documentary novel Babi Yar. It tells of the slaughter of 100,000 Jews by the Nazis in 1941 in Kuznetsov's native city of Kiev in the Soviet Ukraine.

The book, which took the same name as a celebrated earlier poem by Yevgeny Yevtushenko on the same subject, was an international best seller.

Early this month, the provincial newspaper Lenin's Banner attacked Kuznetsov for his latest novel, "The Fire," a story of life in a Soviet steel works town. It told of workers and officials who were demoralized.

Nevertheless, Kuznetsov remained a member of the Soviet Writers Union and stayed on the editorial board of the youth magazine Yunost even when such writers as Yevtushenko were fired from it because of their dissenting literature.

Kuznetsov has been a member of the Communist party since 1955 and was once a bulldozer operator.

Co-Ed Death Suspect To Be Quizzed

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A sheriff and a police chief made a quick trip to Hazard, Ky., today to question a man Hazard city police said had admitted killing a girl in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

The arrest in Kentucky was the latest lead as law authorities probed for a break in a series of baffling murders of seven young women in southeast Michigan in two years.

The most recent victim, 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, was to be buried today in her hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey and Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny left for Kentucky after being told of the man's arrest.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Strike Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board ruled today unions on strike against the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner engaged in unfair labor practice when they picketed a discount department store which advertised in the paper. The examiner recommended that the full board order the unions to stop urging customers to boycott advertisers of the newspaper the unions have been on strike against since Dec. 15, 1967.

Hijack Halted

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A man in woman's clothing tried to hijack a Nicaraguan airliner with 35 passengers aboard last night after slugging the pilot with his gun. But the pilot fought back and subdued his attacker.

Police said 24-year-old Carlos Jose Guadamuz broke into the cabin of a plane en route from Managua to the Nicaraguan coast. He ordered pilot Carlos Salinas to fly to Cuba, then announced over the intercom that he was diverting the plane in the name of Augusto Sandino, an early 20th century leftist.

Salinas said Guadamuz struck him with his gun but that he overpowered him. The plane returned to Managua, and police took charge of Guadamuz.

Stiff Sentences

HAVANA (AP) — Four government construction workers have been sentenced by a revolutionary tribunal to prison terms ranging from three to eight years for stealing cement and trading it to farmers for food products, the Communist party newspaper Granma reports.

It did not report what happened to the farmers.

Atlantic Storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Anna, with winds barely below hurricane force, whirled steadily on a course toward the northern Leeward Islands today.

The first storm of the Atlantic season, with highest winds estimated at 70 miles per hour, about 1,225 miles east-southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and 2,225 miles in the same direction from Miami.

Fresno Violence

FRESNO (AP) — Sporadic violence broke out in sections of West Fresno for the third straight night.

Dozens of windows were broken and one store was damaged slightly by a firebomb.

Police said some looting occurred.

Hayakawa Named

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. S.I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, president of San Francisco State College, has been appointed to the city's Committee on Asian Art and Culture.

Mayor Joseph Alioto described Hayakawa as a collector of Oriental ceramics when he announced new members yesterday.

Others included the mayor's wife, Angelina, a devotee of arts and antiques, and Mrs. Walter Haas Jr., a philanthropist.

The committee was formed last November to manage the $3 million Avery Brundage Oriental art collection.

Keely Divorced

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Singer Keely Smith has won a divorce by default from James Bowen, a composer and record producer, whom she accused of mistreating her.

Miss Smith, 41, was granted a decree yesterday after testifying that Bowen drank excessively; occasionally struck her and often screamed at her. Bowen, 31, was the singer's third husband. They were married four years ago.

War On Caterpillars

CONDOVE, Italy (UPI) — Troops using flame throwers and napalm failed to exterminate thousands of caterpillars infesting the rich vineyards of this Piedmont town, according to provincial officials. The authorities have ordered special crews to spray the infested woods with lead arsenate, a powerful pesticide.

Church Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church called today for a halt in U.S. arms shipments to Latin America, charging the war between El Salvador and Honduras was "made easier" because the United States gave arms and training to both sides.

Church, chairman of the Western Hemisphere Affairs subcommittee of the Foreign Relations Committee, said U.S. aid since World War II totals $6.4 million to El Salvador and $8.2 million to Honduras.

"It is time," Church said, "to stop our military grant-in-aid programs throughout Latin America. It is time to bring our military missions home."

New Navy Inquiry

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. Navy will reopen its investigation of the collision between the American destroyer Frank E. Evans and the Australian carrier Melbourne next week to determine if legal action should be taken against American officers.

A Navy spokesman at the Subic Bay Naval Base said the investigators want "to determine whether further legal proceedings are warranted" against Cmdr. A. S. McLemore, the Evans skipper, Lt. j.g. Ronald C. Ramsey or Lt. j.g. James A. Hopson.

Ramsey, officer of the deck and Hopson, junior officer of the deck, were warned earlier that they were suspected of negligence leading to the collision.

Three times in little more than 10 years, coups d'etat have rocked Iraq.

Report On King

ALTANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Rev. A.D. King, 38-year-old brother of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., had been drinking before he died of drowning in a pool at his home July 21, the Fulton county medical examiner says.

The examiner, Dr. Tom Dillon, reported yesterday tests showed King's blood had an alcohol content of 0.27 per cent, or three times the quantity needed for a drunken driving conviction under state law.

Fire Bombings In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Two fire bombs were thrown into the West Berlin's City Hall last night, damaging its library, police said.

A spokesman said it was not known who threw the gasoline bombs through the City Hall windows that open to the library.

A third bomb was found outside.

President here from Bangkok and she visited wounded American soldiers at Long Binh, 25 miles north of Saigon, and an orphange.

Maximum security was in effect for the visit, the first by an American president to the capital.

An Army spokesman said the security included the "rocket belt"—a seven mile radius around Saigon within which the Viet Cong in the past have shelled the capital in the months past.

But no incidents were reported, either in the capital or in the Nixon's separate trips to the countryside, and they returned safely to Bangkok at (5:30 p.m. Bangkok time) 3:30 a.m. PDT.

Nixon's declaration of no more concessions to the Communists was an obvious reference to the Paris peace talks which formally began last Jan. 19 after preliminary skirmishing at the conference table. The United States and Saigon made a number of concessions. The Communists have not budged from their demands for withdrawal of all U.S. troops and imposition of a Communist-dominated "coalition government" in the South.

Nixon landed at Tan Son Nhut air base and flew to the presidential palace in the heart of the city where he declared:

"We have gone as far as we can or should go in opening the door to peace and now it is time for the other side to respond. Otherwise, the other side must assume the responsibility for the continuing suffering of people who have already suffered muct too long, both in North and South Vietnam."

"As I look over the period that has elapsed since the time I became President of the United States, I believe that the record is clear as to which has gone the extra mile on behalf of peace," Nixon said.

Lights Lead To Suspects, Drug Goods

A San Anselmo man and a Mill Valley woman were booked into Marin County Jial today after San Anselmo police were called to 100 Oak Springs Drive by a neighbor who saw lights on in the house he believed vacant.

Booked were Linn D. Millburn, 22, of 100 Oak Springs Drive, on suspicion of possession of marijuana, possession of narcotics paraphernalia and destroying evidence, and Julia McDonald, 19, of 258 Green Street, Mill Valley, on suspicion of possession of marijuana.

Both posted $1,250 bail each, and will appear in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Friday for arraignment.

Found in the house, unoccupied when police arrived at 9:50 p.m., were two dozen pills and capsules, believed to be dangerous drugs, two ounces of hashish, several pipes, various containers containing what appeared to be marijuana, some marijuana seeds and cigarette papers, police said.

Millburn and Miss McDonald arrived at the house at 12:02 a.m. today at which time police found a plastic bag of marijuana in Miss McDonald's jacket and a plastic bag of marijuana on the floor of the couple's car, police said.

No estimate of value was placed on the confiscated items, officers said.

Fairfax Trustees Talk To Four

Trustees of the Fairfax School District last night interviewed four of the five candidates for the board seat vacated by the resignation of Leonard A. Weiss.

The four are Patrick Fitzgerald, Georgia Elmenhorst, Paris Simmons and Stanley Little. The fifth candidate, Robert Sulpizio, will be interviewed prior to Tuesday's regular meeting.

The board is expected to make the appointment at the Aug. 26 meeting, Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond said. The Aug. 26 meeting was to have been held Aug. 19, but that session will be postponed Tuesday, Hammond said.

Woman Injured In Motorcycle Crash

Elizabeth Murray, 21, of 9 Murray Lane, Larkspur, was yesterday treated for sprains on her left wrist and right knee at Marin General Hospital after the motorcycle on which she was a passenger collided with a car driven by Priscilla Hebberd, 37, of 38 El Camino, Corte Madera, at Magnolia Avenue and Dartmouth Drive, police reported.

The cycle, driven by James Miner, 20, a Treasurer Island sailor, was struck by the car at about 12:45 p.m. at a detour section where Magnolia is being widened to four lanes, police said.

flashed on screen, landmarks well known to astronomers from telescopic photographs from earth came into prominence.

The ragged cap edge became visible on frame 20, causing a laboratory spokesman to comment: "Perhaps the most exciting result is that some pictures show a ragged edge on the southern polar cap, possibly caused by the presence of mountains or craters. This is new information."

The cap's dark spot, which the spokesman said had not been noted before and which he could not explain, showed on frame 30. Another feature of final shots was that the north polar cap, barely visible in early pictures, stood out brightly.

Mariner 6 is being followed by five days by Mariner 7, similarly squipped and on a similar mission. Their cameras and other instruments are designed to determine whether Mars, one of the sky's most intriguing bodies, can harbor life. It is known to have a thin atmosphere, clouds, seasonal color changes, lines some have linked to canals — all of which has caused some astronomers to conclude it could have intelligent life.

Bales said he would mail sections of the Brown Act pertaining to closed meetings and special meetings to all city councilmen in Marin.

and Hirasaki and Carpentier are considered vital in determining if lunar material is dangerous to man. The five were the first human beings to come in contact with matter from the moon.

Scientists also planned to inject pulverized specks of the moon into germ-free white mice late today, testing if poison or living creatures exists in lunar rocks that could endanger life on earth.

The experiment, which calls for treating 264 mice over the next 50 days, will determine if moon stones gathered by the Apollo 11 astronauts can safely be delivered to scientists in many parts of the world.

Officials had hoped to begin the tests this morning, but delayed a few hours to allow time for additional preparations.

If the astronauts develop no illness that can be traced to the moon, the quarantine ends on Aug. 11. If an illness does develop, the quarantine could go on indefinitely.

The space agency announced that if all goes well the astronauts would make their first public appearance at a press conference planned for Aug. 12. They entered the lunar receiving laboratory last Sunday.

But while they're out of sight, they're not forgotten.

Space agency officials said the mailroom at the Manned Spacecraft Center was being swamped by letters and telegrams to the moonmen.

For seven minutes last night television viewers rode the lunar module Eagle to a landing on the moon.

They watched movies of the moonship as it descended to the pocked surface July 20, veered away from a hazardous, gaping crater and touched down amid outflung lunar dust.

And they saw Armstrong go cautiously down a ladder, pause, and then plant man's first footprint on the moon.

This was the first of the Apollo 11 movie footage in color and it captured much of the drama of the landing by Armstrong and Aldrin.

The color films were shown to newsmen at the Manned Spacecraft Center and transmitted simultaneously by network television to viewers across the country. Part of the adventure was televised live July 20, but that was in black and white.

The first still photographs, also in color, were sprinkled with footprints and eerie silhouettes of the spaceship, and showed the American flag perched on the beach-like surface.

A second set of stills, released last night, caught Armstrong inside the lunar module, showed the landing site from above and rocks on the lunar soil. This set also included a picture of earth with Europe, Africa and Asia visible.

wholesale prices of farm products, including a downturn in the recent sharp climb of cattle prices.

But Chase cautioned it could be several months before this might be translated into more stable beef prices at the supermarket.

The preliminary report on July prices, if later confirmed by more complete figures, would be the smallest rise in the wholesale price index in nine months.

The one-tenth of 1 per cent rise would be about a third the average monthly rise of more than three-tenths over the past year.

The increase brought the wholesale price index, measuring food and a broad range of industrial raw materials, to 113.3. This means that $100 worth of wholesale goods in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based now costs an average of $113.30.

Industrial commodities averaged two-tenths of 1 per cent higher, a considerably slower rise than earlier this year, but "This still leaves something to be desired," Chase said.

The industrials price increase was largely in metals and machinery because "worldwide demand is very strong," Chase said.

Another 750 U.S. Troops Leave War

SAIGON (AP) — Another 750 American troops left Vietnam today under President Richard M. Nixon's plan to cut back U.S. strength by 25,000 men by the end of August.

The Fourth Battalion, 39th Infantry of the Ninth Infantry Division boarded planes at Bien Hoa air base north of Saigon for Hawall as Nixon arrived for a visit. It will be held in ready reserve there at Schofield Barracks.

The battalion, now commanded by Maj. Ronald W. Crooks, of Albany, had been in Vietnam since Jan. 3, 1967.

The U.S. Command said the latest departure raised to 7,400 the number of American servicemen withdrawn from Vietnam since Nixon announced the cutback June 8.

The withdrawal coincided with some increase of fighting in provinces around Saigon although the general lull in sustained ground action and enemy attacks moved into its seventh week today.

The biggest fight reported during the past 24 hours centered 30 miles west of Saigon and only four miles from the Cambodian border, along a key infiltration route.

U.S. infantrymen from the 25th Division and South Vietnamese irregulars reported 63 enemy soldiers and nine Americans killed in an eight-hour fight Tuesday. Ten Americans were wounded.

South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.

The American infantrymen swept in by helicopter to reinforce government reconnaissance troops who had run into North Vietnamese bunkers.

Twelve hours earlier other troops from the 25th Division killed 53 enemy soldiers in the same general area.

homes, why they're here, what they think, and in some way you can sense their feelings . . . We are very fortunate that we can produce men like that."

One of the few bits of sports chatter he blew was upon greeting a GI from Minnesota.

"Ah Packer territory!" exclaimed the President, neglecting to mention the Minnesota Vikings.

Nixon's conversations with the troops covered everything from the moon landing to Army chow.

He grinned as he said he thought one question universal in the minds of servicemen was the quality of the food.

"The food is a great improvement over what we used to have. Now refrigeration has come along . . . new food processes.

"Actually, if you didn't have the food to gripe about you'd have to find something else."

The chief executive chatted occasionally about the astronauts. He was told by one soldier that many men at the base had stayed up all night to watch reruns of the moon trip on armed forces television.

"You fellows are young enough," he said. "You'll be going to Mars."

matters frankly and fully with the American people upon his return Monday," the vice president went on. An aide said Nixon might go on radio and television at that time to get the public behind him.

Prior to the statement by Agnew, who canceled a West Coast speaking engagement today to be on hand to fight for extension, the surtax appeared the probable victim of a Democrat-GOP Senate deadlock.

The temporary extension of payroll withholding rates including the surtax expires at midnight tomorrow, and both sides in the dispute agree if this happens it will be very difficult to revive the surcharge.

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee held firm yesterday on its proposal for a five-month extension of the surtax, rather than the one-year plan of the administration. The Democrats said their proposal would give the Senate time to work out a broad tax reform bill which they say must accompany continuance of the surtax.

And the Democrats turned the screws tighter by announcing they would not consider a 15-day extension of the paycheck withholding rates which the House approved yesterday.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said today, "our opposition is unchanged" in the controversy.

He said the offer to extend the surtax five months remained open for action in the Senate today and tomorrow, if the Republicans would agree to it.

Mansfield said no further meeting of the Democratic Policy Committee was planned as of now.

As for Agnew's statement, the majority leader said the administration's position had not been transmitted to him officially in any way.

"I learned of it from the press," he said.

Views On Police Relations To Be Gathering Topic

Human rights commissioners and police officers from San Jose to Alameda have been invited to meet with the police-community relations committee of the Marin County Human Rights Commission at 8 p.m. today in Romm 400 at the Civic Center.

Bella Aaron, chairman of the police community relations committee, said "We've invited human rights commissioners and police officers from San Jose, San Mateo, Richmonf, and Alameda and Department of Justice marshals from San Francisco to meet with us."

She said she will reprot on what Marin is doing in police community relations, and will exchange ideas with the visiting officials.

Marijuana In Pots At Ranch; Two Arrested

Two Bolinas men were jailed yesterday after sheriff's deputies found a collection of potted marijuana plants in a junked luxury car at the Francisco Ranch on Bolinas-Olema Road.

Gerald Steven Granados, 24, and John Allen Reynolds, 19, both of the ranch, were booked on suspicion of cultivating marijuana and later released on their own recognizance to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Deputies said they got a call Monday from an unidentified woman who said she saw marijuana plants growing at the rear of the Francisco Ranch. Deputy Harry E. Bock went to the ranch that night and reported finding two plants growing in a pot.

Next day Bock and Sgt. Robert Bertrand went to the ranch and reportedly found several pots and planters full of marijuana plants in a wrecked Lincoln Continental in the yard.

As Granados and Reynolds were being arrested, an unknown third man dashed from the house and disappeared down the road, deputies said.

Sanitation Budget Is Approved

A budget of $144,800 for fiscal 1969-70, down $100 from last year, was approved last night by the Richardson Bay Sanitary District Board, secretary Douglas De La Fontaine reported.

The budget will require a tax rate of 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation, a decrease of 5 cents from last year, he said.

Increased property assessments plus the slight budget reduction were responsible for the tax cut, De La Fontaine said.

Included in the budget were treatment plant maintenance and salaries, $51,000; administration, including board members salaries, $27,000; payment to the Sausalito-Marin City sanitary District, $31,000; sludge dewatering and combustion system, $11,000; line maintenance and monitoring program, $16,500; smoke bomb testing, $4,500; capital improvements, $5,900; and landscaping, $1,200.

Not included, De La Fontaine said, were funds for the elimination of odor problems at the Trestle Glen treatment plant because the board has agreed to finance odor improvements with reserve funds.

Georgia Pacific Gives $6 Million Park Land Parcel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Nature Conservancy today announced that the Georgia Pacific Corp. had donated 390 acres of prime Redwood forestland on the Van Duzen River in Northern California for uses as a park.

Officials estimated the value of the land at $6 million and said it was one of the largest gifts in the "history of the American conservation movement." The land embraces two Redwood groves about 12 miles southeast of Fortuna, in Humboldt County.

Robert B. Pamplin, Portland, Ore., chairman and president of Georgia Pacific, gave the deed to the land to Thomas W. Richards, president of the Nature Conservatory, at a noon ceremony. Richards then symbolically handed the deed to William Penn Mott, chief of the California Park System, which will administer the park.

Fairfax Dogs Poisoned, Police Say

Two Fairfax dogs who frequent the city parks have been poisoned, apparently by strychnine, police reported today. Both were saved.

Police said the first dog was found crossing the park, acting strangely and jerking. Its owner, Scott Dillingham found the dog and took it to a veterinarian.

Dillingham, of 20 Park Road, told police the dog left the home in the early morning.

The second dog, which went strolling in the early morning hours, was found by a friend of owner Teresa Sage, 44 Bolinas Road. It also was acting strangely and was taken to a veterinarian.

Police said nothing has been found in the parks to indicate the dogs picked up the poison there. However, visits to the parks were regular practices of both animals.

The first poisoning occurred last Wednesday, the second on Monday.

Fire Alarms At Civic Center Will Be Tested

The fire alarms at the Civic Center and the new Hall of Justice will be ringing tomorrow and possibly Friday, but they will be only test rings.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost said the test is necessary to make sure that the fire alarm is properly connected to the new system in the Hall of Justice building. Alarms will be going off at various intervals tomorrow. If the tests are not completed in one day, further tests will be made on Friday.

"Every effort will be made to keep the individual rings as short as possible to distinguish them from an actual emergency, which is a long continuous ring," said Frost. "If any emergency should arise, the main switchboard will advise various departments."

Hickel, Western Governors Talk

SEATTLE (AP) — Western governors, calling for relief from federal red tape which they charge has hampered development of their natural resources, huddled today with Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

"We are interested in getting recognition of state's rights as far as natural resources are concerned," said Idaho's Republican Gov. Don Samuelson.

"Federal monies to the state without too restrictive guidelines could help the states develop larger outdoor recreational areas on their own," Republican Gov. Paul Laxalt of Nevada said.

Drugs Suspect Nabbed In Chase In Mill Valley

A 21-year-old Novato man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of marijuana and dangerous drug possession, resisting arrest and a traffic warrant following a two-block foot chase through a Mill Valley business district.

Richard Keynard Driskill of 50 Torres Road was released from Marin County Jail on $1,250 bail to appear at 2 p.m. Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Mill Valley police said officers stopped a car in which Driscoll was a passenger at 3:15 p.m. on Miller Avenue at La Goma Street to arrest him on a $25 traffic warrant.

When officers approached the car, Driskill ran Miller Avenue to Evergreen Street and then back up the other side of the street to Montford Avenue where officers caught him.

Found in his clothing, police said, were multicolored pellets and a substance which appeared to be marijuana.

Hanoi Remains Silent About Freeing Trio

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials expressed concern today over the lengthening time elapsed with no word when Hanoi will release three American prisoners.

Without identifying them, North Vietnam announced on July 3 it was releasing three captured Americans.

Their release first was expected on the July 4 holiday, and again last Friday, a week after the arrival in Hanoi of a delegation of four U.S. peace activists who were to make arrangements.

The next weekly flight of an international control commission plane from Hanoi to Vientiane, Laos, is Friday.

TALKS ABOUT FATHER

Busdieker On Stand In Death Trial

Larry Glenn Busdieker "tried to be a father," his son, David Vaughn Busdieker told a Marin Superior Court jury yesterday.

Busdieker, 20, accused of fatally stabbing his father, also testified as he was cross-examined by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas that his father tried to protect him.

Thomas referred specifically to an incident in 1966 when the younger Busdieker, of Corte Madera, was arrested and his father begged officers not to take his son to Juvenile Hall. Busdieker agreed the account was true.

Thomas also established the elder Busdieker had made no attempt to arm himself the night last December when he was stabbed with an eight-inch-bladed butcher knife.

Young Busdieker testified he had made no attempt to leave the house and get away from his father — who was threatening to kill him and swinging at him — because he was afraid for his mother. He said he thought he and his mother might be able to calm his father down.

Busdieker has testified repeatedly he was afraid his father would kill him that night.

"I was always scared of my dad," he said yesterday.

He admitted under questioning by Thomas that he had threatened to kill his father in the past, but couldn't remember when.

Much of what Thomas asked the youth about the night his father died he couldn't remember. He had testified under direct examination that he was standing in front of his father and the next thing he remembered his father was on the floor. He said he does not remember his father being cut on the arm, a would believed to have preceded the fatal blow in the chest.

Under redirect examination by defense Atty. Roger Garety Busdieker testified there had been a change in his father in the weeks preceding his death.

"He was drinking all the time. He just wouldn't pay any attention to anyone," the youth said

Busdieker testified his father had sworn at him before in "harsh" tones but he was not afraid then. The night he died, his tones were wild, Busdieker said.

The only other defense witness called yesterday, Gregory Keeler, 19, of Lake Tahoe, formerly of Corte Madera, cleaned up the mystery of the lost car keys which had precipitated the argument between father and son.

Keeler, who was with the younger Busdieker the night before the early morning stabbing, testified he had taken the keys and hidden them because he didn't think Busdieker should drive any more that night.

He said another friend had reported Busdieker had been driving too fast.

Busdieker had thought the keys were lost.

Testimony in the case before Judge Harold J. Haley was expected to end today.

Boy, 12, Held On Suspicion Of Car Theft

A 12-year-old Concord boy has been booked at Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of car theft after he was found hiding in bushes on a Marinwood street near the abandoned car.

Deputy Sheriff W. W. Weidauer reported he saw the car driving at high speed on Cedarberry Drive at 11 p.m. Monday and gave chase. A moment later he found the car abandoned on the lawn at 2175 Danberry Drive.

Several witnesses pointed out which way the driver ran, and Weidauer found 12-year-old Douglas R. Thoman in shrubbery at 633 Cedarberry Drive.

Juveniles in the neighborhood said Thoman had lived in the area about a week, staying with other youths.

The car, which reportedly had been taken a few minutes before Weidauer saw it, is registered to Grey Dresser of 573 Idylberry Drive.

Marinite Named To Commission

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Susan Schwab of San Rafael yesterday was appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to a 20-member Commission on Education Reform to review the state's public school systems and recommend improvements.

Mrs. Schwab, a member of both the Marin and state Republican central committees, was women's chairman of Reagan's Marin campaign for governor in 1966. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Stanford University.

She is the wife of Charles R. Schwab and resides at 40 Oak Mountain Court.

The governor said the new commission would study possible changes in school finances, administration, teacher training, certification and curriculum.

A similar 24-member committee appointed by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1966 made its recommendations last September, but they were not implemented. Its recommendations included new methods of training teachers, starting education earlier in life for children, establishment of special schools to test new ideas, and more racial integration.

The governor's education secretary, Dr. Alex Sheriffs, who told newsmen he learned only Monday night of the previous committee's study, said a new study was a good idea because "there's something really different in this new breed of youngsters." He said the commission's first report would be made in December.

Burglar Hits Tourists' Cars On Mount Tam

A thief who broke into two cars atop Mount Tamalpais stole more than $1,100 worth of travelers' checks and $57 in cash from six victims, sheriff's deputies reported today.

Both cars were entered Monday afternoon at the parking lot on the east peak.

The larger haul was from the car of Audrey Dalen of Denver, Colo. Miss Dalen reported losing $800 in travelers' checks, $10 in cash, her credit cards and driver's license. Houseboat Colony Gets Ultimatum

Donlan J. Arques and his houseboat colony must submit a timetable for correction of health and safety hazards at the "earliest possible" time, or the county will move ahead with the razing of hazardous houseboats and walkways, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared yesterday.

T. J. Nelsen, who operates a marine service on Arques property, assured supervisors Areques would build a new pier between Sonoma and Montrey streets to comply with electrical and building codes, and said houseboats that do not comply would be moved or brought up to standards.

Supervisor Chairman John F. McInnis said the board reaffirms its policy of abating unsafe walks and dockways, hazardous electircal wiring, and removing houseboats that encroach on county underwater streets.

The supervisors agreed to give Nelsoi, who spoke for Arques, time to build a new dock and make corrections.

"I want to be prepared to be as rough as need be to abate the hazards," said McInnis. "But I'd be willing to withhold the exercise of arbitrary authority so long as there is evidence of cooperative effort."

He asked Nelsen and the county staff to report back Aug. 12 on progress made to correct the hazards.

Compromise In Flap Over New Apartments

Marin County Supervisors voted a compromise zoning measure yesterday that appeared to end conflict in Santa Venetia over proposed apartments near Gallinas Village. (Another supervisors story, page 23.)

New zoning would require owner-builder P. J. Tarrant to reduce the number of units in the two-acre project from 56 to 48.

The move came after 30 Gallinas Valley residents gathered to protest the North San Pedro Road development, urging a density reduction to 42 apartments. Tarrant complained it would cost him $108,000 already invested if the tougher measure passed.

The County Supervisors Also:

FLOOD CONTROL — Authorized payment of $252,980 to Marin Junior College for right of way through college land for the second phase of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

ASSESSMENTS — Authorized county assessment roll changes and set a hearing on increases for Aug. 5 at 9:15 a.m.

COMPUTER GRANT — Approved a $3,000 contract with Computer Usage Development Corporation of San Francisco for retrieval of county housing data.

EASEMENTS — Deeded a water line easement in the civic center to Marin Municipal Water District and accepted a quitclaim from the district for a portion of unused right of way.

RETIREMENT — Voted a resolution of commendation to Joseph P. Henneberry of San Anselmo, who will retire at the end of this month after 19 years as court clerk and law librarian at the County Courthouse.

HALL OF JUSTICE — Decided the county should not move into the Hall of Justice until all the cabinet work and cleanup have been completed. Administrator Alan Bruce reported that architect Aaron Green believes the new building will not be ready for final inspection for another month, and the county is studying possible penalty recovery from the contractor because the deadline for completion was last week.

ADMISSION DAC — Decided not to meet on Sept. 9 because it falls on Admission Day, a holiday.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE — Approved a list of 33 Marin residents as the county's Family and Children's Advisory Committee to study problems of families on public aid.

INSURANCE — Approved an outlay of $5,40 to get a domestic firm to insure the county against false arrest. Lloyd's of London has refused to renew the policy because eight claims were filed last year.

COMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT — Thanked the county administrator for an "excellent" report on the county communications department. Personnel Analyst Richard Uchida reported that Director John H. Atkinson was not guilty of harassing.

Assemblymen Ask Penal System Overhaul Study

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative study of how to overhaul California's penal system has been proposed by Assemblymen John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, and Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles.

The present system, which includes San Quentin Prison "is currently wasting lives and money," their resolution stated, and "is in need of a major overhaul if it is to be effective in returning former prisoners to a constructive role in society.

"Lengthy periods of confinement, arbitrary rules governing parole, and idle, purposeless lives in prisons have led to increased criminality, rather than rehabilitation of prisoners," they declared.

They asked that a report on the study be made to the Legislature at the beginning of the 1970 session in January.

Marinwood Sets Four Outings In August

A program of recreation activities has been planned for August, Marinwood Recreation Director William A. Gordon announced.

Scheduled are an adult moonlight horseback ride and barbecue from the Marinwood Community Center at 6:30 p.m. Friday; a trip to San Francisco to see the Giants-Pirates baseball game Aug. 12; a trip to the ice follies in San Francisco Aug. 20; and a junior olympics for all ages at the Community Center from 10 a.m. Aug. 23.

More Money Sought For Pipe Project

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the Department of Public Works to apply for more federal funds for the Meadow Drive drainage porject in Santa Venetia because the project will cost more than expected.

The drainage improvement plan calls for 3,000 feet of reinforced concrete pipe to be laid along Meadow Drive from North San Pedro Road to Gallinas Creek.

A low bid of $264,684 is about $55,500 more than available funds, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported. The project is funded jointly by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Santa Venetia Flood Control Zone, and the county road budget.

On a motion by Michael Wornum, the supervisors asked Frost to apply for $22,900 more from HUD, raising the federal grant from $109,800 to $132,700.

The remaining deficit would be shared equally by the flood control zone and the county road fund, each contributing $16,300.

Canada's French-speaking province of Quebec spans 594,860 square miles, almost three times the area of France itself.

30-Member Panel To Study Aid To Needy

A 30-member committee to study problems of families receiving public aid and to make recommendations to the Marin County Board of Supervisors was named yesterday by the supervisors.

The group, called Family and Children's Advisory Committee, succeeds the former Aid to Families with Dependent Children Task Force, which went out of existence last month.

On a motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors accepted a list of 33 persons who are willing to serve on the committee. Of the 33 persons, 30 will be regular committee members, and three alternates.

Here is the complete list:

From San Rafael, Lottie Mae Hall, Sue Wagoner, Alice Brown, Diane Brock, Dorothy Smith, Marion Kelley, Peter Palmer, Shirley Schell, Sandra MacLees, Anna Marie Long, Marion Barbier, Chester Villalba, Barbara Traverso, and Evelyn Plan.

From Novato, Grace Jurkowski and Eldon Hasstedt; San Anselmo, Mary Ryan and James Kilty; Marin City, Mary Brooks, Jackie Harris, and Dorothy Seales; Fairfax, Deanne Stockeland, Mary Bell and Carmen Kline.

From Larkspur, Lynne Bishop, Sabella Richardson and Jean Glascock; Mill Valley, Marjorie Harmon and Janey Rice; Lagunitas, James Copening and Winifred Frederick; Sausalito, Charlotte Jones; Nicasio, Georgette Vilas.

Attendant Finds Safe In Brush

A peeled-open safe was found Sunday in brush below Panoramic Highway near Pan Toll Ranger Station, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Park attendant William G. Shaffer was cleaning trash along the highway at 11 a.m. when he spotted the safe 40 feet down the hill two miles east of Pan Toll.

Deputies said the door had been peeled off the safe, which was a Sargent and Greenleaf model measuring 28 inches high and 20 by 21 inches wide. Inside were only two items — an empty brown drug bottle and a single stretch sock.

Deputies said the safe number was not on their lists of known safecrackings.

Display Of Fuchsias

The Marin Branch of the American Fuchsia Society will display fuchsias of Marin from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Livermore Room, Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross. Included in the show will be antique china, silverware, jewelry and linens.

McCarthy Assails Cut In Lab Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A resolution urging Congress to restore a $600,000 cut in the budget of the Marine Mineral Technology Center in Tiburon has been introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael. (Other Legislature stories, page 10.)

Citing the center's research as "necessary for the entire United States," McCarthy's resolution said that Soviet explorations of mineral and fishing wealth in the Pacific made it "imperative that our country be the first to obtain such knowledge."

The cut was more than one third of the center's operating budget of about $1.5 million last fiscal year, and 40 of the 92 employees had to be dropped. In addition, according to Research Director Arthur P. Nelson, the cut meant the 204-foot research ship "Virginia City" will be unable to operate, and activities of the center's smaller vessel, "Cripple Creek," will be severely curtailed.

The center was set up in 1963 to develop techniques to exploit minerals on and below the sea floor. It is the only federal research laboratory doing such work, Nelson said.

India has tripled the number of school teachers since becoming an independent state.

Fifth Plan Is Filed For Creek Development

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An apparently indefatigable San Anselmo developer has applied for a fifth time to the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission for a permit to fill more than half of a 96-acre marshland parcel in Corte Madera.

The application by Frank M. Burke is for the same $1.5 million plan rejected by the commission on Jan. 17. It included a marina, bayside park, motel-restaurant-shop area, fishing pier, 33 acres of light industrial sites and 44.6 acres preserved in their natural state. Commissioners' objections centered on the industrial sites, which they said could go on dry land and did not need bay fill.

A hearing on the application will be held at 2 p.m. on Aug. 7 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The parcel is at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek. Burke has an option on the parcel, owned by W. J. Heerdt of San Francisco.

Burke's first plan was largely for light industry. His second plan included a 33-acre golf course and an 11-acre marsh to be donated to the Town of Corte Madera. The third and fourth plans were similar, except that the fourth one substituted a seven-acre motel site for some of the area set aside for light industry in the third plan.

NEW NOVATO LIBRARY

This is how the new half-million-dollar Novato Library will look from the inside, with glass windows in the meeting room facing the trees along Novato Creek. This and other preliminary sketches by Mill Valley architect Claude Stoller won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. Supervisors asked Stoller to draw up final plans. The 11,000-square-foot building will have an interior courtyard, with two reading rooms and reference rooms facing the court. It will be air-conditioned, have masonry walls, and high wooden ceiling with red concrete tile roof. Total cost will be $543,900, including $134,500 for the land, a 1.5-acre parcel on Novato Boulevard west of Tamalpais Avenue.

Dedication Set Aug. 7 For Caroline S. Livermore Wall

The new Caroline S. Livermore wall bordering the Marin Art and Garden Center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross will be dedicated at 4:30 p.m. Aug 7 at the center's Oleander Bowl.

The undulating brick wall, similar to the Thomas Jefferson wall at the University of Virginia, was named in honor of the late Marin conservationist who founded the center in 1945 and was its first president. One brick thick, the wall is curved to give it necessary strength as well as grace.

The wall, built prior to the opening of this year's Marin Art and Garden Fair, is to be continued to run partially along Laurel Grove Avenue when more funds are received, Mrs. Fred Herrington, dedication chairman, reported.

Main speaker at the Aug. 7 ceremony will be Eugene A. Bechtel of Ross. George S. Livermore, Mrs. Livermore's son and designer of the wall, will also speak.

Charles Prescott of the Bohemian Club will sing "Trees" and Mrs. Livermore's favorite song, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Injuries Minor In Mill Valley Crash

Robin Hoglund, 26, of 33 Mountain View Road, Fairfax, was treated Monday for a cut forehead at Marin General Hospital following an automobile accident at Miller and Montford avenues in Mill Valley at 12:23 p.m., police reported yesterday.

Police said her car was hit by another car driven by Sidney P. Chapin, 29, of 104 Eldridge Avenue, after she had driven through a stop sign at the intersection.

Top Tam Salary Hiked To $14,950

Tamalpais High School District trustees yesterday approved a new fifth scale in the 1969-70 salary schedule for teachers which will boost top pay to $14,950 — an increase of $1,050 over last year.

The figure represents a victory for the Tamalpais District Teachers Association. In June the association won a request that salary talks be reopened after the board had already approved a 5 per cent pay hike with a top of $14,500.

The board's vote on the new scale was 3-2.

The increase is expected to add $45,000 to the district's budget figure of $3.8 million for teacher salaries during the coming school year.

The new "E" scale in the schedule, which the teachers proposed, will affect 90 to 100 of the district's 300 teachers. To qualify a teacher will need a bachelor of arts degree and 75 additional units of college work.

"This proposal is acceptable to the TDTA," said Roy Kemper, spokesman for the negotiating council.

Kemper and other representatives of the council said they considered the increase "a step toward cooperation" with the board on other matters as well.

"It gives us hope for the future," Kemper said. Teachers will now work for a revamping of the entire salary schedule and establishment of an "unequivalency policy," by which teachers could earn unit credits by participating in workshops and seminars, as well as in regular college courses, he added.

The board agreed to appoint two members to a joint committee to study the equivalency proposal with the teachers.

But trustees made no change in the so-called "D-28" classification approved in June which provides a $1,000 longevity bonus for teachers with 15 years of service who are at the top of the fourth scale.

Trustees Bette Wallace said she was delighted with the agreement reached yesterday. "I feel we all have done our damnest," she said.

Voting with her were Robert W. Corlett and Gloria Melbostad. Trustee David D. Ring voted against the increase and Frank L. Miller, who was not present yesterday, had asked that his opposition at a closed session Monday night be registered.

Mrs. Melbostad indicated possible opposition Monday after a teacher negotiator introduced into discussion some doubt as to whether the rank-and-file of teachers would really be all that in favor of the new salary scale.

She said yesterday she finally decided to vote for the proposal because she simply "had to go along in this particular case." She said, "It has been long and gruelling. We did the best we could."

Ring said he spoke for Miller as well as expressing the dissenting viewpoint on the increase. Miller was absent from yesterday's session.

"The real issue is whether the increase is a reasonable one," he said.

"I strongly believe the 5 per cent increase was reasonable and fair and proportionate to other quality districts. I think the new increase is really out of line."

However, Ring said he had hopes the opposition by him and Miller would not create "personal animosities" between the board and teachers in the future.

Teachers with a secondary credential and 60 units of additional work now will have a top of $14,500; those with at least 42 units can earn a high of $13,555; those with 24 units can receive $12,615 top, and teachers with less than 24 units can earn a top of $9,980.

Order Is Lifted On Quaill Hill Grading

A temporary restraining order against dust-raising grading at the Quail Hill residential and office project at Northgate has been lifted by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Action was based on agreements signed Saturday between property owners Carl S. Vella and Selwyn Saccks and the Marco Investment Co., who filed suit against Quail Hill, Inc., Commerce Clearing House, A. Teichert and Son, grading contractor, and 100 John Does. The suit charged that dust was causing damage to properties.

Urbutt Resigns From Sanitary District Board

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board accepted the resignation Monday of member Carl F. Urbutt, who is moving out of the district, board President Cyril G. Hansen reported yesterday.

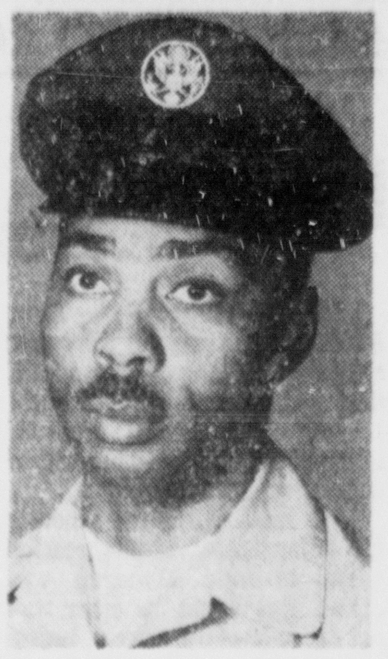
Hansen said the board expects to consider candidates for the vacancy at the next regular meeting Aug. 25.

The board also set Sept. 15 as the deadline for candidates filing for election to the three board terms which expire this year. The election is Nov. 4. Hansen said petitions will be available after Aug. 21 at the sanitary district office or the county clerk's office.

In other business Monday night, the board took no action on a request by a group of residents who live near the Old American Distilling Co. at Bridgeway and Nevada Street to provide garbage collection services.

Hansen said there was little the board could do until the future of the distillery area — which is an annexation target of Sausalito — is settled.

The board also passed resolutions maintaining current sewer service charges and authorizing final payment to Maggiora and Ghilotti of Corte Madera for completion of the Princess Street pumping station.



PICKED CREW CHIEF— S/Sgt. Willis H. Booker of 835 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, was named Crew Chief of the Month at Hamilton Air Force Base. He is assigned to the 78th Organizational Maintenance Squadron and was cited for his working knowledge of the Fairchild C-119, his job performance and military bearing.

Monagan Admits Tax Reform Is Dead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Even Republican Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan was admitting today that Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform program is dead for 1969 — barring a legislative miracle.

With the Legislature shooting for adjournment of the session within 10 days, Monagan was asked last night whether the net result of a day's angry maneuvering was that Reagan's prized program is dead for the year.

"That's right," he replied.

The GOP leader from Tracy pointed out that Reagan's program, introduced months ago, hasn't even been put on the file for a hearing in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

He pointed out, however, the fact of legislative life that "nothing is dead around here until adjournment."

But his comments underlined another fact: It would take a turnover of miracle proportions for the governor's highly publicized plan of tax increases to finance tax reductions for the homeowner to pass the Assembly and the Senate by the end of next week.

It was a united front of all 41 Republicans plus one Democrat — Carley Porter of Compton — that turned back a Democratic try last night to bring Reagan's package to an immediate debate before the lower house sitting as a "committee of the whole."

The move, which surprised and angered Monagan, was made by Democratic Assemblyman Jack Fenton of Montebello after Monagan thought an amicable agreement to end the day's angry proceedings had been reached.

Fenton said he took the action as a chance "to give all of us, members of both parties, to back what we said before . . . and go on record as for or against the governor's tax package."

Democrats had spent all day on various maneuvers they hoped would force Republicans to bring the GOP governor's tax plan to the floor.

Monagan and other Republicans have indicated it's too late in the session to pass Reagan's bills. They noted the whole plan is based on voter approval at the statewide June 1970 election, so there will be time to pass the legislation early next year.

Democrats say they can provide up to 24 votes in favor of the proposal. But, they say, a number of Republicans fear that voter reaction to the Reagan plan could boomerang against them at the polls, and don't want it on the ballot.

DISCLOSURE

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate has given final approval to a conflict of interest and financial disclosure bill which one opponent said was as hard to vote against as motherhood.

The 26-5 vote sending the bill to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk came after another senator tried to amend the bill "to make it as harmless as possible." Not casting a vote was Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Under the measure passed yesterday, all public officials—state, county and city — as well as candidates for public office would have to reveal their financial holdings in excess of $10,000, and list campaign contributions and contributors above $500.

The bill by Assemblyman Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, drew bipartisan support from 16 Democrats and 10 Republicans. All five opponents were Republicans.

Its upper house sponsor, Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, admitted, "This bill doesn't do everything, but it does some healthy things. It will let the public know what holdings we have that might influence our decisions.

Sen. Clark Bradley, R-San Jose, tried to amend the bill to limit its provisions to state officials only.

BAN LIFTED

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California voters will be able to go to the polls, bars and liquor stores — not necessarily in that order — during next June's statewide primary election.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's office said yesterday he signed a bill by Assemblyman Carlos Bee, D-Hayward, wiping out the last vestiges of the ban on the sale of alcoholic beverages on election day.

The eletion-day prohibition tradition, which covered all elections in the state when it was instituted in the 1930s, had been eroded over the years to cover only statewide elections, and then only during hours the polls were open.

The effects of the new law will first be felt during the primary next June unless any special statewide election is held before then.

One-Cent Hike In Gasoline Tax Will End On Aug. 31

SACRAMENTO (AP) — When California motorists pull into service stations starting Sept.1, they'll be pleased to learn they're paying a penny a gallon less for gasoline.

Gov. Ronald Reagan announced yesterday the temporary one-cent increase in the state gasoline tax — instituted to pay for repairs to storm-damaged roads — will be dropped Aug. 31, three months ahead of schedule.

That will reduce the levy from eight to seven cents per gallon. The tax has been in effect since June 1.

The bill enacted earlier this year by the Legislature called for the additional tax for up to six months and gave the governor the power to terminate it any time after the first month.

Reagan is attending the Western Governors Conference in Seattle. His announcement was made through his office.

He said State Public Works Director James A. Moe recommended the early cutoff date.

Reagan said that, by Aug. 31, $24 million will be raised and the additional funds, along with $1.6 million already available in flood funds, will be sufficient to repair the state and local roads damaged in last winter's storm.

The governor also said there will be enough left over from the gasoline tax income to pay for a bill now moving through the legislature which would set aside funds to pay mountain counties and cities in meeting snow removal costs.

Last winter's heavy snow burdened the budgets of about 20 counties and four cities to remove it.

Tidelands Access Effort In Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A proposed ordinance to insure public access to state tidelands was offered yesterday to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors by local conservationists.

Attorney Richard E. Day of Californians Organized to Acquire Access to State Tidelands said the proposed ordinance was offered by the group as a basis for study and discussion on access problems.

The ordinance, as proposed by the conservationists, would prohibit the development of subdivisions on the west side of Shoreline Highway unless the developers dedicate roads to the public or provide reasonable access to usable tidelands in another manner.

Day said the ordinance had been drawn up several months ago and given to Supervisor Ignacio A. Vella of Sonoma with the understanding that he would offer it to the board for discussion. When Vella did not do that, Supervisor Robert E. Theiller of Sebastopol agreed to offer it yesterday.

Not expecting rapid board action, Day said the ordinance would first be discussed by the county planning commission. He said an interpretation by the courts may be necessary later.

The organization had opposed the supervisors' action to exclude the Sea Ranch development from any future public access ordinances.

"The board set a bad precedent in ruling out public access at Sea Ranch," Day said.

Sea Ranch, owned by Oceanic Properties, Inc., is located on 10.5 miles of the coast near the Conoma-Mendocino county line.

If the earth were perfectly smooth and round, the ocean would cover it to a depth of 12,000 feet.

City Citation System A Flop So Far—Judges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A police program of issuing citations instead of making arrests for minor offenses is not working properly, judges reported.

After two weeks of the new program, judges reported yesterday that only 50 per cent of those cited had appeared in court, so the judges began issuing bench warrants.

"At least 90 per cent must show up for the program to work," said Ed Cummings, supervising police captain. "If less, there'll be more man-hours lost chasing down the bench warrants."

"However, we will give the program every reasonable means to succeed," he added.

If the plan worked, it would save police time and be less of a burden on those cited because they would not have to post bail for release after arrests.

Cigarette Foe Now Plans To Seek Only A Stiff Warning

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The sponsor of a bill to ban cigarette advertising in California yielded today to opposition and proposed instead to require a stiff warning to accompany all smoking advertisements. (Other Legislature stories, pages 1 and 10.)

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson said he will submit the amendment when his Senate-passed measure is heard by the Assembly Commerce and Public Utilities Committee later today.

He said the change substantially alters the bill that drew nationwide attention as the toughest antismoking measure passed yet by a state legislative chamber. It cleared the Senate 28-7.

But the Beverly Hills Democrat said he will strike the outright ban since the cigarette industry has voluntarily agreed to phase out its radio and television commercials by September 1970.

Joseph Mahoney, lobbyist for eight major cigarette makers, has said he would vigorously oppose the bill to ban the industry's advertisements.

Beilenson said his intentions when he introduced the measure were to stop what he called "offensive" advertising by cigarette manufacturers. He said the broadcast ban would nearly accomplish that.

However, in return for the broadcast phaseout the cigarette industry could still advertise in the printed media, which Beilenson said would be covered by his measure.

He proposed a warning recommended by the federal trade commission be tagged on to all cigarette advertisement. It reads:

"Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic brochitis, pulmonary emphysema nad other diseases."

VOICES IMPATIENCE

Viet Veteran For Bomb Resumptions

By SUZANNE WOOD

A young Vietnam War veteran, who lost his legs in the conflict, last night denounced the de-escalation of the war and the current withdrawal of troops as he called for an all-out effort by the U.S. to win the war, including resumption of bombing of North Vietnam.

There was no bitterness but a sense of impatience on the part of 25-year old Peter Stark as he spoke at Redwood High School in Larkspur to a receptive gathering sponsored by the John Birch Society's Truth About Civil Turmoil committees.

"It is past time the American people demand the government lift the crippling warfare restrictions which gets thousands killed and wounded in Vietnam," said the former Green Beret who is convinced of a monolithic Communist conspiracy.

Stark, who attended the University of Pittsburgh, had volunteered for duty in Vietnam. He was there 10 months before losing his legs.

"When a man goes on the line, the whole society goes behind him," said Stark, who now travels around the U.S. giving similar talks sponsored by TACT.

Stark told his audience, who repeatedly greeted his comments with spurts of applause, that the war in Vietnam can be won or lost in three places: on the internal battleline, in the domestic conditions or in the "faltering soul of each citizen."

"These people who say stop the killing, pull out of Vietnam, just don't know what they're talking about," the young man declared, adding that the "blood bath" in Southeast Asia would just begin if the U.S. left.

Stark said he did not believe nuclear war would occur if the U.S. bombed North Vietnam because the Communist are not strong enough to want nuclear war, especially over North Vietnam.

"We can't do anything there if people are always thinking in terms of nuclear war," he said.

He went on to say the containment theory is "suicidal" because the U.S. can't do anything if it's always on the defensive and the battleground is selected by the enemy.

He discussed the communist tactics — or "Communist handiwork" — which he observed in Vietnam and he denounced as false any notions that the communists had mellowed.

"Communism has not deviated from the doctrine of world revolution since 1917, and world revolution means world conquest," he said.

As he frequently referred to documents ranging from U.S. Senate bills to Communist manifestoes, he briefly reviewed the doctrines of Marx, Lenin and Stalin which he said represented the philosophic, tactical and power bases of communism.

Stark said the Communists are encircling the U.S. geographically, isolating it politically and weakening it internally.

He said that the Communists in an attempt to make their propaganda credible have chosen American college students as their taget audience because "they (the students) like to get a hold of a cause and are politically naive."

There were few, if any college students, in the audience of more than 150.

He continued to say the American people have been "confused, misoriented, misdirected, demoralized and would be disarmed if possible."

Stark lashed out at the Soviet Union which he said is using the North Vietnamese to fight against the U.S. in the Vietnam War. And he said that with the United States' free trade policy that "western technology has made the Soviet Union what it is."

Stark attacked the Nixon and past administrations for seeing no contradiction in fighting in Vietnam and trading with Red countries at the same time. Trade does not promote peace, he said.

"I'm for peace, but I'm for liberty first," he said.

Jury Member Booked In Lewdness Probe

A member of the 1969 Marin County Grand Jury was booked at Marin County Jail yesterday afternoon on suspicion of committing three acts of lewd conduct with an 11-year-old girl, the district attorney's office announced.

Ralph Wesley Johnson, 62, of 212 San Francisco Boulevard, San Anselmo, was booked at 3:43 p.m. and released on his own recognizance at 3:45 by Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating. He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said the alleged offenses took place in December 1968, and on March 15 and May 1 this year, all in San Rafael.

Investigation started approximately a month ago, Thomas said, when the girl's family complained to Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales. Bales, Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunin, Chief Investigator Donald Midyett and Investigator John Kingston conducted the inquiry, Thomas said.

Johnson, a car salesman, is a former member of the Democratic Central Committee and former president of the Marin County Committee on Political Education, political branch of the AFL-CIO.

He is the former owner of a luncheonette in San Rafael, and earlier was a bartender at Bob's of Marin.

Johnson was arrested on suspicion of battery in August 1966, after an altercation at his luncheonette with bread delivery man Richard S. Mermin. He pleaded nolo contendere (no defense) to a reduced charge of disturbing the peace and was fined $110 and given six months' probation.

Debt-Ridden Congressman Denies Conflict-Of-Interest Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Seymour Halpern, R-N.Y., says there is no conflict of interest between his position as a member of the House Banking Committee and the fact that he has many outstanding bank loans and debts.

The Wall Street Journal, in a story published yesterday, said Halpern has debts of more than $100,000, including sizable loans from several banks.

Among the debts, the Journal said, was $10,400 in telephone bills dating back to 1960. It said also that Halpern owes thousands of dollars to caterers, friends and clubs.

The 55-year-old Halpern is serving his 11th year in the House and is third ranking Republican on the banking panel.

He was not available for comment but his office issued a statement quoting him as saying he had "never sought profit or engaged in any wrongdoing."

"I have had my share of financial problems," the statement said, "but not one iota has rubbed off on my public life."

"There has never been an iota of conflict," the statement continued. "Had I been self-seeking, I certainly would not be in debt. I acknowledge having a number of loans and several personal debts. But I am repaying them.

"And I should point out that some of those mentioned (in the Journal) have long since been cleared up. I have never defaulted on an obligation, and no one has ever forgiven any of my obligations, nor have I ever suggested any forgiveness."

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the Banking Committee, said in a statement that in fairness to Halpern "I do not want at this time to make any judgment on the allegations in the Wall Street Journal, but in all fairness it must be conceded that reports of this nature raise questions concerning legislation which has recently been approved by the committee."

Patman said "there have also been published reports of intensified lobbying pressure on important banking legislation, such as the bills to regulate one-bank holding companies."

He said he thinks it will soon be time for Congress to "decide just how far it is willing to allow those lobbyists to go in influencing national legislation."

Fairfax Home Looted; Items Valued At $2,500

Women's clothing and jewelry valued at a total of $2,500 were taken from the home of Cindy Bost, 35 Crest Road, Fairfax, yesterday, police said today.

Officers said the burglary occurred while she was at work between 7:30 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. yesterday, with entry gained through an open window.

The burglary was one of three reported today by Fairfax police.

Kim Crance of 373 Tamalpais Road reported yesterday a sofa, chair and ottoman, a chest of drawers and other furnishings valued at more than $450 were taken from the home she is moving to at 239 Scenic Road.

Police said entrance was made through an unlocked front door sometime yesterday morning.

Kathy Monica Young reported Monday her home at 95 Woodlane Avenue had been enetered and a stereo tape recorder and a sewing machine valued at a total of $500 taken. Entry was made through an open window and forcing an interior screen, police said.

22 File Suit For Credit In Cleaver Course

OAKLAND (AP) — Six professors and 16 students from the University of California's Berkeley campus have filed suit against the board of regents which denied academic credit to a course in which Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver was a guest lecturer.

The lawsuit, filed in Alameda County Superior Court yesterday charged the regents acted illegally when they ruled last Sept. 20 that guest lecturers could only appear once a quarter in credit courses.

The petition claimed the regents violated the constitutional rights of students and faculty and broke their own standing orders.

Judge Lyle Cook was asked to order credit for the controversial Social Analysis 139x course on racism in which Cleaver lectured nine times last fall.

Sanitation Budget Plan Approved

A preliminary budget of $257,775 for fiscal 1970 has been adopted by the Novato Sanitary District board, according to district engineer-manager Charles A. Joseph.

The budget is $175 less than one submitted earlier by Joseph, but $28,745 more than the fiscal 1969 budget.

It calls for a 3.5 cent increase in the district tax rate to 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. However, the 6.5 cent bond redemption tax in the Novato portion of the district is expected to drop to 5.5 cents, Joseph said after Monday night's board meeting.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

SALARIES — Raised the pay of Joseph from $1,412 to $1,475 per month and approved these other wage increases: 5 per cent to maintenance foreman William Buckingham and asst. dist. engineer Bill L. Bayles, 10 per cent to construction engineer David Sproul and 7.5 per cent to the district's nine other employees.

MONEY — Adopted a resolution transferring district funds from the County of Marin to the Novato branch of the Crocker-Citizens Bank and named Joseph as district treasurer.

MAINS — Approved plans for mains to serve Bahia unit 1-B of 141 lots, accepted the mains and treatment plant for unit 1-A of Bahia for the Union Bank of Los Angeles and approved plans for mains for 2.6 acres of low-cost federal housing at the end of Fourth Street and a short main to four lots in San Marin unit 8.

ANNEXATIONS — Approved annexations for a lot on McClay Road south of Center Road for Mario Bettini, another lot on the north side of Novato Boulevard at McClay Road for Dorothy Ruzick and started annexation proceedings for a lot on Simmons Lane at the end of Virginia Avenue for Robert J. Soderblom.

No Complaint

Pending further investigation, no complaint was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Michael Joel Marcos, 22, of Vallejo, who was arrested Saturday on suspicion of having a concealed .32-caliber pistol in his car on Highway 101.

Stretch Dollar With Beef Chuck Loaf

Preparing a good dinner takes time, but who wants to be hung up in the kitchen all afternoon? Especially during the summer when you could be outside. Instead, use the cool morning or evening hours to prepare a summer Beef Loaf.

This loaf features boneless lean beef chuck, an economical way to use your meat dollar. The beef is simmered with delectable seasonings then chopped.

Next add gelatin to the beef broth and stir in some tangy vinegar and red pepper seasoning to give it just a little bite.

Then in goes the beef and some parsley and you have it . . . a jellied beef loaf with incomparable flavor. For the artistic touch, arrange some hard cooked egg slices in the bottom of the mold before you fill it.

You can keep this loaf in the refrigerator up to three or four days. It's a delicious and beautiful entree for summer dinners or luncheons . . . and it makes fabulous sandwiches. Try slicing it in small cubes and serving on crackers or small bread rounds for a different and intriguing hors d'oeuvre. Or take it on a picnic.

CALIFORNIA SUMMER BEEF LOAF

3 pounds boneless lean beef chuck
1 quart boiling water
1 small onion
1 stalk celery
½ bay leaf
2½ teaspoons salt
4 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon peppercorns
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons vinegar
Dash liquid red pepper seasoning
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 sliced hard cooked egg

Cook beef in boiling water with onion, celery, bay leaf, salt, cloves and peppercorns about 2 to 2½ hours, until meat is tender. Cool in broth. Remove fat from surface of broth. Chop beef fine, removing all fat and gristle. There should be about 3½ cups. Strain broth. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup broth. Boil down remaining broth to 1¼ cups. Pour over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Stir in vinegar and red pepper seasoning. Add beef and parsley. Cool until slightly thickened. Arrange egg slices in bottom of 1-quart mold. Spoon gelatin over egg. Chill firm. Unmold and cut into slices to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

How's Your Salad Repetoire?

Increase your salad repertoire with this array of pretty and cool salads. Festively accented with the ripe olive, these salads are perfect entrees for leisurely entertaining.

Novel grapefruit baskets held a refreshing tuna and grapefruit salad, flavor highlighted with the meaty textured ripe olive. Tastily dressed with a sour cream mixture, this salad is a perfect luncheon entree.

Add the continental note to an attractive cool cucumber salad ring with a center of antipasto. Olives, hard cooked egg wedges, bologna and salami cornucopias are just a few ideas for an exciting choice of foods.

OLIVE GRAPEFRUIT BASKETS

2 large grapefruit
1 (7-ounce) can pitted black olives
1 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ cup dairy sour cream
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt

Cut grapefruit into halves. Using grapefruit knife, cut fruit from shell in one piece, then separate sections from membranes. Cut edge of shell into scallops. Drain tuna and break into large chunks. Combine chives cut into large pieces, grapefruit sections, tuna, celery and pimiento. Arrange in grapefruit shells. Top with sour cream mixed with remaining ingredients. Garnish as desired. Makes 4 servings.

OLIVE CUCUMBER MOLD

1 cup canned pitted black olives
1 medium cucumber
1 (3-ounce) package lemon gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
1 (3-ounce) package chive cream cheese
¼ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons prepared horseradish
Dash liquid red pepper seasoning
¼ cup chopped parsley

Cut olives into wedges. Pare and shred cucumber. Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add softened cream cheese beating until smooth. Stir in vinegar, horseradish and red pepper seasoning. Chill until partially thickened. Fold in olives, cucumber and parsley. Turn into 4-cup ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Makes 6 servings.

CAROUSEL SALAD

1 cup canned pitted black ripe olives
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
2½ cups water
3 tablespoons vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon liquid red pepper seasoning
2 cups small curd cottage cheese
⅓ cup mayonnaise
1 cup diced cucumber
¼ cup sliced green onion
½ cup diced green pepper

Thinly slice olives crosswise. Arrange center slices in circle in bottom of 6-cup ring mold; press firmly into mold. Sprinkle gelatine over 1 cup water to soften. Place over low heat and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining water, vinegar, salt and liquid red pepper seasoning. Cool until mixture mounds on a spoon. Fold in cottage cheese, mayonnaise, cucumber, onion, remaining olive slices and green pepper. Spoon mixture into mold being careful to keep olive slices in place. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens and garnish as desired. Makes 8 servings.

THE OLIVE CUCUMBER MOLD is a cool, inviting salad for the outdoor hostess throughout the summer. It can be garnished in a variety of ways — here with luncheon meats, halved hard-cooked eggs and olives.

American Cooks Have Fun Trying Their Hand At Preparing Sukiyaki

Americans who have been to Japan are intrigued with the preparation and eating of Sukiyaki, the famous Japanese dish. It is prepared at the table in a heavy iron skillet over a hibachi, a charcoal brazier. Using chopsticks, the diners take morsels of food from the skillet while the sukiyaki is still cooking. In this way, they select ingredients cooked to the exact degree of doneness they prefer.

Sukiyaki American-style is prepared in much the same way as the Japanese do it. Paper thin slices of pork (which cook quickly and thoroughly because they're thin) and the vegetables are cooked in a savory mixture of soy sauce, water and sugar. The American influence is seen in the use of a fine Italian dressing. The pork slices are browned in it. The zestful spices and garlic flavoring found in this particular dressing add a new and original flavor to this old Oriental dish.

Sukiyaki is a different dish to serve at your next barbecue. You can make it part of a prevailing Japanese theme. The mood is set with Japanese lanterns hung in the trees, bouquets of large colorful paper flowers, cushions for seating and chopsticks for eating.

Sweet almond cakes and tall glasses of iced tea complete the menu most appropriately.

SUKIYAKI WITH PORK

¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup Italian dressing
2 pounds pork loin, sliced paper thin
1 cup sliced celery
2 cans (5 oz. ea.) bamboo shoots, drained
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 cup sliced green onions

In small bowl, combine soy sauce, water, and sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves.

In large skillet, heat Italian dressing and brown meat well. Push meat to one side of skillet; pour half of soy mixture over meat.

To other side of skillet, add celery, bamboo shoots, and mushrooms. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes. Add green onions and cover vegetables with remaining soy mixture. Cook an additional 5 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Use Little Water

Cook vegetables rapidly in as little boiling water as possible so that when they are tender, they will have absorbed all the moisture in the pan.

'I'd Leap At The Chance To Go To The Moon'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Like most people in the world, Mary Rae Hill is tremendously excited over man's first landing on the moon, but she has a special reason for her involvement.

"I think my boss may have a high enough scientific standing to get at least a microscopic sample of the moon material to look at," she says.

A Mill Valley resident, Mary is a geologist with the California Division of Mines and Geology and editor of its monthly publication, "Mineral Information Service." She is also a photographer and takes many of the pictures used in the bulletin.

"I'D LEAP AT the chance to go to the moon," she says, "because I'm so much interested in its geology. We published a series of articles on that about 1965."

She doesn't see much chance for women who hold this ambition, however, because she says women can't be astronauts until they can be admitted to the institutions where this kind of training is given and until they are admitted to the space program.

"An interesting thing to me about the moon," she continued, "is that it doesn't have the same kind of erosion cycle that makes rocks here on earth. When you don't have water, what kind of erosion does take place? The astronauts found hard rock — something is packing the soil, and if it isn't water, what is it? Everyone was agog when Aldrin — or was it Armstrong? — said, 'It almost looks wet.'

"I THINK THE material they gathered from the moon may give information that might make possible prediction of earthquakes, perhaps lessening their effect and even enabling the harnessing of their power. We have to learn to use the earth's own power."

Mary doesn't go along with people who doubt the value of the space program, saying that the vast amount of money it costs should be spent on the poor.

"We are already getting enormous benefits for meteorology and weather prediction from the satellites, which are giving warnings of hurricanes, and the satellites have been taking photographs that are replacing those that cost huge amounts of money when mapping is done from conventional airplanes.

"AS FOR PEOPLE who say the money should be spent on the poor, I maintain that we are doing this, because every bit of research has a great amount of direct or side benefits that raise our standard of living, lengthen the life span and create more jobs. Benefits are for rich and poor alike. You can never tell what will come of practical value from basic research such as the moon probe is."

With Werner Von Braun, Mary believes that the success of the moon venture indicates that man might one day live elsewhere in the universe.

"I believe that man, like a turtle, can take his house with him, or take whatever he finds wherever he goes and create a livable environment."

As for present limitations on space travel, she shrugs, "Now we say no one can go faster than the speed of light. We used to say man could never go faster than sound, and we conquered the sound barrier some time ago."

MARY RECEIVED an A. B. degree in geology from the University of Colorado and took three years of graduate work in geology at the University of Colorado and the University of Illionois.

Her work as editor of the "Mineral Information Service" takes most of her time, she says, and the second most time-consuming of her four current assignments for the state of California is investigating the hazard potential of the rock formations people are living on, especially in Marin.

"This is the Franciscan formation," she explains. "It is very hard rock, but it fractures easily. It extends from the Oregon border to Santa Catalina Island, and the San Andreas fault runs right through it. This is what Mt. Tamalpais is made of.

"WE HAVE TO be concerned with how severe landslides might be in it. In Marin County they happen where land has been filled or cut, and houses have been destroyed when the earth sinks."

Mary's third assignment deals with her work as one of three members of the earthquake investigation committee. In case of a quake of any magnitude in the state they have to go to the scene and make a report, submitted first to Mary's boss, state geologist Dr. Ian Campbell, and finally to Governor Reagan.

Her duties include making arrangements for study of the next quake.

A fourth assignment for Mary consists of working on a film of local interest as her thesis for a master's degree in television film making at San Francisco State College.

"I'm interested in film making as a scientific geological tool," she noted, "and how to use it to explain geology to intelligent people of different training.

"MY THESIS project is to show within a limited space of time a geologic event, and I have been working on photographing the changes that will take place within a year at Rodeo Lagoon at Fort Cronkhite."

Mary says her next ambition is to go to the Arctic or Antarctic as an official observer.

"In 1960 a women's expedition was planned," she recalls, "but at the last minute the U.S. Navy turned it down. The woman who was to have headed it was Dr. Marybelle Allen, who was living in San Rafael then. She is now head of the microbiology department of the University of Alaska at Fairbanks.

"I have never heard of a scientist being against women going to the Arctic or Antarctic — it's the Navy who is against it. I think there may be some scientists' wives going this year or next, and that may break the barrier."

MARY KEEPS in training for her strenuous field trips by getting up at dawn and hiking two miles up Mt. Tamalpais

MOST UNUSUAL of the pets that are a major hobby of Mill Valley geologist Mary Rae Hill is this little Bantam rooster she calls Louie. "I raised him from an egg," she says. The other pets are two dogs, a mynah bird, and five cats, including a 20-pounder named Greywacke, which is a kind of sandstone. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Balmain Keeps Skirts Short In His Bold, Bright Collection For Fall

By JOAN DEPPA

PARIS (UPI) — Skirts stayed resolutely short at Pierre Balmain yesterday in one of the youngest, gayest and most beautiful collections the courturier has produced in years.

Balmain, who himself tried to force hemlines lower 18 months ago, ignored current efforts to bring back long skirts and kept his coats, dresses and suits all two to four inches above the knee.

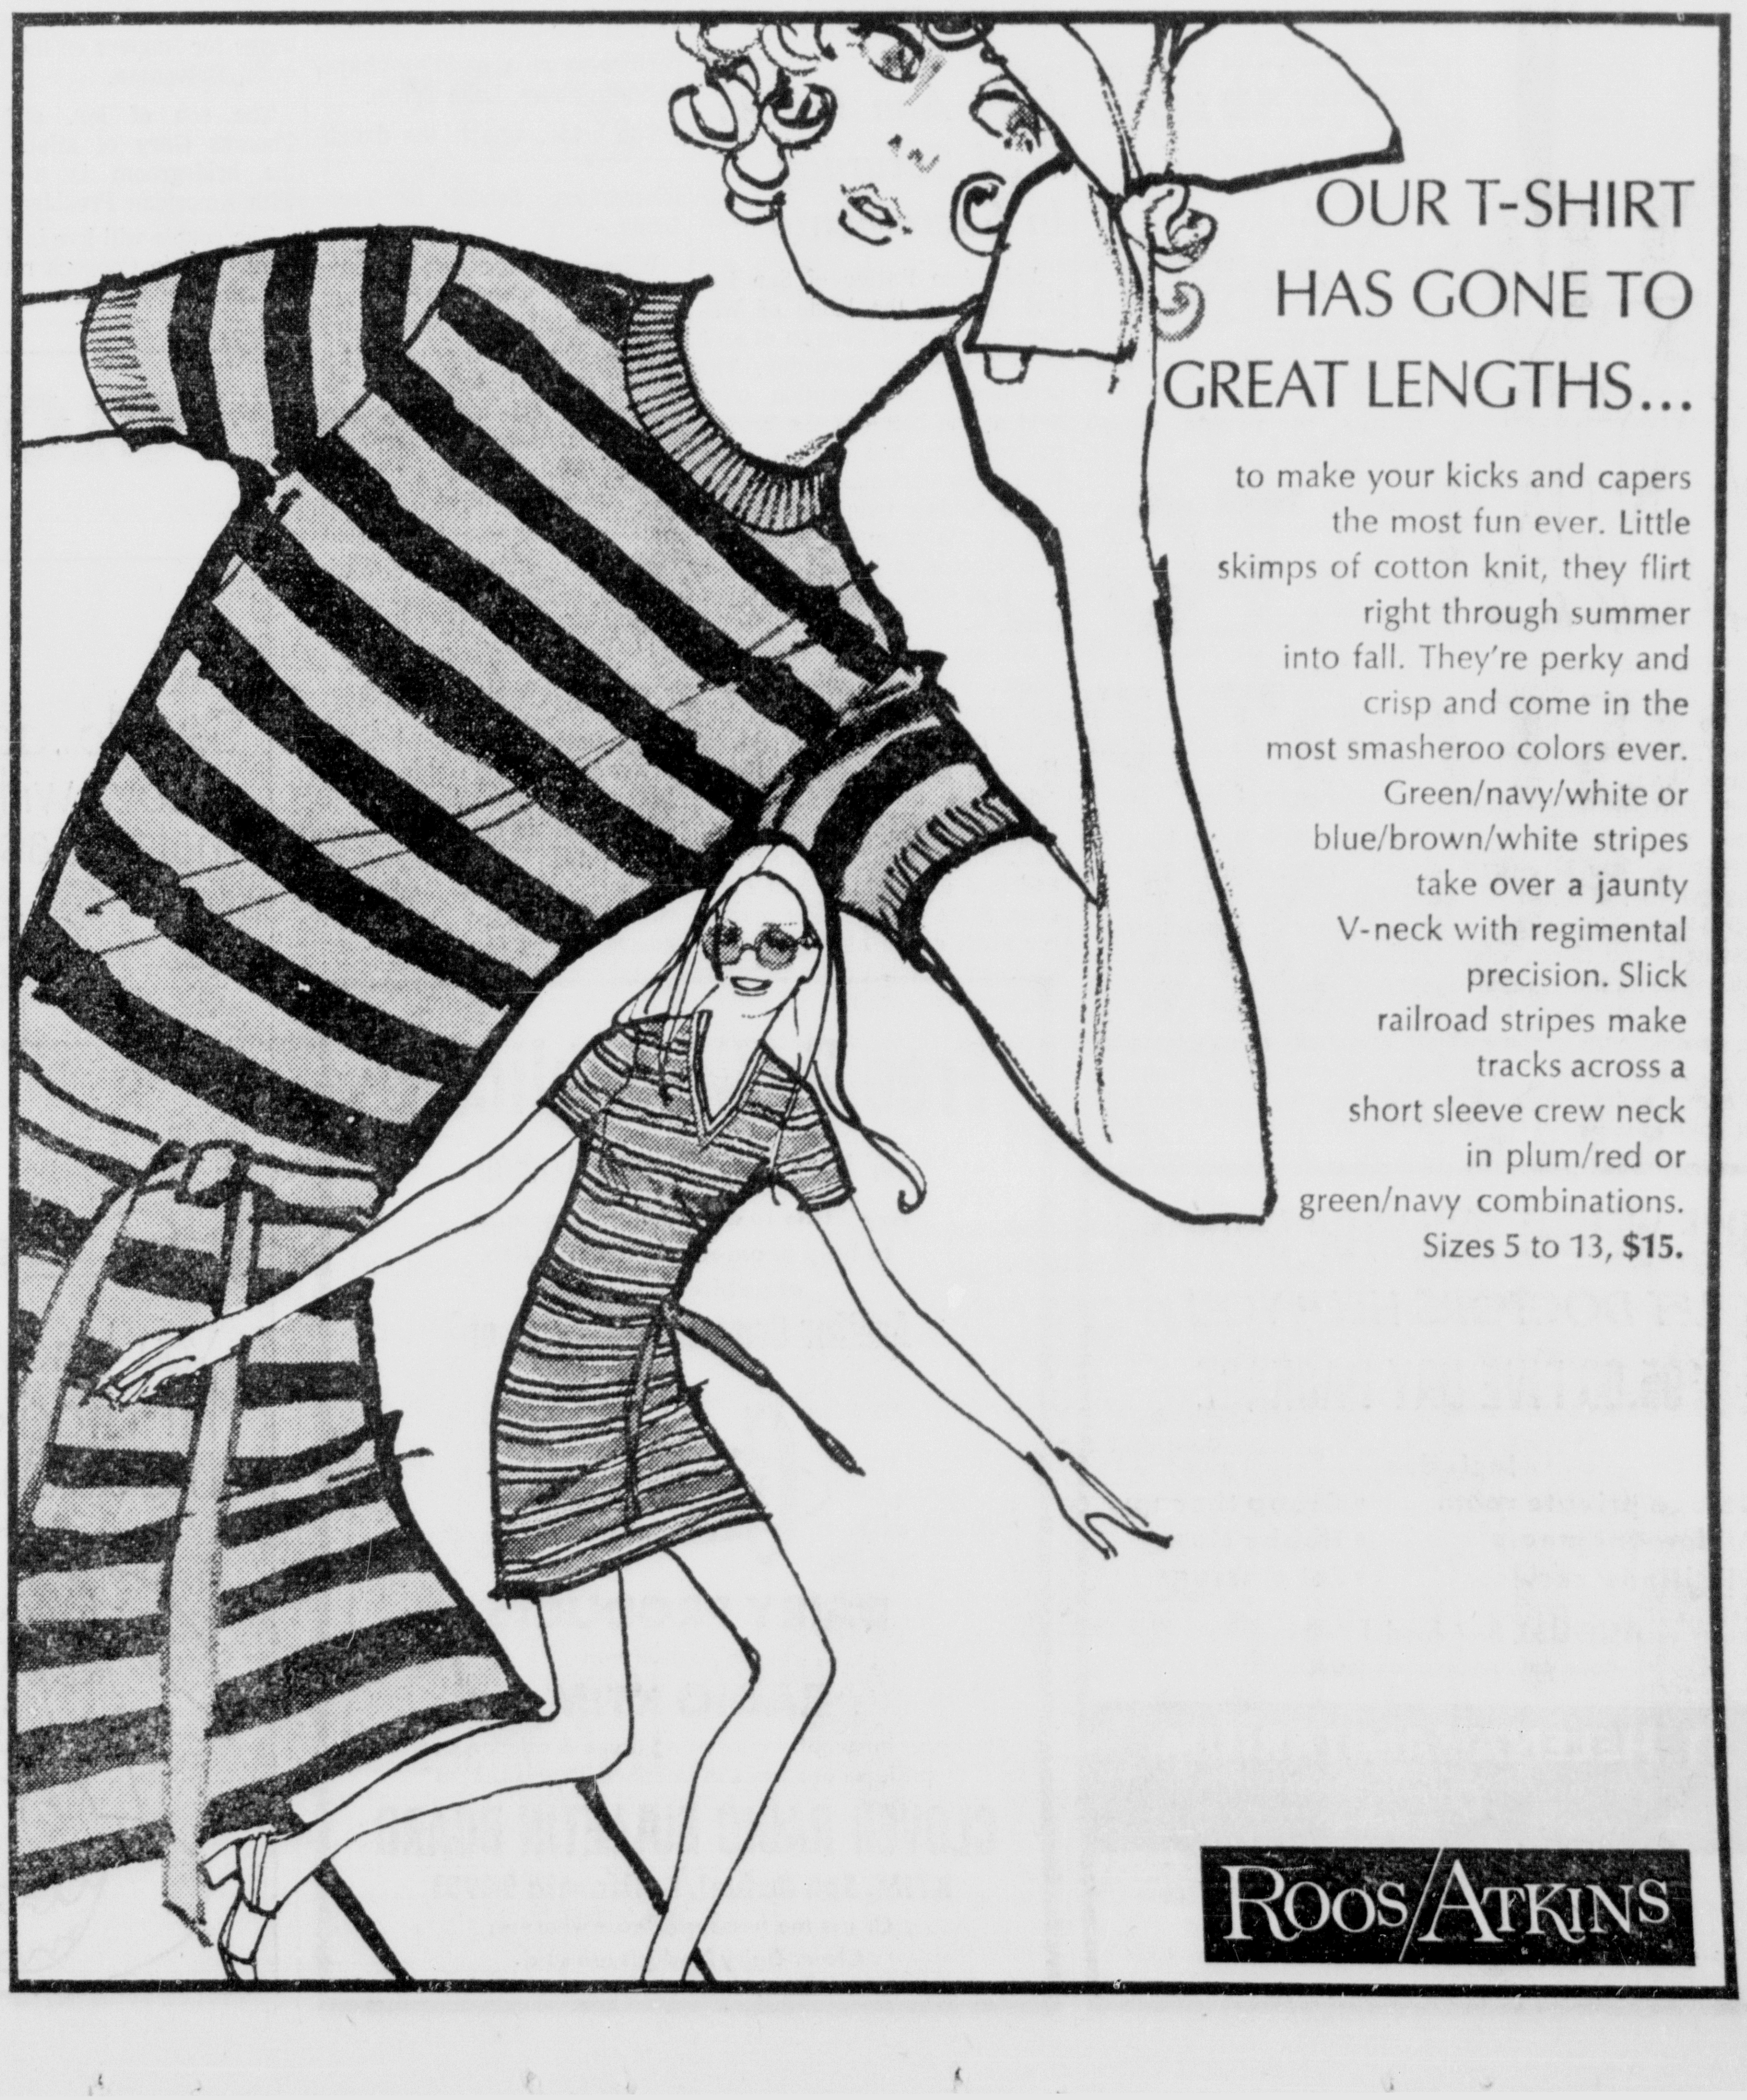
He also bypassed the trend towards neutrals like gray and mustard in favor of bright, bold combinations of red and black, royal blue and white, brown and turquoise.

When he did use neutrals, they were dramatic or soft but never drab. One wide off-white coat had squares of gold broadcloth with their corners slashed off and black diamonds set into the space where the corner would have been.

There were lots of details, but simple, interesting details without being fussy.

For fun — but wearable fun — Balmain offered polka-dotted mink. There were black polka dots on brown, black on white and white on black, used for fur coats, hats and trimming on collars and cuffs.

They were not the sort of clothes which will be copied in mass quantities by ready-to-wear manufacturers, but they were just right for Balmain's private customers like Queen Fabiola of Belgium and Queen Sirikit of Thailand.



OUR T-SHIRT HAS GONE TO GREAT LENGTHS...

to make your kicks and capers the most fun ever. Little skimps of cotton knit, they flirt right through summer into fall. They're perky and crisp and come in the most smasheroo colors ever. Green/navy/white or blue/brown/white stripes take over a jaunty V-neck with regimental precision. Slick railroad stripes make tracks across a short sleeve crew neck in plum/red or green/navy combinations. Sizes 5 to 13, $15.

Hypochondriacs Enjoy Being Sicker Than Anyone They Know

DEAR HELEN:

My mother is "ailing." She's been ailing most of her life, although she is as strong as a horse, when she wants to be — and she eats like one too.

If it isn't her heart, it's her liver, or her back, or some fancy name for an ailment she probably hasn't got in the first place. The doctor has never found anything wrong with her.

She doesn't have many interests, dislikes going places, sits most of the day, and won't spend her ample inheritance because she "may need it for the hospital." Her only diversion: talking to a few gossipy neighbors, when she isn't mad at them.

If I tell her she isn't really sick, she gets furious. She was this way before she lost Dad, so it isn't due to widowhood. Is there any way to change a hypochondriac? — NEARBY DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER:

Probably not at this late date. A chronic "ailer" enjoys her aches, for when she has little else to interest her, it makes her proud that she can be sicker than anyone she knows. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You said jealousy is a result of self-dislike. This is a good thought, but, in my case, jealousy was a cover-up because I was fighting a desire to be unfaithful myself. It is easy to transfer feelings we are ashamed of and guilty about to someone else, and then blame him for them.

I used to throw horrible jealous fits, cry hysterically, lie awake at night suffering over my husband's imagined infidelity. Then slowly it dawned on me that though I was happily married to an attractive and exciting man, I secretly yearned for an affair.

Yes, I gave in to my longing, and the fear and jealousy stopped. Everyone is much happier, especially my husband who comes home to a contented, loving wife. If he is unfaithful, I no longer care. I realize that we are both deeply committed to making our marriage a good one and that no occasional fling can intrude on our private lives. I feel very lucky to be attractive to another man besides my husband. If he is tired or preoccupied or worried about his job, I don't attribute it to some fault of my own, and after a while he bounces back to his old exuberant, passionate self. Meanwhile I am receiving the attention I yearn for from someone else better able at the moment to give it.

I know this isn't the answer for everyone, but it works for me. — HAPPIER WITH TWO

DEAR HAPPIER:

Would it "work" with your husband, if he found out? Seems to me a tired and worried man needs to know his wife is standing by, not lying down on the job. — H.

and back before she goes to work.

Her most evident hobby at her home on Blythedale Ridge facing the mountain is pets.

These are two dogs named Serendipity and Duffy; a mynah bird named Charlie; Louie, a Bantam rooster, and five cats, including a 20-pounder she calls Greywacke — that's a type of sandstone, she explains.

MARY ADMITS geology is an unusual occupation for a woman. She chose it, she believes, because she wanted to be outdoors.

The only other women she knows in the field in the Bay Area are a graduate student at the California Division of Mines and Geology, five in the regional headquarters of the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, about three in the oil business, one or two in industry and several in teaching positions.

Two who are retired and living in Mill Valley, she says, are Mrs. Jeanine Verplanck and Mrs. Gladys Loucke.

Girl Scout Packing Up For Mexico

"I took a couple of years of Spanish, and it will probably come back to me," Terra Linda High School junior Jill Chesley said about her upcoming trip to Mexico.

Jill is one of 16 Bay Area Girl Scouts who will be off on their "Mexican Holiday," but the girls will also give service at a home for children in Cuernevaca, teaching songs and games to the youngsters.

They will spend six days at Our Cabana, the Western Hemisphere Girl Scout center near Cuernevaca, where they will exchange arts and crafts skills and ideas with Girl Guides from other American countries. The Girl Scouts will also visit the pyramids, cathedrals, museums and other attractions during the two weeks trip.

Jill will be on hand in Livermore for the final briefing of the group Aug. 7 and 8. The departure is set for Aug. 13 from San Francisco International Airport.

The daughter of Mrs. Dura L. Chesley of Marinwood, she is a member of a Santa Venetia Girl Scout troop and has done volunteer work at Sonoma State Hospital.

It will be Jill's first trip outside the United States, and she is looking forward to experience in a foreign country as she hopes eventually to backpack in Europe. She says that backpacking and camping as well as craft work and weaving are among her favorite activities.

"Maybe I'll make a shift to wear when we aren't wearing our uniforms on the trip — to parties and things . . . ," she finished.

Anniversary Tour Of Europe

By MOLLY MARIN

In celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casady of Novato toured Europe for three weeks. They took a four-day relaxing cruise on the Rhine docking nightly at various spots from Rotterdam, Holland to Basle, Switzerland. Their favorite city was Salzburg, Austria, Marilyn Casady said.

In Munich they rented a car and visited the medieval town of Rothenburg, which has not been touched by any of the wars in Germany. They were disappointed in the Black Forest as they think California's forests are more beautiful. They also toured France, Luxemburg and Belgium.

In Holland they met with Pieter den Heijer, the exchange student that lived with the Casadys three years ago while he attended Novato High School. He was their guide in Holland and showed them many points of interest not normally seen by the tourist. They also met his family for the first time and were entertained in the Jan den Heijer home.

Pieter pointed out the storks nests famous in Holland. The Dutch people are worried about the storks becoming extinct and when a nest was destroyed by fire, the people in the town built another nest on an adjacent building. The stork returned this spring and the people were jubilant, Marilyn said.

While in Europe, the Casadys' youngest son, Kevin, was a guest of the Eric Kollgaard family in Novato and their two older boys, Warren and Brooks, "batched and dog sat" at home.

MARIN FRIENDS have learned of the marriage of Henry Saltonstall Dakin of San Francisco, formerly of Belvedere, to Judith Susan Clark of Long Beach on Thursday. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Albert Clark of Long Beach. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Y. Dakin.

RECENTLY RETURNED from a visit in Minneapolis, Minn., are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford LeRud of San Rafael.

They particularly enjoyed a visit to the home office of the Lutheran Brotherhood, where they toured the Martin Luther Library, prize winning sunken garden and the Lutheran Center with its art and antique collection.

WHEN THE Lurline sails Friday from San Francisco Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. French of Greenbrae will be aboard enroute to Hawaii.

SHARON STALEY was honored at a bridal shower given Sunday afternoon by Charlene Reece at her home in Mill Valley. Co-hostess was Billie McCallum of Mill Valley. They will be members of the bridal party.

Sharon will become the bride of Gary McCallum of Mill Valley on Aug. 10 at Peace Lutheran Church. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Staley of Mill Valley, and the future bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCallum of Mill Valley.

MRS. M. E. (Babe) Silva of Novato honored her niece, Marsha Baccaglio, at a luncheon and shower on Saturday. Marsha, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baccaglio of Novato, will be married to John H. Anderson of Los Altos on Aug. 30. Marsha's mother and her 93-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Delia M. Hoppe of Novato, and John's mother, Mrs. J. Reed Anderson of Los Altos were among the 20 guests.

THREE HAPPY members of the Donald Trout family in Novato, Mr. Trout, Michael and Christopher, greeted Mrs. Trout when she returned home from a two-week-trip to Germany last week.

Hilda Trout, a native of Germany and the only member of her family that lives in this country, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stolz in Pruem, Germany, and with her two sisters and their families, Mrs. Rudy Rausch and Mrs. Klaus Klaesges. The family home is four miles from the Belgium border, near Bonn, and while there she also visited relatives in Cologne and toured the wine country near the Rhine and Mosel river areas. It had been two years since Mrs. Trout was home and most of her time was spent visiting with her family.

COFFEE, TEA or sea? What do airline stewardesses do on vacation? Sue Lassig of Tiburon took an ocean voyage aboard the Canberra from San Francisco, through the Panama Canal to Nassau. She was accompanied by Carolyn Burke of Los Angeles, also a stewardess.

WAYNE WALTER COLE claimed Pamela Ann Scott as his bride in a ceremony at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. Pamela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton G. Scott and her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. Hubert Cole, all of Novato. (Nova Marin Studio photo)

CYNTHIA BETTINI became the bride of Robert E. Rich Jr. at a ceremony in the garden of the home of her mother, Mrs. Gloria Johnson Bettini in San Rafael. Cynthia is also the daughter of Richard V. Bettini of San Rafael. Robert's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rich of Ignacio. Both the couple are studying art at Sonoma State College. (Alan Ross photo)

FAIRFAX SHORT STOP

Police Block Effort To Close Food Store

An unsuccessful attempt to close the controversial Short Stop Market in Fairfax was made last night, police said today.

Police said about 20 persons, led by the market's neighbors, gathered to close the store at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Kent Avenue.

Previously, residents of the area had submitted a petition asking that the market be forced to cease its 24-hour operation because the middle-of-the-night noise interrupted their sleep and was creating a public nuisance.

After weeks of consideration, the city council decided on July 21 to amend the market's special use permit to allow operation from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. only.

Market officials, however, have repeatedly said the store would not be closed during the night. It has remained open since the council action.

No one was arrested in the disturbance last night, police said.

No Charges Filed Against Youth Who Fled Accident

An 18-year-old who wrecked a car on his way to junk it fled the scene of a three-car accident yesterday even though he "knew I wasn't going to get away with it," the California Highway Patrol said today.

Kerry James Reeve of San Jose returned to the scene four hours and 15 minutes later to "see the damage" and was arrested on suspicion of hit and run. He was later released for lack of evidence.

A friend of Reeve's fled the accident scene both times.

Reeve suffered a slight injury to his left arm in the mishap, but refused treatment, patrolmen said.

Officers said Reeve told them he was driving the car to a junkyard when he apparently fell asleep and slammed into a car owned by Edward L. Shaffer Jr. of Daly City. Shaffer's car, parked near the Lowrie Yacht Harbor on San Pedro Road, rolled into a third car owned by Kenneth Wilson Jones of Burlingame.

Reeve said he was dazed and scared and as a friend, Larry Pulver, who had been driving to the junkyard in another vehicle, pulled up. Reeve jumped in and they fled.

Pulver and Reeve returned several hours after the 8:10 a.m. accident and Reeve was arrested while Pulver fled again, patrolmen said.

The car Reeve was driving when the accident occurred was registered to Andrew Moncur Gillespie of San Rafael.

Paper Airplane Fly-In Friday

A paper airplane fly-in, commemorating Neil Armstrong's landing on the moon, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in Boyle Park, sponsored by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department.

Young Musician Wins At Festival

A 14-year-old Novato boy won three trophies in the Northern California Accordion Association festival held in the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco.

He is Randy Moore, who won first place in the 14-year-old open solo competition, fourth place in the junior competition and received a trophy for technical excellence in performance. The festival was held Sunday.

Young Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dave Moore Jr. of 604 Rowland Boulevard. He represented the Joe Maggiila Accordion Studio of San Rafael.

Jail, Probation On Check Charge

Trish Jeanne Dutra, of San Francisco, has been sentenced to 30 days in Marin County Jail, placed on a year's probation, and ordered to make restitution totaling $169.74 for bad checks passed in Marin.

Miss Dutra pleaded guilty July 18 to passing one bad check in San Anselmo Feb. 17, and five other counts were dismissed. Sentencing was Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

WILD FLIGHT

Santa Rosan Goes Limp At Booking Desk

An unemployed Santa Rosa man was booked into Marin County Jail early today after he slugged a highway patrolman who had stopped him for speeding, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Hilton James Welborn, 30, was arrested for felony battery on a peace officer and for speeding after the incident at 2:20 a.m. today. He was held to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

The highway patrol said Welborn was stopped on Highway 101 at Grant Avenue in Novato after being chased at speeds of 80 miles per hour.

Arresting officers said Welborn tried to push a door against Patrolman Roscoe A. Ritchey Jr., 35, of 6120 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera, and then refused to sign the speeding citation.

After he was arrested and handcuffed, the man agreed to sign the citation and the cuffs were taken off and he again became argumentative, the patrol said. Welborn then struck Ritchey in the jaw, officers said.

After he was again handcuffed and seat-belted into the back of the patrol car, officers said, Welborn wriggled out of the seat belt, opened a rear door and fell out of the patrol car as it came to a stop.

He complained of a back injury and accused Ritchey and his partner of deliberately leaving the door open. When the patrol car arrived at the jail in San Rafael, Welborn went limp. He was carried into the jail, booked while lying flat on his back in front of the booking desk, then put into a padded cell.

Neither Ritchey nor Welborn was hospitalized although Ritchey suffered from dizziness and was driven home, the patrol said.

More Arson Attempts In Marinwood

Two arson attempts on vehicles were discovered Sunday in a Marinwood neighborhood where four houses have been set on fire in recent weeks, sheriff's deputies reported today.

One vehicle was the car of Robert Gehrke, whose home at 113 Blackstone Drive was burned by an arsonist July 20. The other was a van owned by James D. Ellis of 112 Blackstone Drive.

Ellis told deputies he found his van with the air cleaner removed and burned paper stuffed into the carburetor. The paper burned out without igniting anything.

Mrs. Gehrke told officers papers and letters had been set afire and stuffed into the gas tank of their car, but also burned out harmlessly.

Deputies said the papers used on the Gehrke car were taken from Ellis' van.

A 14-year-old Marinwood boy has been arrested on suspicion of setting the house fires which have damaged the Gehrke house and houses at 2726 Heatherstone Drive, 234 Johnstone Drive and 248 Johnstone Drive.

EYE LOST IN VIETNAM

GI Seeking $50,000 For Being Listed As Deserter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A young soldier who lost an eye in combatin Vietnam while listed by the Army as a deserter is asking Congress to vote him $50,000 damages.

Charles H. Bitterling, attorney for 21-year-old Wayne L. Smith, gave this account:

Smith was shipped to Vietnam from Oakland on Sept. 4, 1968. Serving as a medic, he was wounded twice. The second wound cost him his left eye.

After treatment at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C., Smith was honorably discharged last March 5.

On the day of discharge, Smith's mother, Helen Hunter, received a letter from the Army Personnel Center in Oakland saying "Our records indicate your son . . . was scheduled to report to this station for movement overseas on 4 Sep 68 and to date has not yet reported."

Bitterling said Mrs. Hunter tried to clear things up but on May 22 two FBI agents handcuffed Smith in his front yard and attempted to take him away.

While the shaken soldier protested, his sister, Sharon, rummaged through the house, found Smith's discharge papers and showed them to the agents.

"The FBI then let him go and called up the next morning and apologized about the mistake," the lawyer said. "Probably someone just left a name off a roster.

"But it caused this boy a lot of humiliation, to be arrested and dragged off in front of his family. They think he was a hero in Vietnam and here they come, arresting him as a deserter."

The government cannot be sued without its consent, Bitterling explained, so a petition seeking a special $50,000 damage appropriation has been filed with Congress and forwarded to House Speaker John W. McCormack.

Hub Fireman Added; First In Eight Years

One fireman was added to the San Anselmo Fire Department last night — the first to be added since Fire Station 2 was opened in 1961.

The San Anselmo City Council approved the addition at a budget session saying the cost would be $6,568 or 2.5 cents on the tax rate.

A motion to add two firemen, requested by Fire Chief Francis A. Sousa, was made by Councilman Robert M. Scott but this died for lack of a second.

The council added $485 to the fire budget to move a fire hydrant from San Anselmo Avenue and Pine Street across to Bank Street and then adopted a total fire budget of $310,189.

Councilmen approved adding one female night clerk-dispatcher to the police department at $7,500 to free a patrolman to be out on the street. Chief Raymond R. Buchagnani said this, with two other clerk-dispatchers already employed, will enable him to have clerk-dispatchers around the clock five days a week.

Also approved within the $281,060 police budget was $325 for an IBM typewriter, $840 in increased allotments for uniforms and an increase of $100 for painting police department offices.

In a five-minue soliloquy, Fred Lancelotti of 169 Crescent Road in the audience urged the council to spend more money on police and fire protection. He said that he hasn't been able to sleep for the last two weeks because of some of the characters he's seen in the Foothill Road area.

The following budgets were also approved by the council: animal regulation, $4,000; civil defense, $200; city attorney, $13,620 which includes a $3,000 hike in case it is needed for vagrant cases, and nondepartmental, $21,590.

The sum of $1,523, earmarked for a microfilm reader-printer, was stripped from the nondepartmental budget by a 3-2 vote, Councilmen James F. Reed and Kenneth L. Anderson voting "no."

The council referred to staff a request from the chamber of commerce that city crews be used to erect Christmas decorations, chamber manager William A. Trewhella saying this would save the chamber $800.

Administrator - controller Alfred C. Kaeppel told the council at the start of the session that, at that moment, the 1969-70 tax rate was $2.245 per $100 assessed valuation or one cent less than last year's rate. At the conclusion of the meeting, he told the Independent-Journal that the rate had increased to about $2.30.

Another budget meeting will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at which time public works and capital improvements outlays will be considered.

In action separate from the budget, the council voted 3-2 to approve a resolution and authorized spending $23,700 for condemnation proceedings to acquire two pieces of property for redevelopment of the Hub intersection.

$630 Given For Black Aid Programs

Novatans for Racial Equality has voted to contribute $630 toward black aid programs, including $10 in behalf of the Black Panther Party breakfast program in Oakland.

Elizabeth Smith, secretary of the group, said the group was unaware of the Black Panther breakfasts in Sausalito at the time it made its donations last week.

The largest contribution, $600, went to Operation Give A Damn at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City. Ten-dollar contributions also went to the National Council of Negro Women in Mississippi and the Education Corps in Greenbrae.

Much of the money came from the booth which the organization operated at Novato's Western Weekend, Mrs. Smith said. The group grossed $1,046 and made a net profit of $562, she said.

The group also has new officers. Richard Kuhn is president and Ray Johnson, vice president. Dianne Graham has been named recording secretary and Nancy Kuhn, corresponding secretary. Carol Wierbinski will handle publicity.

Four board members are at large, Jonnie Bell Wright, Richard Langtry, Raleigh Floyd and Elaine Nix. The new officers will hold their first meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Richard Kuhn home at 363 San Luis Way.

Jury trial for three of four Novato men charged with stealing lumber was set for Dec. 1 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Rodney J. Arnold, 19, Mitchell D. Samios, 21, and Fredrick C. Geiger, 21, pleaded innocent and were given the trial date.

The fourth defendant, Michael M. Marks, 21, was to appear in court today.

The four were arrested July 17 when police saw a car without lights drive away from a Pleasant Valley construction site at 1:38 a.m. Police reported finding 38 two-by-fours in the car.

Whole Family Hooked On Rebuilding A Vintage Car

By TOM COCKRELL

In the 1920's they were the mile-a-minute car, 2,900 pounds of big bore engine, artillery type wheels and nickel-plated fittings that a Literary Digest advertisement brayed were "now on the crest of a permanent wave of success."

In 1940 they were thirsty derelicts that sold for $200 on the back lots of used car emporiums.

Today they are about as extinct as the mastondon.

But for a bearded, 36-year-old San Rafael mechanic and auto body owner, one 1925 air-cooled Franklin coupe is almost a full-time job, a superannuated version of the busman's holiday.

Douglas L. Shaffer and his wife, Georgia, are working night and day in Doug's Auto Body Shop at 37 Duffy Place to get every one of the big machine's 3000 separate parts cleaned, sanded, primed, painted and back together again in time for the annual concours d'elegance March of Dimes benefit at Peacock Gap Country Club Aug. 10.

"We'll make it — if I have to work 25 hours a day to do it," says Shaffer.

It all began 18 months ago when Shaffer, who owns nine vintage and classic cars, bought the prize piece of his collection.

"When he started taking that Franklin apart I felt like a widow," said Mrs. Shaffer. "He began bringing parts home and I guess I got hooked too."

Together the husband-and-wife team whose home is in Fairfax figure they have put in 1,000 hours on the full restoration job, most of it in the Duffy Place garage.

Collecting old cars is part hobby and part mania. Shaffer fondly blames the man who got him started two years ago, James Webb, a San Rafael businessman, artist and designer.

"I haven't felt the same about Jim since," he says, recalling his three trips to Eureka Fields to haul home model A's, the purchase of a 1914 white truck, a 1953 Packard Caribean, a 1941 Lincoln Continental and a 1919 Dodge tourer from a Petaluma man.

Shaffer also owns a 1949 Willy's jeepster and a 1935 International pickup truck.

Always on the lookout for a likely derelict, he carries a polaroid camera he uses to snap photos in fields, wrecking yards, behind famhouses.

Becoming car poor, however, is not one of Shaffer's worries. Oldcars, he says, are like a portfolio of stocks, a form of insurance. They only increase in value.

Car collecting does have its pitfalls.

Shaffer once had a 1932 Cadillac roadster in the shop that needed a lower door panel repaired for rust. He sent the door to a metal shop. The shop lost the door.

Shaffer said he advertised all over the United States, finally found a man in New Hampshire with the right door. The only trouble was he had to buy the whole car.

To Shaffer, old car collecting is an intensely personal hobby.

"It's like a painting, a work of art," he says. "I couldn't sell the Franklin. If I restore a car myself, I keep it. It would be like selling one of my own kids."

And that isn't likely, since the Shaffer children — Kerry, 16, Jeffrey, 12, Gordon, 8, and even 7-year-old Teresa — have all pitched in to help clean car parts and spruce up the big wood spoke wheels on the Franklin.

Restoring the big Franklin — which was billed as a lightweight in its day — meant tearing it right down to the drive train, Shaffer said.

One problem occured when it was found the car was missing a grill shell ornament, a small lion. It had to be specially cast.

Why all the fuss?

Simple, says Shaffer. He will be faced with a team of judges who will poke and prod every inch of the car. The scramble for points at car meets like Peacock Gap is intense and professional.

"That car has to be factory fresh. If you have to spend eight hours scrubbing a piece of copper tubing with steel wool, then that's what you do," Shaffer said.

TUNING UP—The Douglas L. Shaffers of Fairfax ready the pride of their fleet of nine vintage and classic cars, a 1925 air-cooled Franklin coupe, for a first showing Aug. 10 at the Peacock Gap concourse d'elegance.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1969 23

Board Turns Down Fair-Marin For Larger Auditorium Stage

Marin cannot afford to enlarge the stage area in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center when it does not even have the money to complete the second phase of the auditorium, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared yesterday. (Other Supervisors stories, page 6.)

Futhermore, architect Aaron G. Green and his associates and the county administrator said they find the Marin auditorium stage adequate to handle nearly all major traveling shows including operas, musicals and concerts.

The board of directors of Fair-Marin Inc., and Leon Kalimos, executive director recommended that the stage depth be expanded by 15 feet and ceiling height raised by 17 feet and asked for cost estimates on the proposed changes. They charged that the stage size is inadequate, and Marin will lose some of major shows.

Officials of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation and Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella gave a "very rough, horseback estimate" that the changes could add $250,000 to the $2.5 million auditorium.

George C. Izenour and William Wesley Peters, theater designers for the foundation, presented detailed figures showing how the expansion of the stage would mean drastic changes in the entire auditorium because each portion is finely balanced to provide proper accoustics and multi-use of the auditorium.

The first phase of the auditorium, now under construction, has 800 seats, and Fair-Marin Inc., plans to raise another half-million dollars to complete the second phase to bring the total seating to 2,100.

Campanella said he had got in touch with various theaters operators and designers from New York to Arizona and found that the Marin auditorium stage is adequate for most shows. He declared he can see "no cost benefit justification" for spending $150,000 to expand the stage by 15 feet and raising the ceiling at another $100,000.

Harold Stockstad, president of Fair-Marin, and director Stephen Zellerbach challenged the accuracy of the $250,000 estimate, but the supervisors replied they must go by the estimates unless Fair-Marin directors can come up with contrary evidence.

The architects and the Fair-Marin officials disagreed on the adequacy of the Marin auditorium stage.

The architects said the stage is comparable to the Gammage Auditroium at Arizon State University where major symphony, orchestras, opera and ballet companies from throughout the United States have performed satisfactorily.

Campanella said the Marin stage is almost identical in size to the Curran Theater in San Francisco.

"Last week, the manager of the Curran said the theater is too small," replied Stockstad.

On a motion by Supervisor Michael Wornum and a second by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors voted not to expand the stage. However, they agreed with Campanella that the architect should look into four other less costly changes suggested by Fair-Marin.

These would be the adequacy of plug-in amperage available on the stage, a place for costume storage, improving the stage floor "bounce", and enlarging the loading door from the present eight by ten feet to 10 by 15 feet.

The vote was 4 to 0, with Supervisors Louis H. Baar absent.

Sausalito Admits Mistake In Arrest Over Leaflets

Sausalito made a mistake when it arrested Frances Steadman of Corte Madera Sunday for passing out anit-ABM leaflets, Sausalito City Atty. Leland H. Jordan conceded yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Jordan said U. S. Supreme Court decisions have made it clear antipamphlet ordinances cannot be applied to pamphlets about religious, social or political causes.

On Jordan's request, Judge Peter Allen Smith dismissed the complaint against Mrs. Steadman of handing out leaflets without a city permit. The whole proceeding took about a minute.

Arresting officer Steven Willis "acted on an ordinance covering all leaflets," Jordan said, but "on the basis of recent Supreme Court decisions we can't proceed."

Mrs. Steadman complained Monday she was dragged to a patrol car and handcuffed with hands behind her back after being arrested.

Sausalito police Capt. David Malkin said it is department policy to handcuff all prisoners for the safety of police and prisoner.

Mrs. Steadman was with other members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom when arrested.

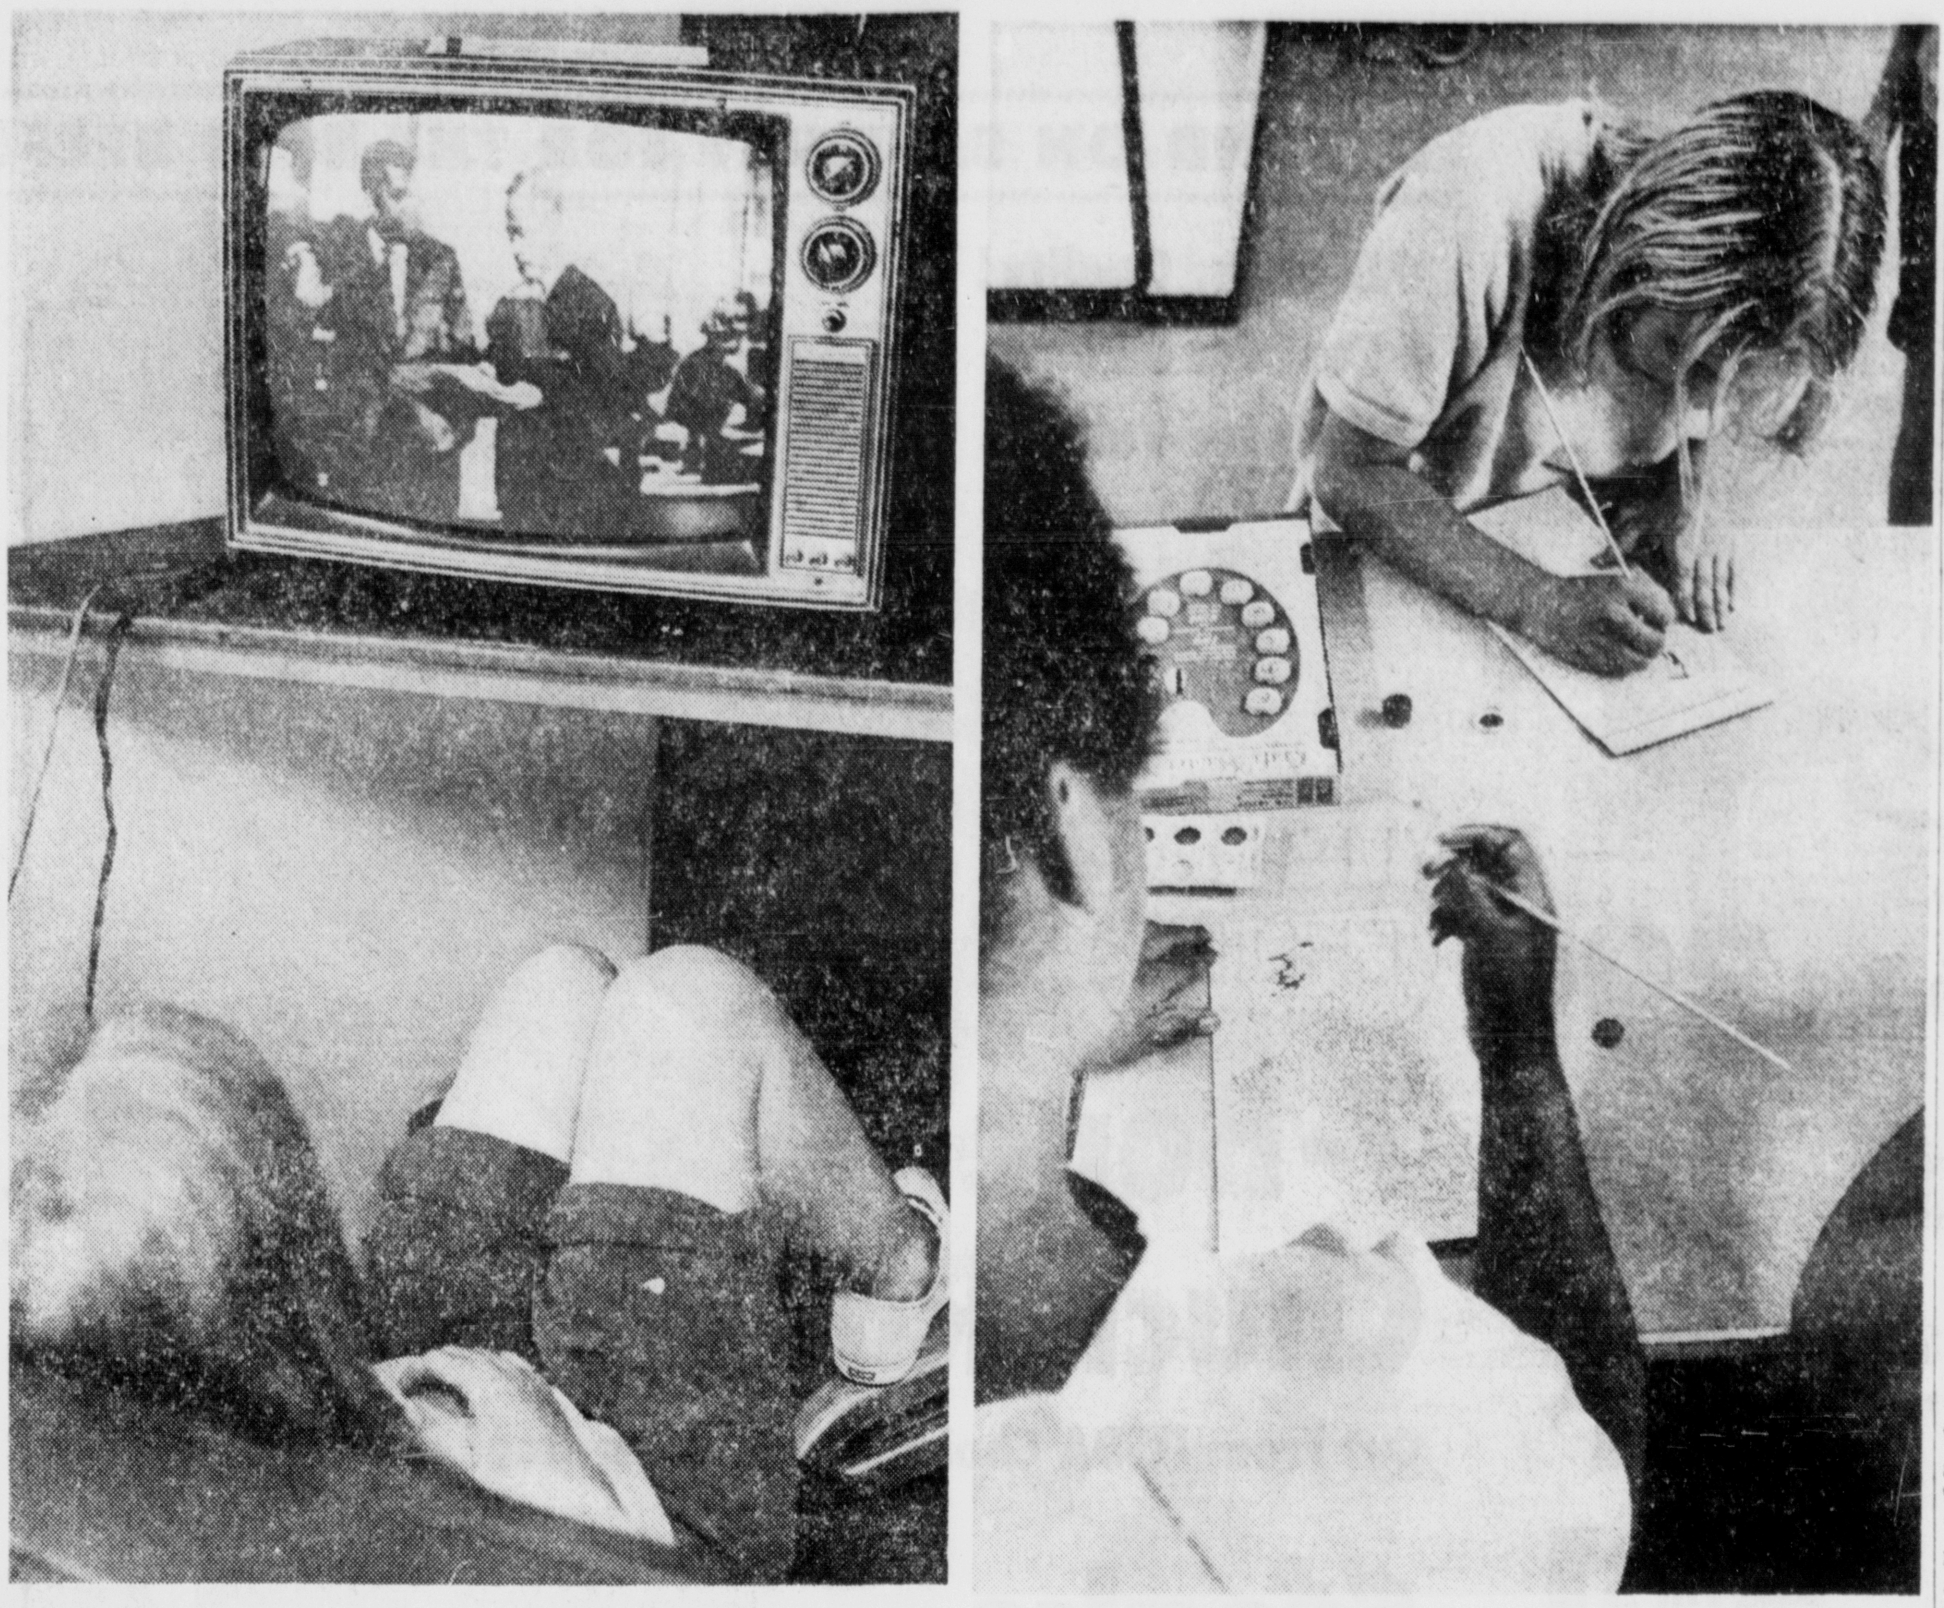
Her attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of Fairfax, said the dismissal clears the way if Mrs. Steadman wants to sue Sausalito for false arrest, as she indicated Monday she would.

Bayonet Suspect Is Bound Over

After a preliminary hearing yesterday in Marin Municipal Court, Dean Plagowski, 34, was bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial on charges of assaulting a policeman and brandishing a bayonet July 22 in Sausalito.

Plagowski, of no known address, reportedly terrorized pedestrians with the weapon before police subdued him.

He was ordered to appear at 9:30 a.m. Monday in superior court for arraignment.



ANTI-BOREDOM—These residents of Juvenile Hall fight the boredom of confinement with television, painting and a walk outside. Others play cards or other games and there's talk of a cooking class starting soon in the girls unit. Mornings are spent in school. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

JUVENILE HALL

Many Teeners There Because Aid Needed

ance, and a study to produce a report to provide better understanding of the child in court.

The teen-agers and pre-teens who are detained come from all socio-economic groups, but definite statistics are not kept on their backgrounds.

Mostly, Marin juveniles in trouble are emotionally disturbed rather than hard - core criminals, said Latty.

They all have certain things in common such as their constant craving for love and affection, he said. Most are also scared and lonely. Many have problems with school, one of the chief reasons the population is higher in winter than in summer.

The young people talk freely of their problems, the reasons they are in Juvenile Hall and why, in many cases, they're not likely to leave very soon.

Sally, the pretty girl who said she "needed help," has been in and out of Juvenile Hall for two years and disagrees with the whole concept.

"If someone runs away or has problems with their families, you shouldn't lock them up," she maintained. "Take them to a place where they can talk to someone — a help center."

Has Juvenile Hall done Sally any good? "It gives you time to think about yourself. I've become a lot more mature," she mused.

Another girl, however, said, "It makes me build up feelings of resentment toward people — parents."

Another who indicated it may have helped was a long-haired boy, detained for a variety of offenses involving burglaries and drugs.

He said it has made him realize "you've got to make decisions yourself. They try to help you make the right decisions but it's still up to the person."

He admitted his current decision making revolved around the possibility he would be committed to the California Youth Authority or a single alternative placement out of state. "I've just got to get away from all my friends, otherwise I'll keep doing the same things," he said.

Boys and girls alike agreed Juvenile Hall is boring. "It's like a rest home," one boy said. "The most difficult part of being at Juvenile Hall is not knowing what's going to happen to you," said another.

"I just don't think about it," said a thin girl with long, lank hair.

All agreed they would rather be outside, but also agreed they wouldn't run away because they don't want to "blow it."

Counselor William Pinnard noted, "The kids we're set up to work with are not splitting." The others, he said, ought to be in the county jail.

Striking among the young people we interviewed was the number who had been in and out of the hall for years. One explained that once you've been in the hall it is unhappily easy to return.

Ronald B. Jenkins, supervisor of the senior boys unit, said many keep coming back because they feel secure. "It's home here," said Pinnard.

Last month, 177 young people were admitted to Juvenile Hall and 179 released. Average daily population was 52.

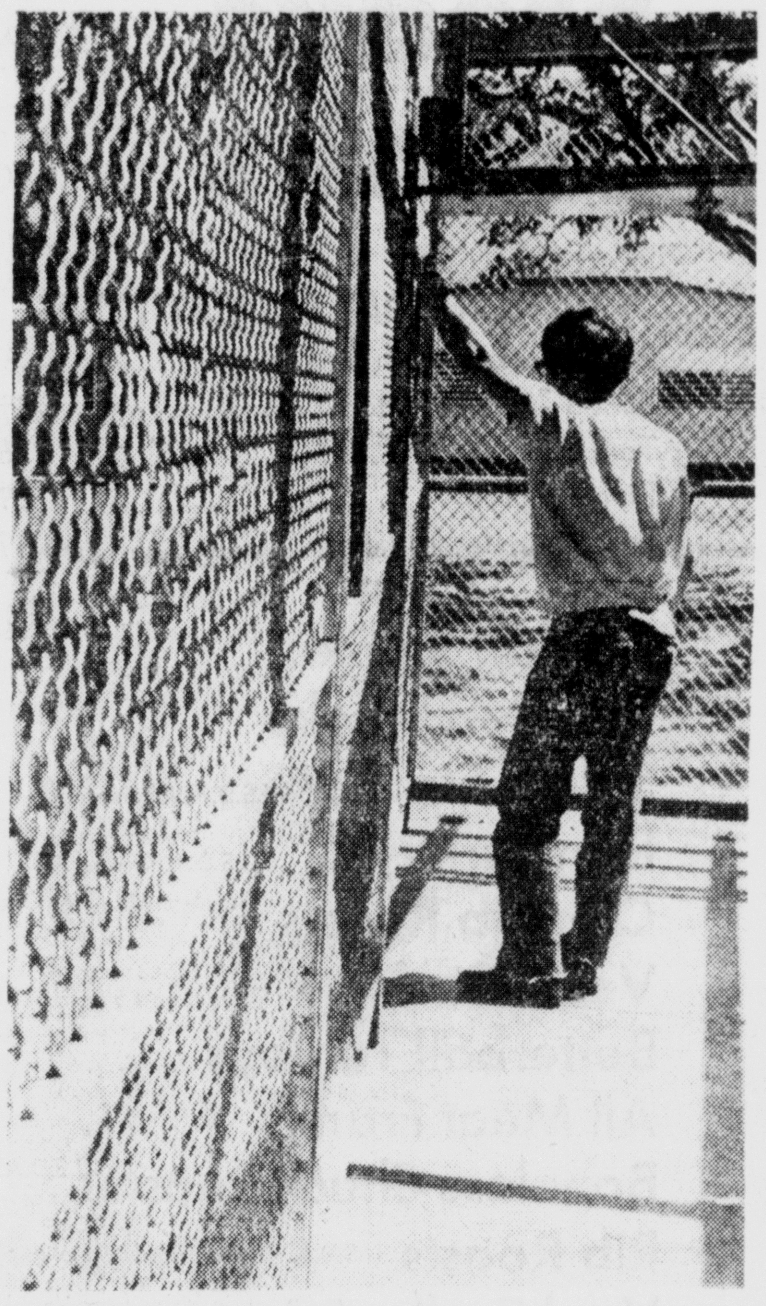
Admissions included 42 beyond parental control, 40 runaways, 29 liquor law violations, 13 each of auto theft and burglary, seven each thefts, curfew violations and disturbing the peace, six marijuana offenses, six dangerous drug or narcotics violations, two assaults, one each forgery and malicious mischief and three miscellaneous such as holds on request of other jurisdictions.

The continually shifting population adds strains to the already complex operation. The changes can stem from the shifting population as well as internal problems.

The swift changes of mood were graphically illustrated one day recently in the girls unit. The group was fairly happy during the afternoon and had talked the counselors into considering a short co-ed program that night.

Then, two girls received an LSD tablet from a former resident of the hall returning for group therapy. They shared it.

Counselors picked up on the illegal activity almost immediately and as word filtered through the group the atmosphere grew tense.



The girls were subdued, talking quietly among themselves.

Ironically, the girls' supervisor, Milton P. Shimabukuro, had said earlier in the day drugs were the thing that worried him most in having girls return for therapy.

Probation Chief John W. Brewer said he questions the value of having former residents return, although a national trend is developing in that direction.

He said it is one of the areas that will be thoroughly investigated with the new superintendent, Erick F. Yarchin of San Anselmo.

No one at the hall, however, expects ever to be able to keep drugs out of the hall, despite strict security measures which include stripping and searching whenever a resident returns from the outside.

However, the young people, counselors and administrators reported drug use is decreasing, inside and outside the hall. In January, 20 were admitted for some kind of drug use. Last month there were 12.

Hospital Tax Rate Is Lower

Marin General Hospital District's tax rate will drop by 4.5 cents per $100 assessed value this year, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

Last year's rate of 8 cents will drop to 3.5 cents for the 1969-70 fiscal year, largely because the hospital district will need far less capital improvements this year, Mitchell explained.

Last year's hospital budget was $369,000, most of which went for land acquisition to increase parking space. This year's budget request was reduced to $190,760.

The hospital tax is levied throughout the county except for the Novato area served by the Novato Hospital.

Mother And Girl, 5, Hurt Near Petaluma

A Windsor woman and her daughter were injured yesterday at 4:15 p.m. in a car-truck accident on the Petaluma-Valley Ford Road, west of Petaluma.

Lois Merritt, 48, and her daughter, Candy, 5, were treated at Petaluma General Hospital for head cuts. The California Highway Patrol said they had been passengers in a car driven by Judith Gilbert, 19, of Santa Rosa, which was struck from the rear by a milk tank truck driven by Alfred Munson, 40, of 915 Fifth Street, Petaluma.

MOTHER JAILED

Boy, 6, Found Chained In Crate

BLYTHE (AP) — The mother of a 6-year-old boy found chained inside a packing crate in a desert commune near Blythe has been jailed on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of her son.

Meanwhile, the child, Anthony Saul Gibbons, is recuperating at a receiving home in Indio. He is in good condition and "doing fine," said a Riverside County Probation Department spokesman.

Mrs. Beverly June Gibbons, 36, of Vidal, was arrested in Blythe yesterday while talking to Jeffrey Thomas Flynn, 22, identified by police as a member of the commune.

Flynn, of Vidal, was also jailed. He was accused of endangering the health or life of a child, the same charges filed earlier against six men and two men commune members, now free on $5,000 bail. A preliminary hearing in their case will be held Aug. 13.

Police said they are seeking Mrs. Gibbons' husband, James, identified as a Los Angeles County probation officer, for further questioning.

A detention hearing was scheduled to determine whether to return the boy to his parents. Capt. Ronald Bickmore of the Blythe sheriff's office said he would recommend to the court that Anthony and his sister, Tammy, 11, who also lived at the commune, remain under county care. He did not elaborate.

Tammy is with her brother at the Indio home.

Anthony was found Saturday by officers chained by the left ankle to a heavy steel plate inside a wooden crate six feet by six feet.

Bickmore said the boy claimed he had been chained because he set fire to the commune's living quarters — a quonset hut and other makeshift buildings — on about May 20.

The boy said he had been chained for nearly two months. Bickmore said Anthony's story was supported by his sister.

He said none of the commune members arrested would give statements about the boy's treatment.

Bickmore said Anthony was discovered by unidentified horse buyers Saturday. They reported they found the boy chained inside the box which was "crawling and swarming with flies."

Officers at the scene found a filthy mattress, wash basin, coffee container, drinking container, and uncovered gallon can in the crate.

They reported the boy was in good condition despite his imprisonment and temperatures they speculated climbed to more than 120 degrees inside the crate.

Bickmore said Anthony was apparently given food and water regularly and released from the box once a week to take a shower.

Gibbons and his wife, who are separated, told officers Tuesday they boarded Anthony and Tammy at the commune last February because they "liked what this group was doing."

Gibbons said his son was not chained when he visited the commune about two weeks ago.

Bickmore said the commune, on a 20 acre site about three miles west of the Colorado River, was set up by youths who apparently migrated from Los Angeles several months ago.

Bickmore said the commune's members did not dress or look like hippies "but they had the same philosophy, perhaps."

He said they tried unsuccessfully to farm and were raising chickens, pigs, cows, sheep, and horses. The horse buyers who discovered the boy were there to look at the commune's stock.

The eight commune members were taken into custody Monday, and Bickmore said more arrests are possible.

Light Planes' Collision Kills Six In Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)—Two light planes collided with a "big bang" in flight over Boise today and crashed, killing all six occupants.

One, a Cessna 190 with two men aboard, crashed near downtown Boise and only 100 feet from a kindergarten where 14 children were playing.

The other plane, a Beechcraft, crashed behind a home in a well-to-do residential area on the northern outskirts of Boise. All four aboard that plane were killed.

The two persons aboard the Cessna were tentatively identified as attorney Eugene Smith of Boise and B. P.W. Clapin, a Boise pilot.

Smith was a former prosecuting attorney of Ada County and the son of retired Chief Justice E. B. Smith of the Idaho Supreme Court.

The Beechcraft, believed to be from Oregon, struck a guy wire when it crashed behind the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Deusen.

The crash started a grass fire that blackened the side of the hill behind the home and burned bushes right behind the home.

Three bodies were found inside the wreckage and one was on the ground beside it. All were burned.

The Cessna was one of a flight of Boise Chamber of Commerce members returning from a fly-in breakfast tour to the primitive back country.

The plane did not burn when it crashed. A piece of the plane struck the home of Mrs. Gardner Parsons but did little damage.

Nearly 9,000 offshore oil wells have been sunk in the world's continental shelves.

Pound Probe To Follow San Francisco Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn asked the district attorney's office yesterday to look into the operation of the city pound by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Mendelsohn, chairman of the supervisors' health committee, made the request after a five-hour public hearing on the SPCA's operations.

He said witnesses had alleged criminal activity in the disposal of dogs and cats. Mendelsohn said there was no proof of wrongdoing, but that an investigation should be made.

Twenty-five witnesses appeared, accusing the SPCA of mass destruction of cats and dogs on July 3, improper use of its animal death chamber, and inadequate veterinary services.

Charles W. Friederichs, executive director of the SPCA, denied the charges.

The key witness was Dennis Mazer, a former SPCA kennelman suspended for insubordination. He said he was suspended when he protested the mass destruction of cats and dogs on July 3. He said the animals were killed in violation of a required 96-hour waiting period because SPCA officials knew kennelmen were preparing to strike for union recognition.

Mazer also said dogs and cats were piled one atop another in the chloroform and vacuum death chambers and that dead animals are left in the machines while new animals are put in to be gassed. He said sometimes the machines aren't emptied for weeks.

Friederichs said it was "absolutely false" to say animals are piled into the machines, and "utterly ridiculous" to charge that an order to destroy all strays and owner-surrendered animals was given before the strike.

Car Rolls On 101; Teen-Ager Hurt

Steve Jay Friend, 17, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was slightly injured early today when his car rolled on Highway 101 near Lucky Drive, the California Highway Patrol said.

Friend, who was alone in his car when the accident occurred at 3:25 a.m., complained of a pain in his right knee and went to his own physician, officers said.

The youth apparently fell asleep and the car left the road and rolled, patrolmen said.

MARINER CLOSES IN ON MARS

Scientists in the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena and TV watchers across the country simultaneously got first looks last night at this picture of Mars, flashed back from Mariner 6 as it nears the climax of a five-months journey to the red planet's neighborhood. The series of photos shows how radioed bits of information from the Mariner recorders are built up by computers to a picture on a TV screen. (See story page 1.)

On Saturday the Goldenaires will go to Oakland to see the Oakland A's play the Boston Red Sox, the buses to leave the Community Recreation Center at 11 a.m. and return at 5:30 p.m.

Reagan Names San Rafael Man To Drug Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A San Rafael resident was one of two men named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the newly created advisory committee on drug manufacturing.

The Marin resident is James E. Tingstead of 19 Pueblo Court. He is supervisor of the pharmaceutical technology laboratory at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

Tingstead previously was employed for 10 years as manager of pharmacy research with the Upjohn Pharmaceutical Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Regan's other appointment was Irving Porush of Los Angeles, director of quality control and analytical chemistry for Riker Laboratories in Northridge.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Starvation And Malnutrition May Stem From Low Incomes

VAN DELLEN

To the best of my knowledge, there is no evidence of widespread starvation in this country, but there are people who do not get enough to eat. Current studies of low income areas show that many consume diets containing 50 per cent of the foods considered adequate in calories, iron, and vitamins A and C. One-third of the children under 6 years of age are anemic because of iron-poor diets.

But despite obvious malnutrition, many of these people are in better health than those in hunger areas abroad. According to Dr. Arnold E. Schaeffer, writing in Nutrition Today, this stems from America's "pure water, a safe food supply, excellent sewage disposal, and good medical care." Malnutrition per se is bad enough, but it is much worse when combined with filth and "the stressful insults of a hostile environment."

THIS MAY explain why there is very little actual starvation or severe vitamin deficiency diseases. Being poor means that they have very little money to spend for groceries. But this is only part of the story. Many poor people do not know what foods to buy or how to cook them. This was the rationale of school lunch programs. At least the children got one good meal a day.

When Orville Freeman was secretary of agriculture, he wrote a letter to the editor of Science relative to hunger in the United States. "We are now reaching 20 million children with school lunch programs of which 2.5 million are fed free lunch or pay a token price. Our combined food stamp and commodity distribution program now reaches a million people in 2,400 counties . . . We are now furnishing 22 foods under our commodity distribution program with a maximum value of 1,600 calories."

THE FOOD INDUSTRY must be encouraged to fortify more edibles with vitamins and minerals. Since enrichment is no longer stressed, there has been a growing tendency to omit these essentials from staple products.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MILK

J. M. writes: Television and billboard advertisements tell me that a person never outgrows his need for milk. On the other hand, some doctors say "no milk" because of its cholesterol content. I am 42 and have always loved milk, but recently switched to the 2 per cent type. I would appreciate your comments.

REPLY

The fat in milk is a saturated fatty acid and if you have a problem along this line, switch to skim milk which contains all of the nutrients found in milk but none of the fats.

LEG CRAMPS

D. M. writes: Could nightly cramps in the calf indicate Buerger's disease? There is no trouble during the day.

REPLY

Not as a rule. Poor circulation due to arteriosclerosis or Buerger's disease may produce pain in the calf, but the symptom usually occurs after exercise and is relieved by rest. Continuous pain develops in the foot and calf when the circulation is further reduced. It may be mistaken for cramping but usually is present day and night.

RAW SPUDS

A reader writes: Are raw potatoes considered poisonous?

REPLY

No. Although raw starches are more difficult to digest, they are not harmful.

ULCERS

T. K. writes: What makes an ulcer perforate?

REPLY

Ulcers are craters and when they grow deeper are likely to break through or perforate the wall of the stomach or duodenum. As a result, acid leaks into the abdominal cavity and produces a chemical peritonitis. Perforation may be the first sign of ulcer. In other instances, perforation occurs because of dietary neglect or lack of treatment. A perforated ulcer is a surgical emergency.

HYSTERECTOMY

A reader writes: Is the heart beat irregular after a woman has undergone a hysterectomy?

REPLY

It could be, but not because the uterus was removed. There are many different types of heart irregularities and this woman should consult her physician.

MEASLES

Mrs. R. A. writes: Is ordinary measles as harmful as German measles to a pregnant woman?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge, although statistics along this line are meager. Most women have had regular measles long before reaching the marriageable age.

COLICKY PAIN

A reader writes: Can gas spasms in the colon be referred to as colic?

REPLY

Yes, especially when severe. The term is used more commonly in referring to the bowel discomfort many infants develop.

Today's Health Hint — Sunglasses protect against glare and prevent squinting.

CONFUSION

A reader writes: I'm a 62-year-old widow with low blood pressure. I get spells of confusion lasting two or three minutes. During these bouts I don't know where I am and lose track of time. I wonder if I ought to continue driving my car?

REPLY

Leave the car in the garage until the cause of your blackouts is determined. Low blood pressure is not a factor but circulation to the brain may be disturbed or you may have a low blood sugar or epilepsy.

PHLEBITIS

E. L. writes: Is it safe to expose a leg to the sun that had a serious thrombosis a year ago?

REPLY

Yes, provided exposure is gradual so that the skin is not burned.

OLIVE OIL

A reader writes: Is cooking in olive oil permitted on a low fat diet?

REPLY

Yes.

ROAST BEEF

A reader writes: My roommate keeps telling me that rare roast beef is better for us than beef that is well done. I disagree. However, it is a bit of a problem to cook one roast and have half of it come out rare and the other well done.

REPLY

Properly roasted beef, be it rare, medium, or well done, is similar in nutritive quality. However, when it is too well done, the meat loses some of its juiciness. Why not get two steaks instead of a roast? Cook one rare and cremate the other one.

Today's Health Hint — Plastic wading pools without covers should be cleaned at frequent intervals.

Some Series Are Just Plain Bores

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The tipoff to television's prime time is not how many series you watch with avid pleasure or active dislike, but, rather, how many you simply disregard because of dullness.

Since I earn my living watching the tube, I am required to tune in most of the shows if just for a few minutes now and then—that is, once they have had their premieres and run for a while. Until that time, it is only fair to view them with some regularity.

Once they have had a fair shake, however, it would be unmitigated mental cruelty to force anybody to sit through all of the prime time series with regularity. And so I can tell you frankly which shows leave me totally unmoved, and which I watch least of all throughout the year.

I don't remember the last "Peyton Place" for more than two or three minutes at a stretch for the last few years. Same goes for "The, Big Valley" and "I Dream of Jeannie."

I don't rememer the last time I saw "Hogan's Heroes," but whenever it was it certainly was too recent. Funny Nazis never amused me and never will, and it took some time before my violent dislike of this series finally ran down into total lack of feeling for it.

The Doris Day show lost me about five minutes after it went on the air, and, curiously, despite some good episodes, I hardly ever watch "The Virginian" more than briefly.

"The Mothers-In-Law" was a void so far as I was concerned, and the same for "My Friend Tony" and "Land of the Giants" and "Get Smart."

I feel nothing special when I turn in "Adam-12" or hayseed stuff like "Petticoat Junction" and the other similar series.

Lawrence Welk is very professional and a nice man, but I just can't make it through one of his hours — not at all way. "The Dating Game" and "The Newlywed Game" hold me for about a minute each time I tune in.

"Gomer Pyle" just isn't up my alley, and I have absolutely no feeling for anybody or anything in "The Wild, Wild West."

The trouble with television, really, is not that it's bad—because it's often good—but that there's just too much of it, too many hours, and the odds are simply against it.

49er Coach Impresses Head Of Goldrushers

For a man who spends most of his waking hours on green turf, Coach Dick Nolan of the San Francisco 49ers doesn't let any grass grow under his feet.

Take that observation from Mr. Price Hall of the Franciscan Savings and Loan Association, Tiburon, who just returned from the Niners' training camp at Santa Barbara. A season ticket holder since the team's inception in 1946 and recently elected acting president of the newborn Marin Chapter, 49er Goldrushers Club, Mr. Hall couldn't wait for the 1969 season to begin so he spent the weekend rubbing elbows with his favorite athletes.

And, he came home quite impressed with Mr. Nolan, now in his second year at the helm. Hall, who has viewed most games from the stands, was fascinated with a close look at Nolan's coaching methods which include the use of a computer.

Charts Tell Team's Reactions

Says Hall: "Nolan has been making charts of players' actions for the past several years on certain downs in regard to position on the field, both by yard line and hash mark, point of time in the game and the score. He told me that he had concluded that the constant factor in forecasting plays was the coach or the coaching system. He found that by charting more than one year he could predict the team reaction to a given situation and then, relating his finding to the strengths or weaknesses of an individual key player, he could successfully defend against the play. This could succeed or fail depending on the skill and execution of the defending player. Nolan found that by relating the tendencies evident in a five-game study they were almost identical to the findings over a five-year period.

"When he came to the 49ers he acquired a computer to lighten this tremendous amount of paper work. He found that by using a card punched with eight factors he could accomplish in 30 minutes what had taken him 40 hours."

System Has Improved Alexander

Hall discussed Nolan's system with retired linebacker Matt Hazeltine, the Tam High graduate who is now doing public relations work with the 'Niners. "Matt told me that a good example of the success of the system," said Hall, "was the actions of Kermit Alexander during the latter half of last season when, after absorbing the system, he intercepted more passes than ever before and was a much better defender.

"Matt also said that, in his opinion, Kermit and Jimmy Johnson were the best pair of corner defenders in football. He qualifies this by saying that several of the best defenders had retired or slowed down considerably while K and J had improved. He also said that, prior to Nolan, he did not believe that Kermit had had sufficient good coaching."

Hall, a perennial optimist, feels the 'Niners should show a marked improvement now that they've had time to absorb Nolan's coaching technique.

Now, if we can find a socket at Kezar and teach that electronic brains how to block and tackle . . .

Socket to 'em, 'Niners.

Dillon Headed For Santa Clara

RUSS DILLON, one of Marin's hottest baseball prospects who pitched Novato High to the Marin Athletic League title this year, has signed a letter of intent with University of Santa Clara. Meaning the Atlanta Braves, who drafted him, will have to wait in line.

THAT FAMILIAR-LOOKING man umpiring third base at last Saturday's Marin Little League District championship game in Corte Madera was Jim ("Dating Game") Lange of television fame. A resident of Lucas Valley, Lange has been active in the Marinwood-Lucas Valley L.L. program when he isn't commuting to Los Angeles videoland.

SWIMMER TERRY SHISTAR of San Anselmo, a U.C. Berkeley coed, has been training in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for next month's 11th International World Games of the Deaf in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Her mother, Mary Lou, who will accompany the 125 U.S. athletes as a member of the medical staff (she's a registered nurse), says the team will depart New York next Tuesday for Europe. Mrs. Shistar sends thanks to all Marinites who contributed to Terry's Travel Fund.

Sharon Walsh Helps North In Team Win

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Northern California, Western and Southern California gained the semifinals in the U.S. National Intersectional Girls Team Tennis Championship yesterday.

The matches were shifted to indoor clay courts after being held up several days by rain.

Northern California defeated the Southern Lawn Tennis Association 5-0, Western defeated Texas 4-1 and Southern California downed New England 4-1 to gain the round of four. The other semifinal berth will be filled Wednesday when Florida plays Middle Atlantic.

Eliza Pande defeated Tuppey Dougherty 6-1, 6-1 to lead the Northern California sweep. In the other matches, Martcie Louis defeated Jean Shapiro 7-5, 6-4; Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, defeated Linda Wert 6-3, 6-0; Gail Hansen defeated Sis Kibler 3-6, 6-3, 6-1; and Brenda Garcia defeated Mary Miller 6-3, 6-4.

Cathy Bemme defeated Emily Fisher 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 for the only Texas victory against Western.

Sohner In Key Playoff Game

Sohner Tree Service softballers will battle the Sebastopol Merchants at Petaluma's McNair Park tomorrow night in a playoff for the championship of the Petaluma "A" League at 7:30.

Sebastopol won the first half of league play and the Treemen were unbeaten in the second half.

Novato Babe Ruth Stars Do It Again

Novato's Babe Ruth All-Star team is only a step away from becoming the Northern California Babe Ruth champion.

The All-Stars could take care of that tonight when they meet the winner of a losers-bracket game at 8:30 in the Northern California Babe Ruth championship tournament at Auburn.

Novato became the only remaining unbeaten club in the tourney last night on the strength of a convincing 3-1 victory over Yuba City. Either Yuba City or Auburn, who play off at 6 o'clock tonight, will provide the opposition in the 8:30 game.

Impeccable relief pitching and clutch hitting by Randy Jackson and Hoza Wright turned the trick last night for Novato.

Marty Moroski, a straight A student at Novato High School, bailed out wild and wooly starter Greg Mazeres in the second inning against Yuba City after Mazeres had given up a hit four walks and committed two errors, letting in Yuba City's only run in the first inning.

From there on in, Moraski shut the door on Yuba City, not allowing a single hit or run, allowing only three runners to reach base, striking out ten batters while walking only two in five and two-thirds innings of heavy relief work.

Novato, trailing 1-0, tied it in the third when Jeff deRecat walked, Steve Judnick singled and Jackson doubled for the game's only extra base hit, driving in deRecat.

Novato went ahead in the fourth when Moroski singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Wright's single.

In the sixth, Dennis Stanley and Wright hit back-to-back singles, with Stanley eventually scoring from third on a passed ball.

Novato collected seven hits, two each by Wright and Jackson.

In two games, Novato pitching was allowed only one hit and no earned runs at Auburn. Judnick hurled a no-hitter in an opening-game win over Menlo Park Sunday.

Unlikely Heroes For A's

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's are getting help from some unlikely people in their drive to overtake the Minnesota Twins in the American League west pennant race.

For instance, rookie left-hander Vida Blue beat the New York Yankees, 6-5, last night for his first major league victory.

And the winning runs were provided by seldom-used Ramon Webster who brought home two runs in the eighth inning with a pinch hit triple and then scored the winnings himself on Bob Johnson's single.

Of course, there's also a familiar name in the Athletics' big surge — Reggie Jackson. He drove in two runs for Oakland with his 40th homer and a fielder's choice. The homer put him 23 games ahead of Babe Ruth's pace but one game behind that of Roger Maris.

The A's, who still trail the Twins by three full games, despite winning 14 of their last 17 games, meet the Yankees again tonight with Chuck Dobson, 12-7, pitching against Fritz Peterson, 10-12, of New York.

THANK THEM ALL

Blue pitched the first eight innings against the Yankees. It was a loser when he left the game, but Oakland scored three runs in the last of the eighth off ex-teammate Jack Aker to win.

"I wanted to thank everyone of those guys who helped me win," the 23-year-old Blue said.

"Just think, I beat the Yankees for my first major league victory."

Webster, who had struck out in his previous three trips to the plate as a pinch-hiter, whipped Akers first pitch for a triple.

"I figured he would throw a sinker ball because that's his best pitch," Webster said of Aker. "I'm a low-ball hitter and it was his strength against mine."

"I'm happy I did something to help the team. It's been a long time."

Bulldogs, Rockets Win Junior Soccer

The Bulldogs downed the Trojans 5-1 and Rock's Rockets topped the Independents, 1-0, in a pair of San Rafael Recreation Department junior soccer games at Vallecito Junior High School yesterday.

Francisco Cepeda and Bill Mejia scored two goals each for the Bulldogs while Julio Mestre scored the winning goal for Rocks Rockets.

ANGER AND PAIN

Hundley Mad At Mays, Willie Hurt In Big Slide

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo is mad at umpire John Kibler. Randy Hundley is mad at Willie Mays. Mays isn't mad at anyone but he's nursing a pair of sore knees.

The entire incident came about in the seventh inning of yesterday's game in which the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

With Bobby Bonds on first via a single and one out, Mays laced a drive into the right field corner to score Bonds with the tie-breaking run.

Willie stretched what should have been a double into a triple and when Kibler called him safe, Santo, the Cub third baseman, blew his top.

Moments later, Willie McCovey, who earlier had hit his 32nd homer, hit a sacrifice fly to Billy Williams in left field. Mays came tearing home and bowled over Hundley to score the insurance run.

Mays, however, had to leave the game with an injured left knee and a scraped right knee.

"No," said Mays later, "It's not serious. I don't need any X-rays. Don't know if I'll play tomorrow. I'm not that smart. We'll just wait and see. Williams made a great throw and if I had slid, I think I would have been out because Hundley would have blocked the plate."

"Hogwash," said Hundley. "I gave him the plate. I'd be stupid to try to block the plate on a long play like that. I don't know what he had in mind but he'd have scored easily if he had slid. There was no call for him to come in at me like that."

As it turned out, Mays could have been out at third or the plate and it wouldn't have made any difference since the Cubs didn't stir the mildest of uprisings against Frank Linzy who won easily in relief of rookie Ron Bryant.

With the series squared at 1-1 and the season series between the two teams standing at 3-3, another meeting was on tap today with Gaylord Perry (12-7) going for San Francisco against Dick Selma (10-4).

Will NBA, ABA Merge?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Basketball Association and the National basketball association may merge within 30 days, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

A merger would be similar to that of the American and National football leagues, the story said.

Reportedly the older, established NBA made the first overture to the younger ABA, with the aim to end a war that has sent player salaries soaring.

The report says a source close to the situation revealed, that the ABA has received a proposal from the NBA featuring three main points.

1—There would be separate leagues, but beginning next spring there would be a common draft of college seniors. After the ABA has been upgraded to a competitive level with the NBA, there would be a championship series between the leagues.

2—The Los Angeles Stars and Oakland Oaks, both of the ABA, would be relocated. Presumably, because the New York Nets are physically based on Long Island, each league would keep its "New York" team.

3—Each ABA franchise would pay the NBA indemnities, possibly as much as $500,000.

A merger would also presumably end a number of suits now pending that involve both leagues and several individual teams.

One unidentified owner was quoted as saying if there is a merger, it would come before Sept. 1.

The report said that Paul Caruso of Beverly Hills, Calif., who is the attorney for the ABA's Los Angeles Stars, was visited at his home two weeks ago by three NBA owners: Sam Schulman of Seattle, Dick Bloch of Phoenix and Franklin Meull of San Francisco.

None could immediately be reached for comment.

Bill Russell Will Retire From NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Russell, player-coach of the world champion Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association and one of the game's all-time greats, is retiring, Sports Illustrated said today in a copyrighted article.

Russell wrote that he "no longer feels the urge to compete." The 35-year-old Russell went on to say:

"There are professionals and there are mercenaries in sports. The difference between them is that the professional is involved. I was never a mercenary. If I continued to play, I'd become a mercenary. I'm not involved any more . . . I've lost my competitive urge. If I went out to play now, the other guys would know I didn't really care. That's no way to play—it's no way to do anything . . .

"You can bet I'm going to do something that will call on the kind of energy I've been using in sports for the last 20 years." In the meantime, he said "I'm going to become the hottest 6-foot-9 black lefthanded 16-handicap golfer to come along in years."

Russell's contract still has one year to run.

In Boston, however, a Celtics spokesman said the team has no knowledge of any resignation.

"As far as I know," the spokesman said, "There has been no official resignation by Russell. He may have resigned to Sports Illustrated—but not to the Celtics."

Russell was reported en route back to the West Coast where he has been making television shows since end of the basketball season.

Once Great Don Drysdale Throwing With His Heart

CHICAGO—When the Giants arrived in Chicago for their four-game series with the Cubs, the Dodgers were still in town. In fact, they were in the same hotel both clubs use for their Chicago headquarters. The Dodgers had a day off Monday so they spent it in Chicago instead of rushing on to their next stop in Pittsburgh.

Don Drysdale was in the lobby and, as always, was an easy fellow to interview. Big D naturally is concerned that a damaged right shoulder may prematurely end his major league career that began 14 seasons ago. But at the moment he was very happy because once again he was back in action.

THIS SPRING Drysdale fell into the dugout chasing a foul during an exhibition game in the Astrodome. A muscle deep in the right shoulder was torn. He was on the disabled list three weeks, returned to action but still wasn't right. He had a 4-3 record on July 3 when the arm went bad again and that was the last time he pitched until he faced the Cubs last Sunday and beat them 6-2 although he lasted only the minimum five innings to qualify for the victory.

"WHEN I went out there," said Drysdale, "I wasn't sure how much the arm would hurt. I didn't have as much pain as I've had. The arm felt fine.

"When I went into the clubhouse I didn't put as much ice on it as I usually do. I didn't want to take the chance of having it stiffen up too much and not being able to throw loose the next time."

RON SANTO hit a homer off Drysdale in the third inning and Billy Williams ended his day's work with another to lead off the sixth.

"As soon as Williams hit it I knew that was as far as I was going to go."

Concensus of the Cubs was that Drysdale's snap is gone. "He wasn't Drysdale — not the way he used to be," was the way Glenn Beckert summed up Cub reaction. "He gave me pitches I should have hit."

DRYSDALE ACKNOWLEDGED that his fast ball refused to move as it once did for 3,000 innings during which he recorded 209 victories.

"I was throwing as hard as ever but I couldn't put much on it," he said.

SOME SAID he still throws a fast ball — but in his heart. Others said Drysdale got by the Cubs with his great competitive spirit.

Nobody ever questioned the stout competitive heart of Drysdale, especially old Seals Stadium fans at 16th and Bryant Streets in San Francisco where Drysdale sidetracked the Giants on their way to a pennant in late September of 1959.

THE GIANTS were two games in front with eight to play when the Dodgers came in for a three-game series. Drysdale walked the first three men he faced in the opener. He struck out the next three — Orlando Cepeda, Willie Kirkland and Daryl Spencer.

Then the Dodgers swept the series, moved into first place, one game ahead of the Giants, and ultimately beat the Braves in a playoff for the pennant.

Cincy Hurlers Keep Dry

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the first time in three weeks a Cincinnati Reds pitcher didn't leave for an early shower . . . the same couldn't be said for the thunder in the Atlanta Braves bats.

The Reds edged to within three games of the Braves in the red-hot scramble for the top spot in the West Division of the National League with a 4-2 victory over Montreal last night behind the steady four-hit pitching of left-hander Jim Merritt.

San Francisco stopped Chicago 4-2 in the only afternoon contest while the Los Angeles Dodgers split a twi-night doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates, losing 4-2 in 10 innings before taking the nightcap 6-5.

The Giants are two games behind the Braves while the Dodgers are a game back.

St. Louis blasted San Diego 10-4 and the Houston at New York twi-nighter was rained out.

The Braves lost a chance to gain ground when they exploded for seven runs in the second inning and were leading 8-0 after three innings over the Phillies in Philadelphia when the rains came. After a wait of 52 minutes, the umpires postponed the twi-night twin bill and the Braves avalanche of base hits was washed out.

In Cincinnati, however, Reds Manager Dave Bristol didn't mind his lack of a shower until after the game.

"Did you notice I didn't go to the mound at all tonight," Bristol remarked after the game. "Matter of fact, it might have been the only time I haven't gone to it this season."

It was the first complete game by a Red starter since July 8. And only the 13th complete game by the Cincinnati staff. Merritt owns five of them as he upped his record to 10-4.

The Pirates said Belinsky, purchased outright for an undisclosed price, will report to Pittsburgh within a few days.

Belinsky notched his ninth consecutive victory Monday night and has a 12-5 record in the PCL, tops in the league. His earned run average is 2.86. He appeared in 23 games.

Belinsky started the year with the St. Louis Cardinals, then was released.

Stabler Leaves Oakland Camp

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Former Alabama star quarterback Kenny Stabler has quit the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League "because "there's not much sense in staying in it if I wasn't enjoying it."

Stabler, the Raiders' second-round draft choice two years ago, said he was not displeased with his treatment at Oakland but simply was tired of playing football.

"I know that it's hard to tell a football fan you're tired of the game," Stabler said in a telephone interview. "I'm not tired of football, but I am tired of playing football. I just hope that people will understand."

Stabler was to have played Saturday night in an exhibition game in Birmingham against the Kansas City Chiefs.

The left-handed quarterback said he started to wait until after Saturday night's game in Birmingham before quitting, "but that seemed like a phony thing to do."

"I kept asking myself on the plane coming back if I was doing the right thing and I feel like I have," Stabler continued. "I may regret it later, but I don't now."

McLain, Lolich Get Double Twin Trouble

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tangling with a pneumonia bug and the Minnesota Twins on the same day can bring the toughest Tiger to his knees. Denny McLain isn't even certain which hits harder.

McLain was sent home from Minnesota last night . . . with a touch of pneumonia, according to a team spokesman . . . after being shelled for nine runs in 4⅓ innings as the Twins completed a 5-2, 11-5 doubleheader sweep over the Detroit Tigers.

Dr. Len Michienzi, a Minnesota club physician who examined McLain, prescribed rest for the Tigers' 15-game winner, who was running a high fever.

"I haven't felt very good for three, four days and knew something was wrong," McLain said before leaving for Detroit. "But this isn't an alibi for losing. I had pretty good stuff, but every ball they hit was a shot."

The Twins cuffed McLain, 15-6, for 11 of their 17 hits in the nightcap after prevailing over 14-game winner Mickey Lolich in the first game. They hadn't beaten either of the Detroit aces since the 1967 season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland nipped the New York Yankees 6-5, Baltimore downed Kansas City 4-1, California topped Boston 4-3, Washington trimmed Seattle 4-2 and Cleveland won a pair from the Chicago White Sox, 34- in 11 innings and 9-5.

QUITE ILL

McLain, won 31 games last season and has sparkled again this year despite arm trouble and dental problems, was "quite ill" before the Tigers left Detroit Monday, his business partner, Stan Drall, said last night.

The Twins, beaten eight times in succession by the 25-year-old right-hander, raked him for seven runs in the fifth inning, Tony Oliva's two-run tape-measure homer keying the uprising. Rod Carew stroked two singles in the inning and Leo Cardenas and Ted Uhlaender each drove in two runs.

In the opener, Lolich worked seven innings and allowed just five hits. But one of them was a two-run double by Oliva and another was a two-run homer by Carew . . . the first home run off the Detroit southpaw this season.

SOCCER — AMERICAN STYLE — Members of the Bulldogs (dark jerseys) and the Rock's Rockets go after a soccer ball in a senior division game of the San Rafael Recreation Department's summer soccer league. The Rockets and the Bulldogs battled to a 1-1 tie recently, assuring the Rockets of the league title.

New Junior Soccer League Successful In San Rafael

Soccer, that most continental of sports which failed as a big-time American operation, seems to be flourishing as a San Rafael-Terra Linda youth enterprise.

The San Rafael Recreation Department's first stab at a summer youth soccer league will put the finishing touches to its first season tomorrow evening at Vallecito Junior High School with final play in its junior division for boys in grades eight through ten.

There is also a league for boys in grades 11-12 up to 19 years old, which wound up play yesterday, also at Vallecito.

The program, with groundwork laid by the physical education departments at Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools, met with considerable success.

Program director Bob Vasser of San Rafael reported that some 55 boys in the senior division and 35 more in the younger group reported out after a preseason clinic.

It hasn't just been a matter of some inexperienced novices getting together for a series of basically clumsy games. Most of the youths out for the two leagues have had some contact with the sport, either by experience in the San Francisco junior leagues or through school classes. At both San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools, the sport is reported to be the most popular during phys-ed periods and that includes such old standbys as baseball and basketball.

Terra Linda is planning on having a regular soccer team of its own, pending approval by the board of education.

The Rocks Rockets win the senior division with a 4-0-1 won-lost-tied record, representing mostly Terra Linda youths. The Bulldogs, a San Rafael entry, finished second with a 3-1-1 record. The Trojans were third at 2-3 and the Independents finished last at 0-5.

Some of the outstanding players in the league have included Julio Mestre of the Bulldogs and Rick O'Rourke of the champion Rocks Rockets.

The junior league has been plagued by a rash of recent forfeits and the standings are in a jumble.

However, even when designated teams don't show up to make an official game, there are enough sideliners to keep some informal action going.

MAY MUSHROOM

Vasser has been heartened by the spectator turnout for most of the games. He figures the program is a success and will mushroom next summer

"The turnout has really been gratifying," he said. "Most of the credit ought to go to the physical education departments of Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools."

Vasser is a San Francisco State graduate, who played three years of varsity soccer ball. He's also a member of Teutonia German Club soccer team, has coached the Olympic Club soccer team and is vice president of the Northern California Junior Soccer League.

BUDGET CUT

Sonoma To Review Athletic Future

The future of intercollegiate athletics at Sonoma State College is being reviewed by the college's athletic board with all efforts being made to sustain the program, according to President Ambrose R. Nichols Jr.

Acknowledging the many complaints issued by Marin and southern Sonoma County residents over the proposed curtailment of the program, the president said the student-faculty board would review the scope and funding available for the program.

The directors of the Associated Students had slashed the budget of intercollegiate sports to $8,800. Athletic Director G. Edward Rudloff has requested $16,000 and said the fund cut would ruin plans for the stepped-up women's sports program and the college's planned debut in intercollegiate football.

After a series of meetings, the board is expected to recommend to the athletic department what added funds are needed or to what degree the program must be curtailed.

President Nichols said that student body president James G. Gillette and Rudloff are in agreement as to the importance of the college's participation in sports in the Far Western Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and expect that Sonoma State will field teams during the 1969-70 academic years.

Marin Quartet Wins In Junior Tennis Tourney

A quartet of Marin County aces marched into the third round of the 11th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt Tennis Tournament at the Mill Valley Tennis Club yesterday with second-round victories.

Bob Klyce of San Rafael, the champion of the recent Marin County tournament, downed Ben Cator of Sacramento, 6-2, 6-0 and Mill Valley star Andy Moffat wiped out Mike Towne, 6-4, 6-2 in boys 18. San Rafael boys 16 champ Bill Kinser downed Paul Bartolini of Mill Valley, 4-6, 9-7, 6-2 and Jerry Suyderhoud of San Anselmo took out Mark Rod Rodnick of Tiburon, 6-1, 6-3. Losing in boys 16 was Eugene Kilgore of Belvedere.

Steve DeMartini of San Rafael lost in boys 14 singles, as did Jeff Beritzhoff of Mill Valley. Dan Tierney of Tiburon won in boys 14.

Lisa Bertizhoff of Mill Valley lost in second-round play of girls 12. Lissy Manheim of Tiburon prevailed in girls 18, downing Linda Davidson, 6-0, 6-1.

New York A 13-Point Favorite

CHICAGO (AP) — The betting gentry warily is making the New York Jets little more than an early two-touchdown favorite over the collegians in the 36th All-Star Football Game at Soldier Field tomorrow night.

The Jets, propelled by Super Bowl hero Joe Namath, could win going away in the first appearance by an American Football League club in the colorful classic long dominated by champions of the National Football League.

But a certain maystery hovers over All-Star Coach Otto Graham's All-Star squad which has been drilling at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

The NFL holds a 24-9-2 edge in the All-Star series.

Graham has assembled a 50-player squad without such bickering top pro draftees as O.J. Simpson of Southern California, Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Joe Greene, heralded defensive tackle from North Texas State; split end Ron Sellers of Florida State, and tight end Ted Kwalick of Penn State.

The odds-makers are uncertain whether a collegiate squad, still packed with 17 of pro football's 26 first-round draft choices, can come up with more voltage than the Jets expect.

DEFENDER — Donald M. Bekins of Belvedere will open defense of his national Triton Class sailing championship in a series of races this weekend on San Francisco Bay, hosted by the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere. Bekins, national commodore of the Triton Class (28½ feet in length) scored an unprecedented "sweep" of honors in 1968 by winning the class's perpetual trophy and Bay Area title in addition to his national title. Others competing in the nationals this weekend are Gene Yates of Ross, representing the Sausalito Y.C., Frank Lossy of the Berkeley Y.C., John Neidringhaus of Chesapeake Bay, and Dick Marshall of Puget Sound.

WESTCHESTER OPEN

Golfers Eye Richest Pot

The pro golfers go after the tour's richest purse—$250,000—tomorrow in the Westchester Classic, and one of the game's leading figures says they haven't yet touched the mother lode.

"Some day—not so far away—a man will come to the 72nd hole and line up a putt worth a cool million dollars," predicted Fred Corcoran, the tournament director.

"Twenty-five years ago I said golfers on the tour would some day be playing for a million dollars a year. Most people thought I was crazy. They said it was a pipe-dream.

"Now they are playing for more than $6 million, and the end of the rainbow isn't in sight. I can forsee the day that rich sponsors and the television networks will get together for a tournament that could stagger the imagination.

CHOKING PRICE

Right now, the golfing gypsies must be content to play for Westchester's $250,000, with $50,000 going to the winner. "I think I've found my choking price," millionaire Arnold Palmer once said as he took aim at the rich prize.

It's one of the season's most illustrious fields, including defending champion Julius Boros; the 1967 victor, Jack Nicklaus; U.S. Open titleholder Orville Moody; Masters champion George Archer; the new British Open king, young Tony Jacklin of England, and Monday's Canadian victor, Tommy Aaron.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

As In Industry, Division Of Labor Important Bridge Item

Much of our industrial prosperity is based on the division of labor: you do your work, and the other fellow does his. Bridge prosperity is based on the same principle. You get no bonus if you do the other fellow's work.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

LOOKED GRATEFUL

South looked properly grateful as he won the first trick with the ace of clubs. He then had the satisfaction of drawing all the missing trumps in three rounds.

Declarer led a club to the king, ruffed a club, returned to dummy with the ace of hearts to ruff another club and got back to dummy with the ace of diamonds to cash the last club. He could then afford to give up the last three tricks.

West did declarer's work when he opened the queen of clubs. North's bidding indicated club length and fair strength in the red suits. South's bidding showed an independent spade suit with not enough in the red suits to welcome a no-trump contract. (Actually, three no-trump would have been the best contract.)

West should have foreseen that South would try to use dummy's clubs. The red suits were obviously the weak points in South's armor.

RED LEAD

West could have defeated the contract by leading either a diamond or a heart. Since a heart lead looks dangerous from West's point of view, he should lead the eight of diamonds.

If South plays a low diamond from dummy, East wins with the king of diamonds and may return either a diamond or a heart.

IMPORTANT THING

The important thing is to knock one of the red aces out of the dummy before South can start the clubs. Then South will be unable to set up and cash dummy's last club.

The job of the defenders is to defend, not to do declarer's work for him. (But be sure to see this column tomorrow.)

Neighbors, 2 Yellow Cobras, 0

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Policeman Vermon Smit did his neighbor, W. Watling, a good turn when he killed a deadly poisonous yellow cobra near where Watling's children were playing in their garden.

Watling repaid the debt the very next day. He killed another yellow cobra Mrs. Smit found in her kitchen while her husband was away.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 30th, the 211th day of 1969 with 154 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1916, German saboteurs blew up a munitions dump at Black Tom Island just outside Jersey City, causing an estimated $22 million damage.

In 1937, the American Federation of Radio Artists was organized as a unit of the AF of L.

In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill creating a female branch of the U.S. Navy called 'Waves.'

In 1967, news from behind the Bamboo Curtain told of a mass purge of the Red Chinese army.

A thought for the day: American writer Oliver Wendell Holmes once said: "Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all."

India's Policy On Lending

NEW DELHI (PA) — Neither a borrower nor a lender be. But if you do borrow, you might as well lend a little.

Following this policy, India advanced more than rupees 400 million (over $55.5 million) as loans to other countries between 1950 and 1967.

The largest recipient has been Burma, which accounts for almost half the amount. Other countries are Afghanistan, Sikkim, Bhutan, Nepal, Ceylon and Indonesia.

New Repair Shop In Marin For Camper, Trailer Services

A new business opening in San Rafael is Bud's Camper and Trailer Repair Services.

Owner Pierce (Bud) Reeves of Santa Venetia has leased a 2,000-square-foot building plus 2,000 square feet of yard space for storage at 34-A De Luca Place through Herman Deitch, Realtor and William Brannan of William Timmer Realty. Reeves probably will have this specialized field pretty much to himself in Marin County, since most of this type of work is done either in Santa Rosa or at El Cerrito, across the bay.

He was formerly with the Sears Roebuck and Co. service department for 14 years and has been repairing trailers and campers as a hobby. Now he has a professionally equipped repair shop, sells and installs air conditioners, LP ranges and refrigerators and toilets. He also installs heavy-duty shock absorbers, hitches, overload springs and dual battery systems and will take care of almost anything on trailer wheels that needs repair or updating. He has two mechanical assistants.

D. T. V. LISTON of San Rafael has been appointed a senior research associate of Chevron Research Co. He joined the company in 1960. In his present assignment he will continue his exploratory work in the field of lubricating oil additives.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Wife Doesn't Know About Investments

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I recently invested over half our savings in Husky Oil and Reichold Chemicals. My wife doesn't know about it yet. How good are these stocks and how much worrying will I have to do before she finds out? — A. D.

A. Because of the state of the market you may have a good bit of worrying to do, even though you have shares of two potentially profitable issues.

Husky, because of its position on the North Slope, was approached as a takeover by an American oil company. The offer was turned down as too low. Largely overlooked by investors, the company has some very interesting property in several glamor areas, such as Wollaston Lake, the "High Arctic" and the Kandik Basin, making the issue an attractive land play situation.

Reichold's plastics operations have experienced rapid sales growth. During 1968, gains of 19 per cent to 25 per cent were recorded in sales of polyester resins, organic peroxides, epoxy resins and polyurethene foam resins. These products are used by furniture, automotive, building and boat manufacturers. To keep pace with the growing demand, Reichold is expanding several of its present facilities and building an additional plant. First-quarter earnings rose 23 per cent on a 6 per cent gain in sales.

Q. Some months ago I bought shares of Villager Industries at 42. It has dropped to 15. Should I take my loss or buy more? — H. D.

A. You have ridden this investment down to a four-year low; I see no advantage in selling at this level. Nor do I recommend additional buying to average down since recovery will no doubt be protracted. Production difficulties and increased costs plus expenses involved in streamlining distribution and inventory control have penalized recent earnings. These problems are in the process of being solved and a turnaround in the earnings picture may come later in the current fiscal year. However, price recovery to your cost does not appear to be an immediate prospect.

U.S. Seamen Hit Talks On South American Seizures

WASHINGTON, D.C. (BW) — The Seafarers International Union of North America has warned the State Department not to submit to "blackmail" in negotiations with Latin American countries over their seizures of American fishing trawlers.

The SIUNA position was spelled out by vice presidents Frank Drozak and Steve Edney, at a meeting with Donald L. McKernan, special assistant to the secretary of state, at the State Department.

Government officials are preparing for a conference to be held in Buenos Aires commencing today with representatives of Ecuador, Peru and Chile — countries which, over the past eight years, have seized more than 80 U.S. fishing boats and levied fines of more than $900,000 for alleged violations of the fishing zones off the South American coast.

These countries claim a 200-mile fishing zone, in contrast to the accepted practice of limiting a nation's fishing rights to 12 miles off its coast.

In some of the seizures, Latin gunboats have fired on the American trawlers.

Following the State Department meeting, the SIUNA officials issued this statement:

"We take the position that the conference at Buenos Aires should limit itself to resolving the issue of the illegal seizures of American fishing vessels — seizures which have jeopardized the lives and the livelihoods of the American fishermen whom we represent.

"We are opposed to the inclusion in the Buenos Aires conference of any discussions on Latin American requests to reduce American tariffs on the tuna fish shipments by the Latin American countries or any changes on Bonita as it is presently packed and marked today.

"The reason for the conference is simple — it has been called in order to resolve a serious threat to peace and stability to this hemisphere caused by these repeated illegal seizures. For the government to enter into any negotiations with the countries on the subject of tariffs or imports would be to submit to blackmail.

"The American delegation to Buenos Aires should be concerned solely with resolving the problems caused by the denial to American fishermen to their rights on the high seas."

Nixon Facing New Crisis On Return: Living Cost

When President Nixon returns from cementing the United States' relationships abroad, perhaps he will turn his attention to a developing crisis at home: the cost of living.

Early this year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that consumer prices went up by 4.2 per cent during the final year of the Johnson administration — the greatest rise in any one year since the Korean war.

Since then, the rise has been at a rate making last year's look rather deliberate.

In January, the BLS index went up .3 of one per cent. In February, the rise was .4; March, .8; in April, .6; in May, .3, and in June, .6 again.

THE RISE for the first six months is thus 3 per cent. If the same rate continues through the remainder of the year, the resulting 6 per cent consumer price rise will dwarf any of those in the Johnson years.

Locally, the rise has been greater than the national average, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Charles Roumasset, BLS regional director, reported that the spring rise in the San Francisco metropolitan area wiped out spring pay hikes negotiated in the annual round of union-management contract talks — hikes which in themselves has been translated into the additional escalation of the past few months.

RISING PRICES have provided fuel for summer demands by public employees for pay raises higher than usual. These, in their turn, will be translated into higher taxes next winter.

Nor does the so-called "cost of living index" — now at 126.7 per cent of its 1957-59 base — tell the whole story. Interest costs, the highest in a century, add to the squeeze. High interest curbs investment and adds to unemployment. This in turn puts a greater load on welfare rolls — which again results in higher taxes.

Caught in the squeeze are those workers who got new contracts with pay raises that looked good at the time but now have lagged behind the rise in living costs. Caught still tighter are the millions not covered by union contracts, many of whom may have received no cost-of-living raise at all. And caught tightest of all are those on pensions or other fixed incomes.

IN THE CLOSING weeks of his campaign for the presidency, Richard M. Nixon declared in a radio address last Oct. 23:

"As sure as a binge leads to a hangover, an inflationary boom, if pursued too long, leads to a deflationary bust and massive unemployment. Unless current policies are changed as a matter of highest urgency, we are all in for a dreadful headache in 1970 and beyond."

In the six months since he became President, however, Mr. Nixon does not seem to have felt this "highest urgency." His budget cut turned out to be a one per cent trim — scarcely altering the hemline of the overly full garment. For the rest, his "anti-inflation" policies seem to be the same ones that failed to work for his predecessor, including the 10 per cent income tax surtax which he denounced as a candidate but adopted as President.

Mr. Nixon may have found in his travels, as did Nelson Rockefeller in his, that many of the United States' friends abroad are not very friendly. He is likely to find the electorate at home rather unfriendly too, if — as appears inevitable — the July figure shows the cost of living still on its runaway course.

Not Among The Grandstanders

A few weeks back, commenting on the unemotional (if also unimpressive) performance of the current Marin County Board of Supervisors, we suggested that the three who left the board at the close of last year had sometimes been guilty of grandstanding. "Trying for the accolades instead of for accomplishment" was the way we put it.

One of those three, Ernest N. Kettenhofen, took exception to this. If he had tried for the accolades, suggested Kettenhofen, he might still be on the board instead of having been defeated at the polls.

While we may not agree with this assessment, we feel that we did wrong "Kett." The uproar he contributed to the board's operation was due to his bulldog determination and his inability to admit that "politics is the art of compromise," rather than to grandstanding.

Petris's Anti-Auto Bill May Make Detroit 'Get On Its Horse'

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Passage by the state Senate of a measure by Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, to ban sales of automobiles powered by internal combustion in 1975 brought some raised eyebrows not only around the state, but also in Detroit, seat of the automobile manufacturing industry.

However, the public probably doesn't have too much to worry about. Should the assembly pass the bill and the governor sign it into law — neither of which is likely to happen at this late date in the legislative session — nobody' going to start walking right away.

SENATOR PETRIS never had any hope of getting his bill passed at all. It was introduced with the idea of shaking up the public and the automobile industry to the facts of life, which are that if something is not done about the smog problem, the human race eventually is doomed.

The best way to do the shaking up was to introduce a bill threatening the public with a return to the horse and buggy, which would put a lot of street-sweepers back on the job, and the automobile industry with the loss of California as an outlet for its product.

THE SENATOR was forced to amend his bill to get it through the Senate. Now it does not provice for banning the internal combustion automobile on California highways, but bans the sales of new and used automobiles in this state after 1975.

This amendment puts the entire burden on the automobile industry to come up with a means of transportation which does not emit poisonous substances in the atmosphere we breathe.

Petris claims the industry has "dragged its feet" in solving this critical problem.

In his effort to shake up the people and the industry, Petris found a medium in his bills which is turning out to be highly successful. It presages a new and much more serious look at the smog problem.

Coast Guard Housing Relocation Advantag

The objectivity and professionalism of Larry Hatfield's account of the Coast Guard housing controversy at Inverness (July 26) were deeply appreciated. Although he quoted exclusively from Coast Guard sources, he summarized fairly and accurately the Inverness community's objections on the grounds of density and sewage disposal.

Commenting further, it should be noted that the commercial center of West Marin, Point Reyes Sation, is actively seeking to get the Coast Guard project transferred to their community. At least one excellent site, which complies with the West Marin Master Plan and the park service plan for circulation in the National Seashore, has been called to the attention of the federal government.

This site would save the federal governmtnt much money now, much more later. It would save the local taxpayers, both in this school district and county-wide, much more. It is estimated that, after all state and federal subsidies, it will cost about $500 per pupil to educate the Coast Guard children. As there are to be over fifty of them, this is no mean burden on a small school district. Much of this high cost comes from the necessity to "bus" pupils. If the Coast Guard selected the Point Reyes Station site, right next to the West Marin Elementary School, about $20,000 might be lifted from the burden . . .

The effect on traffic is also of major importance. Inverness is hemmed in between its forested hills, on unstable soils that tend to slide every winter, and Tomales Bay. At the Inverness Inn site, the 80 Coast Guard households will be completely dependent on the automobile, and many of them will need two sets of "wheels." At Point Reyes Station, the housewife can walk down to cash her check, get her hair done, get the car serviced, mail her letters, and buy whatever groceries she needs to supplement her weekly trips to the Hamilton Field PX.

Finally, I was glad to see that Mr. Hatfield elicited from the Coast Guard sanitary engineer, Mr. Race, the admission that treated sewage efuent will at times be discharged directly into the creek, and thence into Tomales Bay only a few hundred feet downstream . . .

Self-Delusion Persists Among Hawks In Vietnam

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

It is nothing less than astounding that American military circles in Saigon are still telling themselves, and any visitors who will listen, that victory is just around the corner. Such is the report of Richard Dudman, our chief Washington correspondent, after a recent visit to South Vietnam.

"Won't it be a tragedy,' the visitor is asked, "if the American people lose patience and Nixon feel that he has to pull out just when we've got it made?"

JUST WHEN we've got it made! The Vietnam war in its acute stage — that is, since January 1965 — is now the longest war in our history. Periodically through these agonizing years military leaders have been coming back from Saigon to report that we just about had it made. The American people have been dragged from one peak of false optimism to another. They have been misled, propagandized, manipulated, and just plain lied to. It is incredible that today, after 36,000 dead and 225,000 wounded, any military officer or civilian functionary would have the gall to ask the American people for a little more patience, on the ground that "we've got it made."

The magnitude of the presumption becomes clear when one realizes what the American officers in Saigon are talking about when they say "we've got it made." They are talking about five or six more years of war. They are talking about keeping 200,000 to 300,000 American troops in South Vietnam for at least that long. They are talking about continuing to bleed the American taxpayer of billions of dollars every year to sustain and arm and train a mercenary army led by a dictorial government which cannot command the confidence of its own people.

So long as there is talk like this in the American establishment in Saigon, it is quite clear that the struggle over Vietnam policy has not closed out by a long shot.

THERE HAS always been among the sponsors of the war a total inability to understand the nature of the Vietnam conflict. Judging by the talk in Saigon, nothing in this bitter experience has brought them wisdom. Not in 15 years of steadily deepening entanglement, not 36,000 dead and 225,000 wounded, not the successive escalations followed by responding escalations on the other side, have enabled them to understand that it is a political and not a military conflict. We have been trying to solve by military power a post-colonial problem of Asian political development that simply will not yield to military methods. We have been trying to "win" a war which even in the narrowest military sense could not be won without converting it into a war with China or Russia or both.

We do not justify the deaths of brave young men by condemning others to die for five or six years more. The only honorable mission our troops have ever had in Vietnam is to enable the Vietnamese people to decide their own future. After 15 years of American intervention in one degree or another, the time has come to let them decide it.

Nixon's One Promise To Asia: We Won't Go Away And Forget

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — We need to know three things to judge President Nixon's trip to Asia:

What he isn't doing.

What he aims to do.

The special and helpful assets he takes along.

WHAT MR. NIXON isn't doing on this trip to the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, India and Pakistan is as important as what he is doing.

He is not making any new defense pacts. He will not be talking about any new U.S. commitments, military or political. He will not be redefining past commitments.

This is what Richard Nixon is very deliberately and very carefully not doing. It is significant because he wants to make it clear to the non-Communist Asian nations that their first line of security is not the United States but their own regional defense system which is thus far more potential than real.

THERE ARE POSITIVE things which the President wants to discuss with the Asians. He wants them to know firsthand that he is thinking in post-Vietnam terms and that they should be, too.

He wants them to realize that U.S. troops will not be in Vietnam indefinitely and that their own future security will depend in large part on their collective strength and willingness to use it in behalf of each other.

He intends to assure them that while we will be withdrawing from Vietnam, we are not withdrawing from the western Pacific and are not canceling our interest and concern with the welfare and independence of the Asian nations.

He will make it clear that a regional defense system embracing the non-Communist Asian nations will give the United States every incentive to help, that its absence could create a dangerous vacuum.

In other words, President Nixon is informing friends and adversaries alike that, despite the indecisive war in Vietnam and the possibly unsatisfactory peace, the United States is not going to pursue an insular or isolationist policy, that we are not going to try to stop the world and get off, that American concern for the peace and development of the weaker nations remains strong.

IN HIS TALKS with the Asian leaders, Mr. Nixon is fortunate to have a full quiver of new and special assets — some of his own making, some not. The principal ones are these:

1—He embarks on his mission in the glow of tremendous, worldwide admiration and respect for the perfectly executed achievement of putting two men on the moon and bringing them safely back to earth. We have lost prestige in Vietnam, but we have gained immeasurable prestige for our superior scientific and technological attainments in the brave new venture of unmatched space exploration. President Nixon will be talking from a powerful base of constructive achievement.

2—The American de-escalation of the Vietnamese war enhances the President's credentials in every nation he is visiting — except Thailand.

3—The modest liberalization of U.S. trade and travel policy with respect to Red China, which Mr. Nixon has just approved, is widely welcomed.

4—The Asians, like most of the rest of the world, want to see successful U.S.-Soviet arms-control talks — and so does Mr. Nixon.

Richard Nixon is going to Asia at a good time for a good purpose — to show that the new president is not concerned with just half the world and to show that the United States, however the Vietnamese war ends, is not planning to run away and hide.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

MIRV, Not Romania Visit, May Hamper Arms Talks

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — President Nixon believes his forthcoming visit to Romania will help, not harm, this nation's relations with the Soviet Union.

Consequently, the President thinks his stop there Saturday will improve, not damage, the prospects for successful talks with Russia on limiting strategic arms.

That point of view runs counter to much of the comment which followed the announcement of the Nixon itinerary. Some of the pundits have been quite certain that the President, by a personal visit to Russia's increasingly independent ally, would create problems at the arms talks due to begin next month.

The President, however, outlined his opposing views at some length for congressional leaders before his departure. Some of the House and Senate leaders, who met with him at the White House, came away with the impression that plans for the Romania stop-over had been checked out very carefully in advance with Russian leaders.

WHILE THE PRESIDENT has been traveling, Senate debate on the Safeguard ABM system has been highlighting another potential problem for those forthcoming arms limitation talks.

The problem is not Safeguard, but MIRV — The presently experimental multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles. As the debate progresses it becomes increasingly clear that MIRV developments, in the United States and Russia, already make for difficult negotiations.

The United States has been testing a MIRV warhead which sends each nuclear-armed reentry vehicle on an independent course to a separate target. The U.S. IS already planning to deploy two weapons systems which will use MIRV warheads — a new Poseidon missile in the present Polaris submarine fleet and a new version of the Minuteman ICBM, Minuteman III.

Russia is trying for a MIRV warhead too. Pentagon experts believe, however, that the United States is a good deal farther along in the development process.

What is emerging from the ABM debate is an understanding that the MIRV situation has its difficulties at the bargaining table.

If Kremlin negotiators think the United States is well ahead in MIRV development, can they agree to any sort of limitation which inhibits Russia's efforts toward development of a true MIRV system?

The Pentagon is asking for six conversions again this year. But when, in a closed-door hearing last week, Sec. of the Navy John H. Chafee noted that six Polaris-Poseidon conversions would be funded this year, chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Armed Services Committee retorted:

"I wouldn't be too sure about that."

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Boards Lack Initiative In Teacher Salary Field

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

School trustees should make a concerted attack on the single salary schedule for teachers "to insure that taxpayers are no longer short-changed," contends Richard Zweiback, director of school personnel relations services for the National School Boards Assocation.

It can be done, says Zweiback, through the collective bargaining procedures that are written into education laws, in one form or another, in most states.

WRITING IN the June issue of the American School Board Journal, Zweiback holds that, although collective bargaining is supposed to be a give-and-take process, in the public schools it has become a matter of "school boards give and teachers take."

"It is likely to continue that way until school boards take the offensive and present their own demands as a condition for any negotiation settlement with teachers," he continues.

"A good place to start is with re-evaluation of the old-fashioned single salary schedule. . . . Do we wonder, when we continue to base salaries solely on longevity and time spent in schooling, why we continue to see an institutionalized mediocrity in education and a consequent lowering of quality? . . .

"Is there something illogical about teachers who have long recognized that not all students perform equally asking school boards to believe that all persons holding a teaching certificate are equally competent?"

ZWEIBACK THEN proceeds to shoot a big hole in the "poor mouth" argument that has been used so successfully by teacher organizations in winning pay increases for all their members regardless of competence.

"Teacher salaries have jumped far ahead of increases in the cost of living —to say nothing of total teacher income, which is boosted by, among other sources, extra-curricular pay," he writes.

"If school boards are to insure that taxpayers no longer are short-changed, they are going to have to consider ways of rewarding performance and weeding out mediocrity."

ALTHOUGH Zweiback's call appears in the official organ of the National School Boards Association, it is unlikely to spark a widespread attack on the teacher salary system.

The pattern has been well established in which school boards sit back and wait for the teachers' contract demands, then try to whittle them down. If any school board in California has prepared its own list of demands to present to teachers as a basis for negotiations, I have not heard of it — although this would be equally in accord with the provisions of the Winton Act.

Attempts to break away from basing salaries solely on longevity and college credits, through "merit pay" schemes, have foundered in nearly all cases. There are various reasons.

TEACHER organizations are adamant against any salary system which provides for evaluation of the competency of a teacher by anybody. Although it is common practice for a contractor, for instance, to pay some especially valuable employee above the union scale in order to keep him, teacher organizations will have none of this in the education business. The only way for the teacher to break away from the schedule is to become an administrator.

Few of the really good teachers become administrators. They are more interested in classroom work with students. They also refuse to take courses required for an administrative credential. And they don't want to get involved in playing school politics, another virtual necessity for an administrative job.

IT THEREFORE remains for the school building politicians to become the administrators. And because the best teachers hold such administrators in rather low esteem, they do not want their salaries to be based on evaluation by those administrators. So they, too, go along with the system which reqares the incompetent equally with the outstanding.

If anything is to be done about the system, it appears it must originate with the school boards. But school trustees — unlike teachers — seldom read their own publications, or pay them much attention if they do read them.
